SUMMARY.

The London "Standard," in a leading article, denounces the suffragists' vandalism, arson, disloyalty, and sacrilege.

It urges the adoption of a bill indemnifying the authorities in the event of hunger-strikers dying.

Mlle. Yvette Guilbert, herself a staunch suffragist, in an open letter, deplores the present militant tactics.

Miss Wylie defended the smuggling of drugs into prison for the use of hunger-strikers.

She accused the authorities of using narcotics and sedatives in forcible feeding, and declared women must obtain antidotes.

The Churches, she declared, had forsaken Christianity, and that was why the suffragists burned them down.

The Japanese Minister and Attache are said to have been captured by the Mexican rebels.

According to the "Daily Telegraph," it is not known where they are at present.

He said he wanted to test the possibility of entering the palace, owing to allusions made by suffragists.

He admitted he had been drinking for several days. The magistrate remanded defendant for a week.

A bill to exclude Asiatics has been introduced into the Canada House of Commons by Mr. H. H. Stevens.

He said the question was simply whether Canada should be opened to a flood of unassimilable elements.

The Indian Grievances Bill was read a second time in the South African House of Assembly.

It provides free passages for those who are willing to leave South Africa and return to India.

General Botha said the Government would do its utmost to get Natal "out of the mire" by repatriating the Indians.

The Wilmart trial has begun at Brussels, and is expected to last several weeks.

Wilmart, formerly a railway manager, who disappeared after the discovery of frauds covering £2,500,000, was arrested at Rheims.

Police interference was followed by a riot. Seventeen police were injured, and three of the mob were killed.

A general strike has resulted at Rome. All traffic is paralysed, and the newspapers have ceased publication.

Important captures have been made at Milan and Bologna of international robbers operating on Continental railways.

A girl was equipped with razor-like instruments for slitting passengers' clothing. Much stolen property has been recovered.

Opinion is divided as to whether the Federal session will come to a close this week or not.

The question will largely depend upon the result of the meeting of the Opposition, which takes place to-day.

It is the intention of the Federal Ministry to do everything possible to strengthen the law on absentee voting.

A meeting of the State caucus was held yesterday, and was of a generally quiet character.

By tacit consent no mention was made of the Meagher-Holman incident.

The feeling of the caucus was that the ranks should be closed up in view of the forthcoming Federal campaign.

Proposals of Ministers for meeting the needs of the new situation were discussed at length, without finality being reached.

Mr. Holman last evening seemed to be quite satisfied with the events of the caucus.

The pinnace belonging to H.M.A.S. Penguin was sunk by the Coombar, in avoiding the ferry steamer Kaikai.

Two steamers from Rabaul found her. The salvage is considerable, as she was carrying 5000 tons of phosphates.

Additional evidence regarding the use of bogus labels on pianos was given before the Interstate Commission yesterday.

A witness stated that some German pianos were being sold in Sydney at a profit of 400 per cent.

Income tax must be paid to-day, except in the case of the late assessments, to escape the fine.

Mr. Layton said the reconstruction of Hyde Park was a work which should not be delayed any longer.

Burglars were very active during the holidays, and several thefts were reported to the police yesterday.

Messrs. Brown and Donohue's jewellery establishment was entered and over £400 worth of valuables and money taken.

Entry was effected to several shops in the city and suburbs, and goods, money, and jewellery abstracted.

A circular letter has been issued by the State Secretary of the Federated Mining Employees' Association.

He urges the necessity of reducing taxation on members and payments for collections of contributions and levies.

In salaries alone, he declares, in his letter, the total cost at present is approximately £1467.

A large amount of business was transacted on the Sydney Exchange yesterday in investment stocks.

Wheat was stronger yesterday at 3/10½ for parcels, while 3/10 was accepted for growers' lots.

An advance was recorded in manufactures of lead, the prices for which rose 10s per ton.

On the whole the sales transacted showed but little alteration in prices.

Barrier mines received most attention, a number of sales in the tin section also being recorded.

The wholesale quotation for butter was again advanced 4s per cwt. in Sussex-street yesterday.

Prime New South Wales brands were not to be had under 116s per cwt., delivered in boxes.

Arrivals are genuinely falling off, and supplies yesterday were only just sufficient to fill requirements.

WOOLLY APHIS ON APPLE AND PEAR TREES.

One of the worst pests that affect Apple and other Fruit Trees is the AMERICAN BLIGHT or WOOLLY APHIS. There have been many remedies tried in the past, and the usual method of attack is by spraying. The best time to apply the spray is as SOON as the LEAVES FALL, and the best spray to use is HARBAS.

Read what one of our Customers says about it:

"I last season used 'Harbas' on my fruit trees, and can confidently say it's the best and most effective winter spray I have ever used; it is a deadly enemy of the woolly aphis and scale. Some of my apple trees in another year would have been practically ruined with woolly aphis had not I sprayed them with 'Harbas.'

"Pleased to say now not an aphis exists. I intend using it again this season, and can without hesitation recommend it to anyone who has an orchard."

HARBAS is supplied in ½ gals. 3/, 1 gal. 4/9, 2 gals. 8/6, 4 gals. 14/. Casks of 43 gals., at 3/ gal. Free on rail or steamer, Sydney.

UNSHRINKABLE UNDERWEAR. A GOOD WINTER WEIGHT.

Warm underwear becomes an immediate necessity. With June well advanced, it is unlikely that there will be any more mild weather. True protection from the cold, as well as excellent service, will be obtained by all who wear undergarments such as we quote to-day. They are made of all-wool, even and fine in texture, and, therefore, not likely to irritate. The ends are ribbed.

The shaping of the garments ensures comfortable fitting.

We have proven this line and commend it fully for both warmth and wear.

NATURAL WOOL UNDERSHIRTS AND PANTS, ½ sleeved Shirts—full-length pants. Sizes 32 to 40, 7/6; 42 and 44, 8/6 each.

SPECIAL VALUE IN WINTER SOCKS.

The two lines of Cashmere Half-hose quoted herein are of excellent quality, and of suitable weight for winter. Men who want good, serviceable socks, that will prove warm and comfortable, will, we believe, find these lines exactly suited to their needs. In Plain Navy Blue and Black.

1/6 and 2/6 per pair. 8/6 and 11/6 ½-dozen pairs.

Please state chest and waist measurement for underwear and boot size for socks. Catalogue on request.

The DURHAM DEMONSTRATOR RAZOR affords the correct sliding diagonal stroke, together with a safety guard and interchangeable blades, and, therefore, enables you to shave correctly and with safety. It does not cut you—neither does it scrape nor pull.

Shaving with the CURLEY IDEAL leaves the face smooth, soft, and cool. There is no irritating pull with the Curley Ideal, which possesses a Safety Guard that prevents cutting the skin. OUR PRICE, 7/6; BY POST, 7/9. EXTRA BLADES, PRICE 3/ EACH.

THE CURLEY PEERLESS SAFETY RAZOR is the result of half a century's study of the Razor question. The guard is made wedge-shape, making the sliding diagonal stroke safe and easy. Complete in case, with 5 blades, 10/6. CURLEY PEERLESS BLADES, Packet of 5, PRICE, 2/6.

THE REVO SAFETY RAZOR.

The REVO POCKET EDITION SAFETY RAZOR is packed in a flexible leather case, which will fit the Vest Pocket. The frame and solid sanitary handle are triple silver-plated, and the toothless guard is easily cleaned. THE REVO is a boon to travellers, and the latest product in the world of Safety Razors, incorporating improved features, which automatically give the sliding stroke angle.

REVO BLADES are hand-stropped and hollow-ground Norway Steel, converted into blades by a process which ensures a keen, lasting edge. REVO BLADES may be stropped time and again. Price, with 7 Blades, 3/6; by Post, 3/9. Extra Blades, packet of 6, Price 1/6.

SAFETY BLADES SHARPENED.

HAROLD BAUER, MASTER PIANIST.

"DAILY TELEGRAPH."
"Mr. HAROLD BAUER again yesterday afternoon showed that he was able to interest and charm his adherents, who came in such numbers to hear him that none of the seats was without an occupant. Scarcely could anything have been better than the distinguished pianist's finished execution of the music, or his reading of the composer's thoughts. His playing was indeed that of a master."

"MORNING POST."
"Mr. BAUER played, and again proved himself worthy of ranking among the leading pianists of the day."

"THE TIMES."
"Here is a great artist, with the best right to his own opinion; there is an authority in Mr. Bauer's playing which holds the attention throughout. The player's command of tone was of the very finest. The idea of force which he conveys is always one of mental rather than physical strength."

"PALL MALL GAZETTE."
"Mr. BAUER once more proved what an admirable player he is; energetic, strong, yet light and skilful, his technique is distinguished by the highest qualities. No words but praise can be used concerning his Beethoven playing."

MISCHA ELMAN IN MELBOURNE.

The "Argus," June 8:—"There is no doubt of the impression made on a vast audience by Mr. MISCHA ELMAN at his first Concert on Saturday evening. Like a true Musician he made his performances a sort of splendid Crescendo as he went through one piece after another, the 'Golden Moments' increased until at the last the young artist had the audience fairly shouting with enjoyment."

The "Age," June 8:—"But the prolonged and generous applause that greeted MISCHA ELMAN in welcome culminated at the conclusion of the Concert in such a storm of enthusiastic cheers, that its like has probably never been heard in Melbourne before. Each work exhibited the artist in various phases of his genius, and when the audience finally consented to depart, it was with a sense of half incredulous wonder at the perfection of Violin playing which had made at least one evening worthy of life-long remembrance."

A GOOD MAKE OF SECOND-HAND CAR, in first-class order, is a better investment than a new cheap car. A new car depreciates from thirty to fifty per cent. the first year; a second-hand car bought at the right place is always a Saleable Asset.

We have Cars and Lorries that have had very little use going for half or less than half their original cost, and we are authorised by the owners to guarantee their condition. We have sold hundreds of cars, and can refer you to satisfied clients throughout the country.

Among the Cars we have for Sale are Single and Double Seated Cars that have been left with us by clients who have gone or are going to Europe. We have also several Cars that are portion of Assigned Estates, and others that have been taken as part payment for larger cars or later models.

Write to us, stating the class of car you want, and we will forward particulars of the Car we would recommend for your purpose if we have one that would suit you. Should you purchase a larger Car or a New Car, we would take your small car as part payment.

Assistance given to purchasers, who are also taught to drive gratis.

PALMER CORD TRIPLE-RIB TYRES.

THE BEST FOR WET AND GREASY ROADS.

PALMER CORD TYRES.

The heavy triple-tread originated in Palmer Cord Tyres. It has been widely imitated, but the tyres themselves are inimitable. The construction is based upon a layer of impregnated rubber cords, impervious to moisture, and resistant of friction. These cords are looped round "Anchors" at the bead, which they strengthen wonderfully. The BEST tyres in every way. Let us send you the interesting Palmer Cord Catalogue.

RIFLE SHOOTING

THE TARGET PROBLEM.

The council of the National Rifle Association at its last meeting endeavoured to devise means to overcome the difficulty anticipated in providing sufficient target accommodation for the entrants at the big October meeting, the military authorities not having shown any anxiety to carry out the promised alterations and additions to the Randwick range. The target accommodation was found to be very deficient at the 1913 meeting; but when it is considered that the English team of riflemen will be competitors, and a large number of entrants have to be catered for this year, the anxiety of the association is excusable. The chairman suggested that the difficulty might be overcome by commencing the meeting a day earlier and utilising the first Saturday for "A" series matches, but this was opposed by Mr. O. J. Stanton, who considered that many men would refrain from entering on those conditions, as they could not spare the extra time required. His idea of overcoming the difficulty was to reduce 10-shot matches to eight-shot ones, the saving of time making it possible for 960 competitors to be squadded. Major R. H. Beardmore suggested that the "Lady Rawson" and other competitions usually decided on the final Saturday should be shot off at some other time, and this method met with a good deal of approval. A scheme prepared by Lieut. Dakin, the secretary, was next submitted by the chairman. This provided for commencing the "A" series at 300 yards, dealing with all shoots at that range, then complete the whole of the 500 yards shooting, and so work back to the longer ranges, the shooting at each of the succeeding ranges being carried out in order. It was claimed that by the adoption of this system much time usually taken up in changing the targets would be saved, and nearly 900 competitors would be provided for. Sergeant Wallace did not favour the scheme, but thought that the matter should be considered by the executive committee. Lieut. Mills moved that the "Lady Rawson" be fired on the previous Saturday, and that the whole of the succeeding week be devoted to the "A" series, the drawing up of the time-table to be referred to the executive committee. This was eventually carried.

The Commonwealth Council of Rifle Associations of Australia has accepted the offer of the Birmingham Small Arms Company to provide a valuable trophy to be competed for by teams representing the various Australian States. The teams will each consist of 12 men, and it is probable that the match will be shot off simultaneously on the ranges in the respective States.

THE TURF.

NOTES.

Mr. S. Kidman, who has purchased the Fulham Park Estate, South Australia, will only keep a select number of mares at that breeding establishment, and will send the others to his country stations. In addition to his English mares he will keep Palotta (by Lochiel), Studholme (by Port Admiral), and Recherche (by Thunderbolt). It is understood that he will bring Nacrite, the dam of Bullawarra, from Queensland, and the sires at Fulham Park will include Sir Simon, the sire of that renowned steeplechaser.

Mr. Orton Stevens, who was one of the victims in the collision of the Northern express, in New Zealand on the 27th ult., was well-known in racing circles in the Dominion. He was one of the stewards of the Wellington Racing Club, and was generally found acting on the Judicial Committee of the New Zealand Racing Conference.

The yearling colt, half-brother (by Symington), to Craganour, for whom Sir William Nelson paid 6000 guineas last year, was recently the subject of litigation in England. A recision of contract was claimed by Sir William Nelson for alleged fraudulent misrepresentation, and breach of warranty, the youngster having developed roaring proclivities. Some time after the sale, Mr. Lambert, V.S., reported to trainer Persse that the youngster was "grunting," whereupon Mr. Persse wrote to Mr. Somerville Tattersall, as under:—"I suppose you are aware that the half-brother of Craganour, purchased by Nelson last week for 6000 guineas, is a very bad grunter. I am quite aware that in purchasing yearlings one has to take one's chance, but at the same time one hardly expects the Sledmere Stud to offer a yearling for sale knowing that he is unsound. The only consolation I have is that I did not advise Nelson to buy the horse, and that he did so on his own." At a later date Mr. Persse had the colt tested, and found that it was a bad roarer. Ultimately the case was settled, Sir William Nelson to return the colt, and to have his choice of a colt from this year's Sledmere Stud yearlings.

When Cagou won the Brisbane Cup on Wednesday last, in 3m 2⅖s, he established a new Queensland record for the race. The time is only 1⅖s outside the Australian record, registered by Lilyveil in the last Sydney Cup. The first mile on the Brisbane Cup was run in 1m 44s, the first 1½ mile in 2m 10¼s, and the last six furlongs in 1m 17⅖s.

A German paper is responsible for the statement that two millions of the population of that country are concerned in betting on the turf. Of these two millions, spread over 614 towns, 6050 bookmakers have to be reckoned. There are also 210,000 provincial betting agents and tipsters, and it is calculated that between £30,000,000 and £100,000,000 is spent every year in betting. In 1912 the revenue from the tax on betting amounted to £625,000. In consequence of the duty on bookmakers, the tax will in future be double, and the revenue is expected to amount to £1,250,000.

Concerning the recent law suit in connection with the Sledmere bred yearling purchased by Sir W. Nelson, last year, "Legeyt" writes in the London "Sportsman," recalling an incident in the career of the Derby winner, Surplice, as narrated by "The Druid":—"Butler and Nat Flatman viewed the son of Touchstone in the paddock during his yearling days, and decided that from the 'thropppling' noise he made when grazing, he must be a roarer. Lord George Bentinck, however, observing that nearly all the other fourteen yearlings in the same paddock emitted the same unwelcome music, cheered himself with the reflection that 'they can't be all roarers.' Surplice, of course, won the Derby and St. Leger, 1848, and by his victory in the former event was the means of wringing that historical 'splendid groan' from his breeder. As a coincidence, it may be mentioned that a half-brother of Sir W. Nelson's £6300 youngster, wrung quite a considerable quantity of more or less 'splendid groans' from various folk on a later Derby day. Without going into the several causes of grunting, it is interesting to note that Arab horses do not suffer from this complaint when on their native desert. When Mr. Justice Darling suggested a settlement of the above-mentioned case out of Court, he can hardly have intended that the defendants should use the extreme measure which Mat Milton inflicted on a nobleman who complained that a hunter which the celebrated dealer had sold to him was a roarer. Mat, ironically asked him, after making four horses grunt, successfully, by a sudden blow of the fist, if that was what he meant, and wound up his discourse by giving him (the nobleman) a dig below the waistcoat, and an adjuration of "Why, you're grunting now—hang it, you're a roarer yourself. Be out of the yard with you."

A baker's dozen took part in the race for the One Thousand Guineas, run at Newmarket on the 1st ult, and which was won by Mr. J. B. Joel's Princess Dorrie, by Your Majesty from Doris, who was piloted by the Kensington lad, W. Huxley, and was followed home by Lord Derby's Glorvina, by Desmond from Veneration II. (F. Rickaby), and Sir J. Thorsby's Torchlight, by John o'Gaunt from Lesbia (G. Stern). Torchlight started an even money favourite, while 100 to 9 was available about Princess Dorrie. The favourite went to the front at the Abingdon Bottom, but a little further on Glorvina and Princess Dorrie closed on her, and the latter scored by three-parts of a length, in 1m 42s. Princess Dorrie is half-sister to White Star, recently imported to Victoria by Mr. S. Green. This was Mr. Joel's second success in the One Thousand Guineas, last year's race having been credited to him by the Sundridge filly, Jest. The victory of Princess Dorrie was especially welcome to young Huxley, who had just finished his term of apprenticeship to R. Wootton.

A glance through last Saturday's and Monday's racing in the Commonwealth shows that no fewer than 17 of the 30 winners possess strains of the potent Musket blood. Holy Smoke, who captured the Novice Handicap at Randwick, gets his infusion through his dam, Explosion, by Havoc (son of Nordenfeldt), while Headwind, who secured the First Nursery Handicap, is a son of the imported Carbine mare Fair Wind. Golden Wire, the winner of the Royal Handicap at Flemington, is a son of Havoc, grandson of Musket; Sylvanmore, who annexed the Sandringham Handicap, gets his strain through his granddam, Godlike, by Trenton; Weleria, the winner of the Princess Handicap, also acquires her infusion through her granddam, Gaillardia, by Trenton, and Anacrion, the winner of the Hunt Club's Cup, has a double strain of Musket blood through Bundook and Thunderbolt. At the Adelaide meeting the Musket blood was brought to the fore by Orvieto (son of Wallace) in the Birthday Cup, while imported Pistol's son, Hamburg, accounted for the Jumpers' Flat Race. On the final day of the Q.T.C. Autumn Meeting, the Moreton Handicap fell to Moonbria, whose sire, Merriwee, gets his Musket strain through his dam, Etraweenie, by Trenton; and Tatterley, who secured the Flying Handicap, gets his share through his granddam, Spearfeldt, by Nordenfeldt. Four of the winners at Bathurst trace to the Musket blood—Chickabiddy, winner of the Opening Handicap, through his dam, Game Chuck, by Light Artillery; Isbal, winner of the Trial Handicap, through his granddam, Necklace, by Musket; Pine Park, winner of the Winter Stakes, through his granddam, Alga, by Trenton; and Praemium, who secured the Members' Handicap, through his dam, Balance, by Trenton. At Wallsend John o'Groats, winner of the Plattsburg Handicap, gets his portion through his sire, Bonnie Chiel (son of Wallace); and Amuse, who captured the Welter Handicap, through his granddam, Mersey's Daughter, by Trenton. Little, who won the Second Nursery Handicap at Randwick on Monday, gets his infusion of Musket blood from his great granddam, Etraweenie, while Symetria, the winner of the Exeter Handicap, acquires her share through her dam, Symmetry, by Trenton; and Sir Alwynton, the winner of the Winter Stakes, traces back in tail female to Musket's sister Mosquito.

AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP.

QUALIFYING ROUND.

CLUB COMPETITIONS.

There has been from time to time some argument as to whether the method of playing the N.S.W. amateur championship is not open to some improvement. The custom here is to play 36 holes stroke, and then for the eight leading players to play off under match-play conditions. The British amateur championship is decided entirely by match-play, the question of a qualifying round having been debated on many occasions. The case in favour of match play, from the start is largely one of objection to the qualifying round, in which a good player may by one bad stroke, or by one piece of misfortune, get himself into an unplayable position, and, losing many strokes, fail to qualify, though he may be a better player than some who finish in the leading eight.

The reply to this is that a ball may be picked up from anywhere and teed up, with the loss of two strokes, a margin which would not usually affect any but the last two places. At any rate, a bad position for a shot is generally the result of bad play, and, all things being equal, the golfer who makes fewest of such mistakes deserves to qualify. It would seem that a better test of a golfer is provided by the system in vogue here, for the winner has to show that he is not only a good match player, but also that he can play a satisfactory medal round. To have match play from the start would mean that the tournament would be too long drawn-out, or that it would be necessary to play every day; a severe strain, which would be unlikely to find favour. An added objection to this course would be that few players could spare the time from business. It would be impossible to limit entries, except on a handicap basis, and unless they totalled exactly 32 or 64 there would necessarily be a number of byes in the first round.

It is quite possible that in some ways the system here might be improved, say, by extending the number of qualifiers to 16, or by doubling the number of holes in the qualifying round. Either would do away with the objection which has been raised, for a player who, whatever his luck, could not get among the first sixteen should not deserve to win; while as a rule the best players may be depended upon to come to the front in an aggregate of 72 holes. The moderate player who comes in with a "fluke" round, having had a day out when everything went right, and who at present may easily qualify, would find it a vastly different and more difficult matter were the preliminary extended.

Saturday was all that could be desired from a golfer's viewpoint, there being an entire absence of wind. The course at Kensington was in fine order, though the greens were rather fast. The westerly winds were responsible for this; but though fast, they were true enough, and an accurate putt met with its due reward. The entry of 44 was a record for the event. The hon. secretary of the Golf Council, Mr. W. A. Windeyer, was unfortunately absent, owing to illness, and Mr. G. A. Andrews, acting as his deputy, despatched the competitors without a hitch.

C. H. Reading's round of 75 in the morning was a fine effort, and placed him easily first at the luncheon adjournment. He did not start very well, taking 6 to the first hole, and dropped another stroke by requiring 4 at the short fourth. At the next hole a potential 4, he took 5, but from that point did not make any mistakes, and was out in 40. Coming home the first three holes were taken in orthodox figures, but at the thirteenth (375 yards) two good shots found the green, and no mistake being made with the putt, a splendid 3 went on the card. This was repeated at the next hole (395 yards), where two fine shots, followed by a good putt, were responsible for another 3. Both these holes are bogied in 5. Following on, each hole was played in bogey figures, the card reading:—

Out: 6, 4, 4, 4, 5, 5, 3, 4, 5=40
In: 5, 3, 4, 3, 3, 5, 3, 4, 5=35

H. W. M'Lelland had a 78, coming home well, after taking 42 to the turn in 5, 3, 3, 5, 4, 4, 3, 4, 5=36. Going out he failed at the fifth and sixth, which cost him 6 and 7 respectively. Otherwise he did not have a bad hole, and played finely. P. Sydney Jones also had a 78, his outward card reading 5, 4, 3, 4, 5, 6, 3, 4, 4=38. Coming home, the fourteenth in 6 was expensive, but he was back in 40. J. D. Howden was not at his best on the greens, and lost several strokes by poor putting. He was out in 40, with a 6 at the second, and back in 39 with sixes at the fifteenth and eighteenth. On the last green he required three putts from only a moderate distance, but overran the hole by a few feet, and failed to get the return down. None of the others broke 80, but J. B. Ferrier, T. E. Howard, E. Scott Scott, W. C. Sturrock, and O. H. O'Brien were round in 81. N. F. Christoe and E. J. Springthorpe were 82, and J. H. Brown, W. W. Lyon, J. R. Hooper, and R. Hartridge were one stroke behind.

In the afternoon J. B. Ferrier was the first of the "likely" men to finish, and he had an 82, one stroke worse than in the morning, his partner, W. W. Lyon, equalling his morning round of 83. N. F. Christoe also equalled his first round with 82, but it was doubtful whether this would qualify. C. H. Reading was one of the next in, but had failed to reproduce his morning form, and chiefly owing to faulty play coming home required 81 for the round, giving him an aggregate of 156. T. E. Howard created a sensation by returning a fine card of 75, equalling Reading's morning effort. Howard played steady golf all the way, and though not brilliant, was always sound. His card read:—

Out: 4, 5, 4, 3, 5, 6, 3, 3, 4=37
In: 4, 4, 3, 5, 6, 4, 3, 4, 5=38

75

Added to his morning round of 81, this gave Howard an aggregate of 156. His partner, W. P. C. Andrews, had done badly in the morning with 85, but a good round of 79 (38 out and 41 home) gave him a total of 164 and a chance. His best hole was the ninth, where he was down in 3. J. D. Howden was in trouble at times, and was at sea on the greens, but returned an 84 for an aggregate of 163. E. Scott Scott did not repeat his morning performance, but H. W. McLelland improved, and handed in a fine card of 76, and was the only player to break 80 in each round. M'Lelland was at his best, especially on and near the greens. Going out in 39, he made very few mistakes, and in his home run of 37, the only blemish was a 6 at the tenth. His card was:—

Out: 5, 5, 4, 3, 5, 5, 4, 5, 3=39

W. C. Sturrock was out in 5, 4, 4, 3, 4, 5, 3, 5, 4=37, but coming home dropped strokes at the fourteenth and seventeenth, and finished with 78, one of the best rounds of the afternoon. He played sound, steady golf all the way, his tee shots and long seconds being particularly good, but he appeared to be nervous on the greens. O. H. O'Brien failed in the afternoon, but R. Hartridge improved on his morning round with 81, giving him an aggregate of 164.

H. W. M'Lelland 154, C. H. Reading 156, T. E. Howard 156, W. C. Sturrock 159, P. Sydney Jones 162, J. B. Ferrier 163, and J. D. Howden 163, qualified, and N. F. Christoe, W. P. C. Andrew, and R. Hartridge tied for eighth place with 164. The tie was played off on Monday, when Christoe proved successful with 80. The draw for the first round was M'Lelland v Howden, Sturrock v Jones, Howard v Ferrier, and Reading v winner of the tie, i.e., Christoe. Two of these matches were played off on Monday, when Sturrock beat Jones easily by 7 and 6, and Howard defeated Ferrier after a close fight by 2 and 1. The result of the championship is still in doubt, but those who pinned their faith to either Sturrock or Howden are not showing any signs of wavering. Still Howden has yet to beat M'Lelland, and Howard and Reading cannot be well left out of calculations. The latter should beat Christoe in the first round, but the Kensington player has a way of rising to the occasion that may well carry him through. If Howden wins his match against M'Lelland, he will meet Sturrock, and the game will be worth going a long way to see; while if Reading beats Christoe an equally interesting match should result between him and Howard. The final on Saturday should attract a great gallery, and though with some doubt, we think the players will be Sturrock and Howard.

Club events were overshadowed by the championship, but there were good attendances at the majority of the courses on Saturday, and some excellent cards were returned. Particularly was this the case at Bonnie Doon, Concord, and Dobroyde. On Monday golfers took full advantage of the holiday, all the courses being more or less crowded, though the weather was threatening all the day and heavy rain fell both in the early morning and in the afternoon. The best performance on Saturday was that of W. E. Bain, who, at Dobroyde, from the handicap mark of 5, was round 4 up on bogey. He played sound golf, driving and approaching very well, but was not at his best on the greens.

The cards at Bonnie Doon were well above the average, J. Rowley (5) winning the bogey handicap with an excellent round of 3 up, and being closely followed by H. A. Richardson (10) and J. A. Cooper (15), each with 2 up. In the silver button contest at Concord, R. Bull with a good card of 92—21=71, had a comfortable win, though A. R. Marks was a good second with 89—15=74. Manly, Parramatta, and Concord played mixed foursomes, and other clubs had the ordinary competitions.

On Monday some of the best performances were:—R. Sayers, 78—6=72; G. S. Freeman, 77—4=73; and H. G. V. Adler, 77—2=75, at Manly; J. H. Brown 153—6=147, at Bonnie Doon for 36 holes; and A. R. Marks, 90—15=75, and J. S. Meeks, 99—24=75, at Concord. The president's trophy at Killara attracted an entry of over 60, D. S. Evans having the best morning round with a well-compiled 86—15=71. In the afternoon W. A. Maschwitz, a young player, showed very promising form, and following on a round of 76 net in the morning, returned a card of 94—25=69, the aggregate giving him a comfortable win, with 145 net. Maschwitz, who is a son of the well-known Killara player, has an easy style, and should continue to improve.

Drummoyne played the qualifying round of the club championship, J. B. O'Neill leading a very even lot with 179 for the 36 holes. Ten strokes was the difference between first and eighth man to qualify.

BASEBALL.

THE COMPETITION MATCHES.

Saturday's play was productive of good class baseball in all divisions; in fact, it was better than has hitherto obtained this season. The contest between Waverley and Paddington at Waverley kept a large crowd keenly interested from start to finish. It does not often occur in local baseball that more than nine innings are required to arrive at a decision; and the fact that such was the case at Waverley is proof that excellent combination and good form was shown. Petersham put up another fine game against Burwood, who, however, held them with the exception of one innings only, in which Petersham scored two-thirds of their total of 12 runs.

The second tie game of the season in the district division occurred at Mosman, the premiers and Lane Cove each scoring 12 runs in an eight-innings game. Unfortunately, the light proved too bad for a decider to be played. Leichhardt registered the second "chicago" of the season against University, at Leichhardt, the first being that of Waverley against Lane Cove. A feature of the afternoon was the good attendances at all the local centres, and, this notwithstanding the counter attractions.

The positions of the District Division teams are as follow:—Leichhardt .833, Waverley .833, Petersham .833, University .500, Burwood .414, Paddington, .333, Lane Cove, .166, Mosman-North Sydney .083. In calculating these percentages, the equal-scores games, Lane Cove v Burwood, and Mosman-North Sydney v Lane Cove have been regarded as "ties." There is no doubt that this course was the intention of the association in regard to such competition matches. The baseball "guide," however, classes such games as "drawn." This being the case, steps will have to be taken to carry out the intention of the association, and there is no reason why the necessary amendment of the "Guide" rule dealing with the matter should not be retrospective.

Petersham kept up their reputation for good fielding on Saturday against Burwood. Their average of field errors for the six games completed, 5.16, is a good one, and must count in the winning of matches. Petersham brought off two double plays on Saturday which are worth noting. The first was a fly caught by H. W. Turner (catcher); a smart throw to R. J. Oram then cut off the runner who had ventured too far off first base. The second was a good pick up and throw by T. J. E. Andrews (short stop), which cut the runner off at first; Oram's throw to V. Donowa was accurate, cutting off T. Owen, who was trying to make third base. Burwood also got in one double play, R. F. Harvey's throw to H. Granger (first base), after catching a foul fly, being excellent. J. Moriarty again pitched well for the winners. Starting practically without experience as a pitcher, he has pitched throughout the six games played, with an average of 5.66 runs scored by the opposing teams. Petersham defeated Burwood on the two occasions on which they met last season, the scores being 5-4 and 20-8.

In the Waverley-Paddington match the all-round fielding of both teams was excellent. Paddington looked like winners at the end of the eighth innings, when the score was 3-1 in their favour; in fact, up to the end of Waverley's sixth innings the opposition pitching and fielding was so good that the local team had not opened their account with the scorer. In their last innings, however, B. Stafford, at right-field for Paddington, missed an easy chance, which eventually meant two runs. In the extra innings necessary Waverley hit to some purpose, putting three men over the home plate. Paddington could only respond with one run. C. Vaughan in this innings forwarded the runner to the home plate, but overran third base himself and was outed, the game ending amidst intense excitement.

University were without the assistance of several of their leading players (absent on vacation) at Leichhardt on Saturday, which fact made the local team's task much easier than it would otherwise would have been. Some of the substitutes were rather "green," but they deserve credit for fulfilling their engagement. Leichhardt proved much too strong in batting, as although F. Farrar pitched in good form, they scored nine runs in eight innings. The scholars found H. Frank's deliveries hard to negotiate, and failed to place a single runner on the home section, although on three occasions they managed to get a man on third base. The game cannot be described as interesting, the local team having matters too much their own way.

Mosman-North Sydney and Lane Cove played an equal score game (12 all) in eight innings each. Neither side has yet won a match this season, and their performances continue in marked contrast to those of last season. Both teams scored freely, Mosman-North Sydney being in the lead at the end of the sixth innings, 9—6. Lane Cove, however, hit H. Woolcott (pitcher) off in the seventh, and tallied four runners; another two in their last made them equal with the local side, who had scored three in their seventh time at bat.

ENGLISH CRICKET.

AUSTRALIAN PLAYERS.

F. A. TARRANT'S BENEFIT.

The Anglo-Australian element in English county cricket forms a very interesting subject for reflection. At the present time it is only a very small element numerically, but great prominence has been given to it recently in virtue of the performances of its chief representative, F. A. Tarrant. The ex-Victorian "migrated" to England eleven years ago without having made any special name for himself in Australian cricket. He got an engagement on the ground staff at Lord's, and, having resided for two years in the county, duly qualified for Middlesex. Since then he has served the county of his adoption faithfully and continuously, and in consequence last week reaped the reward of good service, viz., a "benefit" match. The cables have been silent as to the amount realised, but with ordinary luck it could not have been less than four figures. Tarrant has made himself a very popular professional, and has for some seasons been recognised as one of the best all-rounders in English cricket; his county is one that has a good metropolitan following. These are things that make for a big "benefit" along with the accessories, a strong county in opposition, and fine weather. Presumably, therefore, Tarrant had a fine benefit—an excellent bonus for good service. In this respect Tarrant's experience differs very materially from that of both A. Marshall and A. Kermode, who qualified and played for some seasons with Surrey and Lancashire respectively. Both, had they kept their places in these county teams, would in all probability have reaped much bigger benefits than Tarrant has secured, for the reason that both Surrey and Lancashire are much bigger financial counties with more profitable engagements than Middlesex. The custom is for the "beneficiare" to choose any home match during the season for his benefit. Kermode could thus have chosen the Lancashire-Yorkshire fixture—a certain £2000 at least in fine weather—and Marshall could have secured the lucrative gate of the Surrey v Kent fixture. Neither, however, kept his place in the county eleven long enough to qualify for these rich "benefits." The requisite qualification is good service over a reasonable period of time, usually about ten years.

PROFESSIONALS' EMOLUMENTS.

These emoluments must seem rather alluring to the aspiring young cricketer, and it may not be out of place, therefore, to look a little deeper into the precise position of the Anglo-Australian professional in English cricket. In the first place it takes him two years' continuous residence to qualify for a county. During this time he will have to live laborious days on the ground staff of his county club at a stated salary. He will be expected to do more or less bowling at the practice nets, to touch his cap to the amateurs who come to practise and receive from them "oleum palmi" in return for his efforts to make them think they are great players in great form. It pays to do this. He will get plenty of match practice, according to his usefulness, for the club and ground, and if he be lucky may get a few odd engagements in first-class matches that are not county championship fixtures, for which he will receive the ordinary professional fees in addition to his salary. Tarrant, for instance, during his probationary days, played in a fair number of such matches with M.C.C. teams, and, although his early performances did not give an inkling to his subsequent success, these matches offered him a very desirable opportunity of thoroughly acquainting himself with English conditions of play, and of improving his game before taking his momentous trials in the county eleven.

From the time of this trial onward the professional's income mainly depends upon his ability to keep a regular place in the county eleven. Payments are not the same in all counties: besides some counties play more matches than others. Middlesex, for instance, plays the minimum of matches, eight home and home engagements—i.e., 16 matches, whereas the maximum is fourteen home and home engagements, or 28 matches. Tarrant, however, was kept fairly well occupied in M.C.C. fixtures, which are usually so arranged as not to clash in any way with those of Middlesex. The following scale of payments may be taken as a fair sample of those made to its professionals by one of the biggest counties playing two matches per week nearly all the season:—£6 per match for home engagements, an extra £1 away from home, and another £1 if the match be won. "Talent" money is also allowed at approximately the following rate:—£1 for every individual innings of 50, £2 for 100 runs, and so on, at the rate of £1 for every 50 runs. Five wickets in an innings earns talent money for the bowler to the extent of £1 or more, according to circumstances. Different counties adopt various methods for allotting their "talent" money, but, generally speaking, any play of particular or special merit, either in batting, bowling, fielding, or wicket-keeping, is rewarded according to its value to the side on something like the above basis. In Gentlemen v Players' engagements the professionals receive £10 per match; for county matches against Australians or South Africans £10, and £20 for test match engagements. This will account to some extent for the big proportion of amateurs sometimes figuring in these contests; it keeps down expenses to play amateurs instead of professionals. Some professionals, however, are indispensables, and Tarrant is one of these. For years he has been the mainstay of Middlesex teams, and also of M.C.C., and he is never omitted from Players' teams, or indeed, any team for which he might be available. He has never played in test matches. Though he has played so long for Middlesex he is still regarded in England as an Australian cricketer and ineligible for English teams, but that he has not been invited to assist Australian teams in test matches in England, the writer can state positively has always been a matter of surprise to Englishmen.

"OFF" SEASON PAYMENTS.

Returning, however, to the subject of the professional's remuneration. In the "off" season he is usually allowed a small retaining fee—30s or upwards per week; perhaps, he may be allowed this all the year in addition to his other earnings. It depends very much upon the man and his value to the county side. During the "off" season, too, he may follow any trade, business, or profession he likes, and county authorities are always very pleased to help their professionals in obtaining good and suitable employment. Out of all this income the professional has, of course, to keep himself and pay all his own travelling and living expenses all the time. This pay, along with the prospective "bonus" or benefit—which in George Hirst's and J. T. Tyldesley's cases amounted to nearly £4000—may look very tempting to a young Australian with errant tendencies.

SOCIAL DISTINCTIONS.

But there are other sides to the question. A young Australian finds himself placed in many awkward situations and with many obstacles to surmount, both competitive and individual. For one thing, he may find not a little difficulty in adapting himself to the social position assigned to himself and the amateur. It may, and will, at first seem to him incongruous that he should be obliged at all seasons, and in all circumstances connected with the game of cricket, to recognise the social superiority of the amateur cricketer. The social line between the amateur and the professional is most sharply drawn. The professional stands to the amateur in very much the same relation that a servant does to his master, or to his fellow-servant's master. He touches his cap to the amateur, addresses him as "Sir," and speaks of him to another amateur as "Mr. Brown" or "Mr. White." Along with other professionals, he has a separate dressing room from the amateurs; he does not lunch in the same room with the amateurs; he enters the field of play through a different gate, and so that spectators and the general public shall make no mistake about the matter, the scoring cards and the newspaper reports of the games give amateur cricketers their initials (with sometimes Mr. or Esq. as well), while the "pro." is described by his plain surname. Thus you may read that Hayward and Mr. C. B. Fry went in to bat and that the former was caught by Mr. P. F. Warner off Tarrant's second ball. To sum up in a line, the amateur in English cricket may do practically as he pleases; the professional must do as he is told.

TARRANT'S ADAPTABILITY.

For the Australian, moulded in democratic fashion, it is not easy to fit accurately into the old professional groove, but Tarrant has kept his place tactfully and cheerfully with the same stolid determination that characterises his play, and at the present time enjoys not only the patronage, but the universal respect of amateur cricketers in general, and especially the patrons of Lord's. Though not what might be termed a brilliant player, he is always a "trier" who can always be depended upon to keep his head and give of his best in his own quiet, methodical, unobtrusive way. His skill, of course, has earned for him a great reputation and a good living, but it is not too much to say that he is esteemed even more for his quiet, manly and respectful conduct both on and off the field, and that will have gone a very long way towards giving him a rattling benefit. Tarrant is only 33 years of age, so that he has done well.

AN AUSTRALIAN AMATEUR'S ADVICE.

And now lest any young Australian may feel tempted to emulate the career of Tarrant by trying his luck as a professional cricketer in the "home" market, perhaps we may quote the advice given by Dr. L. O. S. Poidevin some years ago on this subject.

"Think well before you choose; England does not want you—but, though some counties will not of a certainty receive you, others may be more than glad to commandeer your services. The talented young Australian is bound to assert himself, provided he gets the chance. Therefore, in any case, make a good beginning by seeking the advice of those who know before deciding upon your course and your county—for some counties will be no good to you. Above all, do not offer yourself in the open market. One cannot say more."

POLO.

THE GLEN INNES CARNIVAL.

The Glen Innes carnival was successfully played through last week, when six teams, including the local A and B sides, competed. The visiting clubs were:—Goondiwindi (Q.), Moree, Muswellbrook, and Mindaribba. Last year the Queensland club sent two teams, the brothers Nivison wore the Ohio colours, and Moree and the home teams took part; so, numerically, this year's carnival was equally supported.

The challenge cup, held by Goondiwindi, has been brought south by the Muswellbrook A team, who may justly claim to be the champions of the northern districts. The border team were easily beaten by the Moree players in the first game of this tournament, but the cup defenders were a weak side, which only included one of the old A players, Mr. J. White.

In the cup final Glen Innes put up a very determined game against the Royal Blues, the last period being, perhaps, the best. The local men, however, frequently lost opportunities through inaccuracy in hitting, which may be accounted for by anxiety, and the high tension up to which the players are wrought; but, on the other hand, it suggests want of practice. The scores at the conclusion of the game were:—Muswellbrook, 5 goals; Glen Innes, 2 goals. Mr. D. M. Bell has been credited with giving the best all-round display at the carnival.

The form recently shown by the Muswellbrook men has been decidely good, and, as there are some weeks for practice before the Dudley Cup Carnival, this team may carry away with them another trophy to add to the club's honours.

GENERAL NOTES.

The good attendance of the Sydney Polo Club members at Kensington continues, and some good practice has been done; but to have any chance of success against Narromine or Muswellbrook, the A men must get together and play through the games together. Every member should consider the club's interests before his own individual enjoyment, therefore, it is hoped, that henceforward the "probables" will be pitted against the next alternate best fours, and be allowed to play together throughout the full game.

The Quirindi carnival dates have been fixed for August 3, 4, and 5; but, unfortunately, Moree club has clashed with these arrangements. It is not likely, however, that the junior club will adhere to these dates, as both clubs depend practically upon the same support. Our correspondent included Ohio in the Glen Innes probable nominations, but it is understood that he brothers Nivison will not wield their sticks this season.

At Quirindi active preparations are already being made. The members of the Tamarang Club, under whose auspices the popular carnival is held, have been hard at practice under the direction of Mr. J. M. Allison, of Coomoo Coomoo, the famous No. 1 of the old Tamarang team, who still takes the field to keep himself in form. Their recent wins at Muswellbrook over the Glen Innes and Mindaribba teams have put the young Tamarangs in great heart, and the wearers of the red and blue hope to make a good showing at the local festival. The team will probably consist of: Mr. J. W. Bridges, Mr. Ken. Binnie, Mr. Wallace McMaster, and Mr. Clyde Allison.

INTERNATIONAL CUP.

According to information received from London by the latest mail, the British team as cabled on May 13, viz., Captain Tomkinson, Captain Bingham, Major Barrett, and Captain Cheape, was not the original selection, and was, therefore, not the side beaten in the practice games. The team first chosen was:—Captain Tomkinson (1), Major Mathew-Lannowe (2), Major Barrett (3), and Major C. F. Hunter (back). It was rumoured in America that, owing to the bad showing of the original four, Lord Wimborne had decided to withdraw his challenge; however, simultaneously with these notes, the result of the first game for international honours may be in print.

MOTORING.

INDIANAPOLIS RACE.

WON BY FRANCE.

According to a cablegram received on Monday by the Dunlop Company, the annual 500 miles race on the Indianapolis (U.S.A.) Speedway was won by Thomas on a Delage car. This is the most famous and richest motor car race in the world, and annually attracts the best-known drivers and cars from all parts of the world.

Thomas, the cable states, covered the 500 miles in the record time of 6h 3m 45s. Duray, who drove a Peugeot (the smallest car in the race) was placed second, and Guyot (on another Delage) third. Cars of French manufacture therefore filled the first three places. There were 27 cars entered for this year's event, the Delage team forming part of a very strong contingent from Europe. The Delage cars, it may be said, have for many years figured prominently in the French Grand Prix and other important European contests. The performance of the Peugeot serves to further demonstrate the great strides made in the efficiency of the light car, as Duray's machine had a four-cylinder engine, with a bore of only 3.7 inches, and a stroke of 6.14 inches. The speed recorded in this year's race—an average of 82½ miles per hour—is exceedingly high considering the number of contestants on the track, which is only 2½ miles around, and the fact that so many stoppages have to be made on the long journey for tyre replacements and to replenish fuel supplies. The winner, judging by previous contests, would receive about £7000 in cash prizes and bonuses.

1913—J. Goux (France), 6h 39m 37s.
1914—Thomas (France), 6h 3m 45s.

When Goux won last year there was a great struggle for the first 100 miles, but from then on the Frenchman had the race in his own hands, eventually winning easily. Judging by the high speed recorded last week this year's contest must have been a terrific one to have resulted in 3 miles per hour being added to the previous best. The event is most popular in America, and draws a tremendous gate. The grandstands at the Speedway have a seating accommodation for 40,000 spectators, whilst the grounds hold a further 160,000.

FORE-HAND STROKE

IN LAWN TENNIS.

BY J. C. PARKE.

[ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.]

It is a general precept that in attempting to explain anything one should always start at the beginning, so in this case I shall try to follow the counsel of the sages, and start with what I consider to be the very beginning, viz.—the grip.

First of all, do not use too thick a handle, or the result will be that you will tire and strain the muscles of your fingers and wrist, and thus lose firmness of hold, and that elusive quality known amongst the more expert as "touch." Exactly the same remarks apply to a heavy racket and for exactly the same reasons; 14½oz, with a medium balance, is quite heavy enough for any man, and I myself use a 14oz, with a similar balance. As to the shape of the handle, I prefer an oval one as it seems to fit more firmly into my hand, but this, of course, is a matter of choice, and each person must please himself. Just a word of advice here—having obtained a racket which suits you, try to get all subsequent ones as nearly as possible models of the old one, and do not chop and change about.

HOW TO HOLD THE RACKET.

And now, how are you to hold this beautiful racket? Well, I can only tell you how I hold it myself, and explain a little as to the grips used by others, but, again, I do not wish to be dogmatic as to what is the best method. Personally I fit the handle as far as possible into the "V" between my thumb and first finger, so that the back flatness lies practically across the balls of the fingers, and my thumb closes across the front flatness, while my fingers press the side up into the "V." The result is that when I stretch my arm stiff out from my side I have a straight-faced racket with which to meet the ball, and I also find that I can play the back-hand without altering my grip in the slightest. H. L. Doherty and the late "R.F." both used practically the same fore-hand grip as above, and altered it slightly for the back-hand, but A. F. Wilding holds his racket more at the back for his famous top-spin drive, and then has to alter considerably to use the Doherty grip for the back-hand. The Australians hold even further round than Wilding, but then they use the same side of their racket for the back-hand as for the fore-hand. It is a style adapted to the rushing net game in which the majority of them specialise, but I would certainly not advise any English player to try to adopt it because certain ground strokes must be hopelessly cramped as a natural consequence.

HITTING THE BALL.

The next question is, how are you to hit the ball so as to obtain the best results? Well, everyone is agreed that the feet ought to be parallel with the line of direction in which it is desired to send the ball, and that may be considered as settled and essential. Personally, I start the swing with the head of the racket well back and about waist high, and my arm practically stiff. The swing ought to be one easy movement with the weight of the body coming forward from the right foot to the left, until at the end of the stroke the right foot is off the ground, and one is ready to move to any new position to receive the return. Too much importance cannot be laid on this "foot-work" as it is called, for if the fore-hand stroke be finished with the weight on the right foot, it will be found that not only is the stroke lacking in power, but also in recovering position those few seconds are lost which so often mean winning or losing the rally.

The head of the racket is coming through along with the weight, and the aim and object of every person ought to be to hit the ball in the middle of the swing with a straight-faced racket. At the moment of impact, I begin to turn the face over so that I finish the swing with the knuckles pointing upwards. I find that this imparts considerable forward spin to the ball, and adds tremendously to its speed off the ground, and, in addition, balls which may appear to be going across the lines very often duck at the last moment and drop just inside. For myself, I prefer to hit the ball when it is between the waist and shoulder high, and on the ordinary English grass courts, this is the same thing as saying "at the top of the hop." It is also the natural point at which to hit it, as the ball has less motion than at any other moment—the upward or downward motion having for an instant disappeared—and it also affords the largest available space of the opponent's court into which it is possible to play the ball down.

Of course, the foregoing is a description of how to produce the ordinary straight-forward drive with a little spin, but the so-called "top-spin" drive is produced quite differently, and is only used by one or two players in this country. In it the head of the racket starts very low down, comes upward much quicker than in the ordinary drive, and finishes high in the air. The face commences to turn over actually before the moment of impact: the wrist action forms an all-important part in the stroke. By its means the ball is made to dip very quickly across the net, but at the same time it has nothing like the severity or pace of the straight-forward drive, and gives a poor result for the amount of energy expended in its production. It is useful, however, against a volleyer who may find himself continually caught with this horrible dipping ball at his feet, and even when entrenched at the net he may experience great difficulty in dealing effectively with the spin added to the dip. It was just this weapon which Wilding found so efficacious in dealing with the (usually) deadly volleying attack of McLoughlin.

PRACTISING OFF THE COURT

Upon beginners and medium players who really desire to improve, and even upon players who consider themselves beyond the medium stage, I cannot too strongly urge the advisability of practising off the court, in addition to practising on the court.

Against an opponent we are almost always so carried away by the desire to win that all our endeavours are directed to getting the ball over the net as best we can, and in consequence we forget all about an easy swing, a good follow-through, foot-work etc., and so we go on day after day with the same old faults, and we cannot understand why we do not improve more quickly.

Well, now my advice is, start practising the swing in any odd moments, when you have nothing better to do. You will constantly see the best golfers practising their swing, so why not do the same at lawn tennis? Take up your stand with your feet parallel with the line of direction in which you wish to play the imaginary ball. Then imagine you are hitting a ball about waist high and half way between your feet. Start with the weight on the right foot and with the head of the racket well back and moderately low. Swing forward steadily and easily, meeting the imaginary ball with a straight-faced racket. Begin to turn the racket over on top of the ball immediately after impact, and finish well forward with all the weight on the left foot, and with the head of the racket pointing in the direction of the imaginary flight of the ball. Do this again and again until the entire movement is one whole, free from jerks or hinges, and until you find that you are beginning to do it instinctively.

Then try it with a real ball against a wall, being very careful to have your feet correctly placed for each stroke, and keeping your swing at all costs. At first you will probably be extremely surprised at how very bad you are, and at how hopeless it feels, but persevere—it is worth it—and you will again be surprised at how quickly things begin to come right for you, and it is then that you will appreciate your practice at the imaginary ball.

I am not talking of what I know nothing about, for I have gone through it all myself, and I am speaking from long and bitter experience. Some time about 1906 I decided that I would never become a good player with the back-hand I then possessed. It was not too bad a back-hand of a defensive kind, but I had difficulty in putting the ball into certain parts of the court, and I found I was finishing the strokes with the knuckles up, thereby showing that I was under the ball, and so took all the speed off it. As I had no one to teach me and no model to follow, I decided to learn to play it with a swing exactly the same as for the fore-hand, but, of course, finishing this time with the finger nails uppermost. I worked at the new swing both without a ball and with a ball against a wall, and in my spare moments during the following winter; continued it during the summer—sometimes succeeding and sometimes relapsing—and I worked at it again the next winter, until my perseverance was rewarded, and now I practically do not mind whether the ball comes to my fore-hand or my back-hand.

THE RUNNING DRIVE.

I suppose no article from me on the fore-hand stroke would be complete without a few words upon the running drive, or, as it is sometimes called, "the Irish drive." I cannot claim to be the originator of it, as it was first exploited by my countryman, W. J. Hamilton, who won the English championship as far back as 1890, and it was at that time that his favourite shot gained for itself the name of "the Irish drive."

I must confess I had never even heard of it until somebody discovered that I played it in the same way as W. J. Hamilton, but it is a peculiar coincidence that the next person to use this running drive with any success should be another Irishman.

Perhaps after all there may be something in the name, and it may be specially adapted to our national temperament. It has always been a natural stroke with me, and it feels so easy and simple that there seems to be nothing to explain or to say about it. The only necessities for playing it are good footwork, judgment of your distance from the ball, and balance—though in practice the second two are sub-heads of the first, for if the footwork is right, the judgment must have been correct, and the balance inevitably follows. In playing the stroke you have probably only about a square foot of court into which to put the ball, with the knowledge that failure to hit the mark will cost you the point, so it is fairly evident that if your footwork is the least fraction wrong your chance of a winner practically vanishes. The only secret of success in playing this particular shot seems to be run at the ball, hit it as hard as you can, and trust in your lucky star.

Do not be too anxious to win—time enough for that in a serious match—but try to play each stroke correctly both as regards footwork and swing, and do not mind if you are beaten in consequence—your time will come if you persevere. Above all, do not avoid your weak point, but rather let as much play come to it as possible—I still run round balls to play them with my back-hand. Try to beat a weaker player by attacking his strong point with your weak point, and you will find it not only excellent practice, but also a good match.

Do not develop a favourite shot from any particular position to such an extent that you are in any way tied down to it, but learn to play into any part of your opponent's court from any part of your own with equal facility.

Finally, never forget for a moment that the beginning and end of success in lawn tennis is "Footwork."

ANGLING.

AUSTRALIAN GAME FISHES.

Big game fishing—angling for the great pelagic ocean fishes that at certain periods frequent our shores in enormous numbers—is a sport that has wonderfully increased in popularity, and one which provides the maximum of enjoyment. Until the last two or three years game fishing was almost confined to the still waters of Port Hacking, etc., where very fine sport among good-sized salmon, tailer, and kingfish was found. But anglers are keen to obtain the largest fish—the record trout, the heaviest tunny or Spanish mackerel—hence, the quiet waters of Port Hacking, etc., have been practically deserted by the more enthusiastic anglers, who find that Port Stephens and places further north provide greater numbers and larger fish, and also offer better opportunity of filling the angler's ambition.

The quest of the tunny or leaping tuna (Thunnus thynnus), which is now quite common on our coast, has been the favourite pastime of Santa Catalina anglers for many years, and is ably described by Professor Holder in one of his fascinating works. The professor's record tuna weighed 183lb. These magnificent fish have been known to fight the angler for 14 hours at a stretch, towing the boat for many miles. Up to the present no game fish approaching the size of Professor Holder's tunny has been captured by anglers in our waters, but it appears to be only a matter of time and opportunity when the report of one of our Sydney sportsmen waging successful battle with one of these monster mackerel will be received. Very large tunny have been seen, and occasional specimens captured by fishermen, so that they visit our waters, and, like their smaller brethren, may easily fall victim to the angler's trailing garfish.

One of the game fishes which has been providing sport at Port Stephens during the last couple of months is the Spanish mackerel, belonging to the same family (Scombridae) as the tunny. These fish grow to very large size; they are extremely fast swimmers and ideal sporting fish. So far, the size of those caught in our waters has been something under 40lb, but they, like the tunny, grow very much larger. Some years ago a great body of these fish, evidently pursued by porpoises or sharks, became beached near Wollongong. Mr. David G. Stead, in his "Fishes of Australia," records the fact that a mound of them two miles in length was discovered. The fish had evidently piled themselves on the top of each other in their struggle to escape from their pursuers, and had been left high and dry by the receding tide. These fish are much esteemed in America, and command a high price.

The kingfish—common on our coast at almost any time of the year—is another splendid game fish. This is the "Amber fish" of America, and grows to a weight of about 100lb. Shoals of these up to 20lb or so are nearly always present in Port Hacking, Port Stephens, etc. They move about, like the mackerels mentioned above, in vast shoals, and come readily to a spinning bait trained behind a launch. The Australian salmon (Arripis trutta) is a game fish of great importance, and although it does not reach such large size as the previously-mentioned kinds, it is a sporting and food fish of good repute. A 5lb or 6lb salmon properly prepared is excellent eating. Great shoals frequent our coasts, especially during the warmer months. Their average weight is about 9lb.

AMERICA CUP.

THE PRELIMINARY TRIALS.

The news to hand from America with regard to the exhaustive trials which have already been started between the aspirants for the honour of being selected for the defence of the international trophy, and the information with regard to their dimensions, indicates that the main factors in the coming struggle for the supremacy of the yachting world will be the matter of design and skill of the skippers and crews of the competitors. The New York yachtsmen have not taken advantage of the right which they possess to construct cutters varying in waterline measurement from 65ft to 90ft, or two-masted vessel varying on the load water-line from 80ft to 115ft, but have contented themselves with three different designs of yachts measuring approximately the same as the challenger as far as hull measurements for rating purposes are concerned. Provided that both British and American designers are equally skilful, the test will be mainly of the seamanship of the representatives of the two nations.

As it is not necessary for the New York Yacht Club to declare which of the three boats will be ultimately selected as its representative until the day of the race, the trials will doubtless be continued for some time before there is any indication of which yacht is likely to be favoured by the selection committee, and during the next three months the skippers will have ample time to acquire a thorough knowledge of their respective craft, and with the designers complete the tuning up of the boats so that from the trim and equipment of the yachts the very best results may be obtained.

FOOTBALL.

THE RUGBY UNION GAME.

STATE TEAM VICTORIOUS.

It is four years since the New South Wales team returned from Queensland unbeaten, so that the members of the present team are to be complimented on their achievement. The northern officials contend that the standard of play in Queensland is higher than it has been for many years; if so, this fact accentuates the merit of the performance. Such men as Dwyer, Wood, Wogan, Reynolds, and George were absent from our side, but the form of the men who replaced them was such that the combination of the three-quarter line was maintained, thus demonstrating the ability of the younger players to rise to the occasion. The Brisbane papers comment very favourably on the attractiveness of the Welshmen's play. The return engagements in Sydney will begin next Saturday. The Queensland selectors have endeavoured to strengthen their side by including several players from outside Brisbane.

An innovation is to be tried by the Rugby Union in connection with the early fixtures on Saturday, as, instead of the usual game, several matches with teams of seven aside will be played. The rules will be Rugby Union, but the game, which is frequently played in New Zealand to ensure good condition, is so exacting that very short periods are used instead of the regular forty minutes. Thus all the district teams will take the field on the same day, and the selectors will be able to witness nearly 100 players in action.

The competition games again demonstrated the evenness of the majority of the teams. Two matches were won by small margins, represented by goal kicking. The leaders, however, had fairly easy wins. The value of goal-kicking was illustrated by the fact that Glebe scored five tries to three against Newtown, and won by 22 to 9, while North Sydney scored five tries to three against Western Suburbs, and lost by 15 points to 16. One conversion in the latter match would have meant victory. At University Oval the kicking was good, as Fenner's two attempts from the boundary line were excellent. Buist kicked two goals and also three posters; while Fusedale notched a nice field goal. In the interstate game in Brisbane also the kicking improved, as Tasker was successful in his two attempts.

South Sydney preserved their unbeaten record against University. Although the losers were able to withstand the hard forward play of the winners, and thus give their backs some opportunities in the early portion of the game, South Sydney looked winners in the first half, and gradually strengthened their position until they had their opponents a badly rattled side. The lack of heavy forwards was a big advantage to University, but South Sydney's vigorous and sustained forward work will prove very troublesome to the majority of the teams. The backs also played well, Buist's sure handling being most serviceable.

The game between Glebe and Newtown at Wentworth Park proved very attractive, the loose passing bout between both backs and forwards forming the principal feature of play. However, the defence of the winners was sounder than that of Newtown, and the combination of the backs was also slightly superior. The losers made strenuous efforts towards the finish, but the defence withstood the attacks. Glebe's inside backs were especially good, and their form made the difference in the two teams.

The much-improved St. George team received a surprise from Balmain at Drummoyne Oval. The absence of Elliott at half-back made a big difference to the losers, as it was in this position that they were outclassed. The dribbling rushes by both sets of forwards were good, and severely tested the defence; but Balmain's determination in this respect brought them their win, as the St George players were attacking strongly at full time.

North Sydney and Western Suburbs had a very even match at St. Luke's Oval, but although beaten, the Shoremen held a slight advantage throughout. The winners had the better of play with the ball at the toe, but with the ball in the air, play favoured North Sydney. Both sets of backs shone in loose, irregular attacks made from faulty kicks, etc. A field goal by White made the difference in the scores at the finish, although Mayo, who made great efforts to win the game, scored twice near the finish.

Randwick outpointed Manly in every department of the game in their match at Rushcutter Bay. The forwards proved heavier, faster, and more capable in handling and running with the ball. The backs, although still faulty in handling, worked into position well, and were given plenty of room by their opponents.

THE ASSOCIATION GAME.

VICTORIAN VISIT.

TWO VICTORIES.

The Victorians opened their visit auspiciously at Granville on Saturday, when they defeated the local team by 2 goals to nil. The visitors undoubtedly played the better football, inasmuch as they displayed greater smartness and alertness in their movements, the halves and backs being particularly noticeable in their dashes across field to intercept the wing attacks. Both sides were somewhat faulty with regard to the passing among the forwards. The Granville men, as a rule, sent the ball too squarely across the field, whilst the Victorians were inclined to drive it too far ahead.

Granville were a little ragged in their play in the first half. They brought the ball on to their opponents' goal line on several occasions, but in the majority of instances they were kept well out, and only three times was the Victorian goalkeeper called upon to save before the interval, a good shot by Barrell being the only one to trouble him. Victoria, on the other hand, got closer to the goal. They forced five corners in the first half, and Mobbs received half-a-dozen shots, Ruddiman beating him after the game had been in progress about 20 minutes. The attacks by the visitors were remarkable for the number of times the ball was headed behind close to the goal.

In the second half Granville showed to better advantage, and confined play to within a short distance of their opponents' goal for a considerable time. The only spurts by the Victorians in the first 20 minutes were credited to Ruddiman, in one of which he scored the second goal. The visitors at length rallied, but their shooting was rather high, and in the final stages Granville were close up to the Victorian backs.

The players that stood out most prominently among the Victorians were McMillan and Ruddiman; the weakest were Johnston, who commenced well, and Wells. McMillan excelled both in footwork and heading, though in a few shots near the close he sent the ball much too high. As centre-half, he had frequent struggles for possession, and, although beaten a few times by Hilder and Hoffman, he proved invaluable in attack and defence. Ruddiman's strong, vigorous running and fine control of the ball make him an ideal centre-forward, and a hard man to stop. Brown (inside-right) was often dangerous, particularly in heading; his shots were a little on the slow side. Grieves, fast and neat at outside-right, had few chances, as Anderson, who otherwise played well, neglected him when opportunity offered. Fisher, the left half, who has a peculiar habit of opening his arms with fingers outstretched when running for the ball, met the ball coolly and cleverly. The backs divided honours; Lowe was the more solid in the first half; but Kelly outshone his partner in the second. The former, who is the stronger kick, was inclined at times to forget his position and wander among the halves. Twigg, in goal, did all that was asked of him. He saved 10 shots, including a penalty kick, in a manner that stamps him a very able custodian.

The Granville forwards lacked the general dash of the opposing front rank. Barrell sent in a couple of splendid shots, but appeared to be worried by the suddenness of his tacklers. Watkins and Cottam were disappointing; the latter was slow in deciding on a movement when he got the ball—an unprofitable proceeding by a forward when opposed by active defenders. It is hard to understand why the Granville selectors preferred Cottam to Melliar-Smith. Butcher was slow in the first half, but improved as the game advanced—his passing became better, and his left-foot shooting more accurate. He was, however, rather below form. Hoffman played strongly and willingly throughout, though a little wanting in the cleverness and finesse that mark the skilled forward.

The halves were firm and reliable in their work; Moore bustled in his usual style, whilst Hilder relied on his steady, resourceful footwork and neat heading. The backs kicked soundly, Gill being the more prominent in tackling. Mobbs, in common with Twigg, had to contend with 10 shots, five of which were sent in by Ruddiman, and, though not quite so attractive as the Victorian, came out of a few close and dangerous scrimmages very creditably.

VICTORIA'S ONE GOAL WIN.

The conditions in the interstate match were not very pleasant. Rain fell part of the time, and the ball soon became heavy. During the first twenty minutes of the game the New South Wales forwards made frequent incursions into the Victorians' territory, but beyond a long drive by Nash, and another by Wyber, the goalie was not troubled. The visitors were repulsed by Gill and Sneddon for the most part, though Ruddiman once shot badly when in good position. In the latter part of the first half the Victorians were better in attack, but when the spell came neither side had made any sensational attempts at goal-scoring, and honours were fairly even.

The only score of the match took place five minutes after re-starting. Anderson (outside left) centred nicely across the goal, the ball travelling along the ground. Ross, instead of turning round to face the ball and trying to block it, kicked at it as it passed in front of him. He missed badly, and Grieves and Brown dashed, almost interlocked, into the opening, the former shooting fast and low into the net. It has been stated that Brown scored, but Grieves was undoubtedly the goal-kicker. Thereafter, the Victorians practically monopolised the attacks. During the second half they forced the ball over the line no fewer than fourteen times—in the majority of cases, close to the goal—and, in addition, Lowe had twelve shots directed at him. When it is pointed out that, after the interval, the Victorians only kicked out from goal five times, and that Twigg had only three easy shots to save, some idea may be gained of the manner in which the visitors performed in the second spell.

Brown was, without any doubt, the pick of the visiting forwards. He was fast, and constantly on the ball, and by his neat footwork often outwitted his tacklers. Grieves was better in the second half than in the first, when his kicking was too hard and too far forward. Later, he centered very cleverly, and kept up his pace to the end. Ruddiman was a trifle "off" in his work near the goal; though passing well to the outsides, he failed in his shooting. The weakest of the forward line was Church, who did one or two good things, but was sometimes seen on the wrong side of the field, and at others too far back—a fault that could not possibly be urged against the other forwards—who pestered the home defence by being well up on the backs whenever the chances occurred. Anderson, though essentially a half-back, did a large amount of solid work on the left wing.

The Victorian halves, owing to the splendid control of the game exercised by the forwards in the second half, did their best work in the early stages, when the New South Wales forwards more prominent. McMillan's tackling and kicking were characterised by neatness and quick despatch; Lowe was vigorous; whilst Fisher probably had the easiest position of all. Hyde and Raitt, as full-backs, made their clearances safely, though neither played with the brilliance that Kelly showed in the second half against Granville. Twigg had an easy time, but made certain of every kick by propelling the ball a safe distance.

The home forwards failed to combine effectively, and appeared easy prey for the Victorian defenders. Wyber was conspicuous early in the game, but the position (inside-right) seemed strange to him. Grogan had few opportunities, and those came in the second half, when he made a few good runs and got in a couple of accurate centre-kicks. Blake also made several fast dashes, but, generally, the centres by the New South Wales men were too square, and Doerner was consequently at a disadvantage. On one or two occasions, however, the tall centre-forward appeared to take things too quietly, and neglected to display the vigour necessary for the successful fulfilment of his mission. To say that Masters did not make a good substitute for Carroll in the inside left position would not be correct. Carroll may be slower than he was some seasons back, but his tricky footwork opens up the game for the outside man in a way that compensates for the diminished activity he may be thought to possess.

The best defenders for New South Wales were Gill, Sneddon, and Lowe. The last-named stopped two very warm shots within a few seconds of each other, and otherwise did well. Sneddon, though awkward looking, was very stubborn, his height being eminently useful. Gill was somewhat prone to take on too much of the left back's work, but his tackling was not superior to Ross's, nor his kicking generally safer. Moore's energy was not as effective as it might have been, and Nash appeared a little below class.

THE AUSTRALIAN GAME.

SOUTH SYDNEY UNBEATEN.

As a result of Saturday's League matches a most interesting state of affairs exists regarding semi-final possibilities. The matches, which completed the first half of the first round, leave South Sydney unbeaten, with Sydney a close second, while Newtown (on percentage of scoring points for and against) occupy third position, Paddington fourth, and Central Western fifth, though competition points leave the three last-named clubs equal with 16 points each. According to the conditions which govern the qualification for the semi-final games, on the clubs' present positions Newtown would qualify, with Paddington and Central Western to play off for fourth position. It will therefore be seen that the second half of the round promises to be most interesting, especially as some interstate players will find places in at least two of the teams. The earlier anticipations as to all-round improvement have been borne out.

The pioneers of the present league were hopeful of the game coming into its heritage when local players would enter the league ranks. Such has come to pass, and, though some three or four seasoned league players are members of the Central Western (Balmain district) team, the majority are from the second-grade premiers of 1912 and 1913—Northern Districts. They were defeated by Newtown in their opening game, but their performance on that occasion was such a sterling one that future success in their new sphere was predicted. Though beaten by South Sydney and Sydney, they emerged from both contests with a considerable share of the honours, but by beating Paddington on Saturday in a fast and interesting game they laid claim to premiership possibilities. The buoyancy and brilliancy which characterise their play are marked features. The game was an excellent one, errors of judgment being few. Though slightly in arrears during the first half, and falling back still further in the third quarter, Paddington made a great finishing effort, and within ten minutes of time had drawn level with their opponents. The final few minutes of play, however, were to the credit of Central Western, who put on 8 points, and won by 10 goals 17 behinds to 10 goals 9 behinds.

Though North Sydney were without the services of their captain, R. Robertson, against Newtown, they performed creditably during the second half of play. By open and fast football, characterised by good combination among the forwards, Newtown had established a big lead at half-time. In the third quarter North Sydney, spurred on by the unflagging energy and brilliance of Goldsmith, redoubled their efforts, with the result that during the term they put on 29 points to Newtown's 14 points. Holding the Northerners safely in the final quarter, Newtown eventually ran out winners by 11 goals 17 behinds to 7 goals 10 behinds.

East Sydney failed to stop the all-conquering South Sydney, and are even now hopelessly out of the running. They are unfortunate in that the remaining clubs, with, perhaps, the exception of North Sydney, have shown such vast improvement.

A committee appointed to draw up a programme of entertainment for the visiting State teams to the carnival in August met the League trustees on Friday night, when the following programme was decided upon:—

August 9.—Invitation harbour excursion and concert to players and officials of the visiting and local teams and League officials.

August 13.—Invitation smoke concert, at which the State Premier, Mr. W. A. Holman, will be asked to deliver an address on "Nationalism." Invitations to be present will cover a wide range.

Apart from the foregoing an elaborate programme will be carried out by the Australasian Council during the currency of the carnival, a sum running into several hundreds having been set apart for such.

The Newtown Club has completed arrangements to visit Tamworth on the 27th inst., where they will meet a combined team from the local League. Mr. R. Condon, the ex-Collingwood player and coach to the New South Wales carnival team, will accompany the Newtown team and also umpire the game.

INTERNATIONAL RUGBY.

OPENING MATCHES.

The late arrival of Harold Wagstaff and the Huddersfield contingent of players prevented the Englishmen playing their best team against Metropolis at the Sydney Cricket Ground on Saturday in the opening match of their Australasian tour. This circumstance, however, did not militate against public interest, as no fewer than 50,000 spectators attended, representing a "gate" of £2797, which constitutes a record for Northern Union football. It was not a great game, and even allowing for England's early misfortune through the loss of A. E. Wood, their display was weak. It was strange to see a side of the merit of England so upset by the use of methods which they must have expected. Their forwards packed badly, and in the matter of obtaining possession were outclassed from the start; in fact, the regularity with which Pearce heeled the ball to the expectant backs became monotonous. So manifestly inferior were the visitors that the play was robbed of interest long before the arrival of the interval. They simply crumbled before the combined rushes of the Metropolis men, and, though they fought out the battle to the bitter end, not once did they seriously dispute the Sydney men's superiority. Occasionally their backs rallied, but it was generally as the result of individualism rather than combination. If they were beaten on a dribble or a hand to hand sortie, they were slow in getting round again. They were strong, ponderous, and cumbersome.

THE ENGLISH FORWARDS.

We were told that this was the most powerful forward team that had yet represented the Northern Union. Power as regards physical strength and power as regards effect in the thirteen aside game are two very different things. The teamster can pull a thoroughbred all over the place; but where would he be in a race? The English team have clearly shown us by sending men of the Roman and Geurin type, that they are not yet seized with the potentialities of the smaller and handier forward of the Watkins, Courtney, Cann and Sullivan type. No doubt,

H. WAGSTAFF,
CAPTAIN.

Roman and Geurin thoroughly earned their places in the team on English club form, but they are the wrong type for our hard, fast playing fields. In a straight shove on a heavy ground, such players would undoubtedly prove their worth; but the Englishmen should have remembered that our loose packing methods speed up the scrummage work to a remarkable extent. The packs are no sooner down than the ball is in the hands of the connecting links, and the science of hooking is no longer a matter of strength. This was more than demonstrated on Saturday, as we witnessed a comparatively small front-line completely dominate opponents claiming at least a stone advantage per man.

CLEVERNESS OF THE METROPOLIS SIDE.

Reviewing the individual performances of the metropolitan side, it must be stated that their cleverness and pace was not only a revelation to the Englishmen, but to the majority of the large concourse of people as well. The passing of the older players by the selectors was decried by many as suicidal, and in official circles it was common talk that our light backs would succumb to the aggressiveness of the more heavily-built Englishmen. As events worked out, the selectors displayed excellent foresight in choosing such a fast the lightly-built team. On the day it was a triumph for cleverness and pace over brawn and muscle.

Watkins, in the lock position of the scrummage, was a marked success. The young Eastern Suburbs man cannot yet boast of that rare initiative and headiness possessed by W. A. Cann, but he has remarkable pace and aggressiveness. He breaks away cleverly and cleanly, and is a spoiler of the very highest order. He repeatedly nailed Rogers whilst the Huddersfield half-back was in a stooping position. Watkins's foot-work, too, was good, and, with Courtney, Burge, M'Cue, and Sullivan, put in excellent work in this department. All these men handled the ball in the open with wonderful precision, and it was a treat to see them opening the game up from every conceivable position. They took risks sometimes, but when a team is in a winning vein the reward for such daring more than balances the scale.

With the trend of play all in their favour, it was not surprising that Halloway and Norman were particularly prominent throughout, though at the commencement of the game the South Sydney stand off half-back was much at fault in handling. Of the three-quarters, Kelly bore a great part in the success of the metropolis side. His choice had been much criticised, but Saturday's game settled the point. Whether from the part he played as a feeder, or of his own individual skill, he was one of the successes of the team. His sidestepping and evasive swerves puzzled the English defence frequently. Dean and the two wingers, Horder and Messenger, were all sound. The South Sydney man's pace was much in evidence throughout, while Messenger kicked with remarkable success. Nine goals are, indeed, a record to be thoroughly proud of, and could hardly be excelled, even in the palmiest days of his famous brother, "H. H." Hallett was a veritable "Rock of Gibraltar," his catching and line-kicking being excellent, whilst his defence never faltered.

THE SUBSTITUTE QUESTION.

The result of the second match should convince the English managers of the absurdity of bowing to the will of the English Northern Union as regards the substitute question. Saturday's great game was marred by the fact that for fully two-thirds of the contest the Englishmen had to play their brilliant opponents with a disorganised side as the result of Wood's retirement owing to a sprained foot. A similar misfortune befel the visitors on Monday, when quite early in the game against New South Wales they lost the services of Hall (outside half-back). The English managers' attitude in not conforming to the Australasian custom of replacing an injured player during the progress of the opening half of the game is neither fair to the public nor just to their opponents, as it not only deprives the spectators of witnessing an evenly-balanced game, but, in the event of defeat, robs the victorious side of the full fruits of victory.

New South Wales should now be well satisfied with the new generation of players who earned international honours for the first time in the games just concluded. The success of Horder, Kelly, Walter Messenger, Fraser, Ray Norman, J. Watkins, and Frank Burge has demonstrated that the importation of prominent Sydney players by English Northern Union clubs since 1910 has not had the adverse effect expected in the development of promising players. These young men have gone through a most exacting test, as they played under favourable and unfavourable conditions alike with marked all-round ability.

A DISAPPOINTMENT.

Without wishing to detract from the New South Wales victory in the mud, it must be stated that the Englishmen's play did not realise the hopes of their supporters. Typical English conditions prevailed, especially during the second spell, when the ground became a veritable quagmire. Yet with everything in their favour, the visitors failed to reveal any greatness. Harold Wagstaff and Stanley Moorhouse, said to be the greatest combination in Northern Union football, were not one whit cleverer than either of the pairs in opposition to them. In fact, the English champions were less conspicuous in attack than Kelly, though, perhaps, Wagstaff's work in defence was equal to that displayed by any of the Welshmen's backs. The Huddersfield captain is undoubtedly a fine footballer, and on his return from Queensland may do better. However, unless Wagstaff played very much below his true form, he will never be able to live up to the reputation given him by some of the English critics. To be a H.H. Messenger or a Gilbert a player must possess rare initiative and unorthodoxy, and on Monday's form Wagstaff never once revealed the football genius such as was possessed by the two Sydney champions when in their prime.

REGARDING PENALTIES.

Now for the forwards. Where were the dash, the skill, and the tackling of the vanguard led by A. P. Coldrick, the Wigan stalwart? They did much better than the "six" who played on Saturday, yet they were not able to hold their own against the physically smaller New South Wales pack. In the matter of gaining possession in the scrummages, honours were about equal, but in the loose, with one exception (A. Johnson, Widnes, who was one of the best forwards on the ground), were second best when compared with Courtney, Burge, and company. The Englishmen's foot work during one stage of the second half, when the rain was pouring down, was particularly good, but illegal interference with opponents on many occasions lost the ground they had so strenuously fought for. Some of these infringements were glaringly apparent; and, of course, were not missed by the referee. The number of penalties—approximatly 100 in the two games—is a reflection on the players of both sides, the local ones in particular, as the repeated stoppages had a jolting effect on the play. The controlling body should inquire into this matter.

To some extent New South Wales were favoured by fortune, nevertheless they were in great form. The three-quarter backs and half-backs were always superior to their opponents, and Hallett at full-back played magnificently. His handling of the greasy ball was remarkable, and, in addition, he found touch with astonishing regularity—an art in which the Englishment were deficient. The English backs were considerably weakened through Hall's retirement. The introduction of Thomas at stand-off half was not a success, as the Wigan full-back was not cut out for the roll of a connecting link. His movements were generally slow, whilst he persisted in passing when a judicious short kick similar to that used by his vis-a-vis, Norman, would have been more effective.

Monday's game drew another tremendous gate, and, though not quite as many passed through the turnstiles as on Saturday, the "gate" itself was actually bigger by about £116. The aggregate takings for the two matches totalled £5710, which means that the expenses of the English team have already been covered.

Perhaps at this stage of the Englishmen's visit the result of the 1910 team's tour will be interesting reading. In all, Lomas's team played 18 matches, won 13, lost 4, and drew 1. Aggregate scores: England, 529 points; opponents, 289. In the two opening matches of 1910 England were beaten by 23 points to 14 and 27 points to 20. These figures show that the English 1910 team scored 34 points to 50 points, whereas the presents tourists have only scored 13 points to their opponents' 49.

The New South Wales Rugby League entertained the visiting team at dinner on Monday evening, and at a harbour excursion yesterday. The Englishmen will leave to-day for Brisbane, where they will play on the 13th and 17th instant against Queensland, and on the 20th against Australia (first test). On the return journey to Sydney they will play at Newcastle on the 24th. Their next match in Sydney will be against New South Wales on the 27th.

MOTOR CYCLING.

TOURIST TROPHY WINNER.

Many unusual features in motor cycle construction were embodied in the Rudge-Multi machine on which C. G. Pullen last month won the British Tourist Trophy race in the Isle of Man. In the mechanism of the engine itself there were no radical alterations from standard, with the exception that the bearings were made slightly looser and freer. A large air space, however, was made in the cylinder casting between the cylinder and valve pocket in order to ensure more perfect cooling of the valve. Particular attention was given to the comfort of the rider, and to enable a low riding position the top tube of the frame was considerably dropped, the height of the saddle being only 29 inches from the ground. This means that a rider well below the average height could comfortably place both feet on the ground whilst in the saddle. The petrol tank, which had a capacity of two gallons, was recessed above the inlet rocker, so as to enable the valve dome and cylinder to be readily detached. The foot-rests were so arranged that both brake and oil operating pedals could be worked without the feet leaving the rests. The lubricating oil was contained in a separate tank, and the pump lever was connected to the foot lever by a Bowden wire. The change speed device was distinctive, the gears being arranged to give a variation of from 2¼ to 1 (high) and 6 to 1 (low).

The change speed rachet was in the form of a quadrant attached to the bottom rail and down tube of the machine. This enabled a natural movement, and, moreover, it was not necessary for the rider to alter his position when operating the lever. In order to economise time when filling the petrol tank a "snap" filler was fitted, but the cap of the oil tank was attached by a wire and spring which passed right through the tank and held the cap in position; serving also to anchor it when the replenishments were being made. A belt-tensioning device enabled an alteration to the tension equivalent to no less than one inch in the whole belt length. Three rib tyres, size 650 m.m. x 65 m.m., were fitted with two security bolts and a bolt by the valve. On an electrical bench test the engine developed 10 h.p.

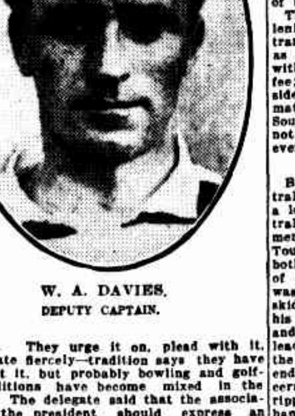

BOWLING.

JOHN YOUNG SHIELD.

NEW ZEALAND'S AFFILIATION.

The uncertainty that is proverbially one of the glories of the turf and of cricket applies equally to bowls. On a dark day—dark only to the victim—when Dame Fortune takes a mischievous delight in holding up bowls against the bias, in piloting them through narrow passages, through which, without witchery, they could never make their way; and when, to crown all, she causes a bowl to shrink when the fateful measure is being made, so that one loses a game by one point:—on a day like that the meanest of the "bankers" might beat Harry Thorpe or W. H. Gartrell. Yet the Dame is not so malicious as she sometimes seems. In a course of games, the good player will prevail just as certainly as Victor Trumper 12 years ago was sure to lead his team's batting averages. As previously pointed out in this column, the reappearance in the championships year after year of the same players (with a few exceptions to lend variety and to prove the case), shows conclusively that skill is a more important factor than luck, and confounds those who profess to see in bowls a pastime in which the fast drive upsets the laws which should govern a game of skill. Any unexpected event on a bowling green inspires reflections such as these—otherwise how is one to account for a brilliant team performance one week and ineffective display the following Saturday? After a fine achievement Petersham was congratulated on the restored homogeneity of its rinks; as though flattery were an enfeebling potion, its next display did not even extend the Randwick players. Hence George Raffan and his comrades win the John Young shield. Nothing could be more fitting than the popular ex-president having a principal part in obtaining possession of a trophy that perpetuates the memory of the first president. Nor should it be forgotten by bowlers that Raffan is more than a picturesque figure in the game—he is a skip of ability. All the presidents have been good players as well as men of commanding personality.

At the recent meeting of the Association a delegate brought under the notice of the Parliament of Bowls the habit of some players in following their rolling timber along the green. They deliver the bowl and chase it along the rink until it is close to its destination. They urge it on, plead with it, gesticulate fiercely—tradition says they have sworn at it, but probably bowling and golfing traditions have become mixed in the telling. The delegate said that the association or the president should express an opinion. Some authority should, he contended, tell the pursuers that they were wasting time, and were confusing the next player, who was, of course, on the mat long before they had returned to its vicinity.

In Wales and in other parts of the United Kingdom it is quite common to see a bowler chase his bowl up in this way, crying to it, praising it, denouncing it for perversity, according to its progress, and in the event of success it is as likely as not that he and his equally excited skip will shake hands and dance about in the utmost enthusiasm. New South Welshmen are not so easily moved to ecstasies or despair as Welshmen, but the delegate who addressed the association was utterly unsympathetic with even the modest exhibitions on local greens. The president and delegates smiled, but no precise consolation was offered. There may be something in the point that chasing a bowl disturbs other players, but nine out of ten bowlers are merely amused by such an ebullition of excitement. Moreover, the bowl-pursuers are so very few in number that their sprinting exercises hardly call for special legislation. Nevertheless, if someone saw fit to move that, after the delivery of a bowl, the player shall not, while observing its course, advance more than six feet from the mat, there would hardly be cause for opposition, and an eccentricity that would not be missed would disappear from the game.

Although two Australian carnivals have been held, the Bowling Council has yet to satisfy bowlers on an important point. The so-called rink championship of Australia, won at Brisbane by the brilliant Louis Waxman and his men, is not in reality what it is popularly called. Louis Waxman won "the interstate rink championship," and it does not seem possible to regard the event as anything else. By all means, let the past events go down as Australian rink championships. But at the same time the Council should not perpetuate a title that is essentially false. For the purposes of the carnival there are two classes of events. The one has to do with interstate matches; the other is All-Australian. To decide which is the champion State each combination must necessarily consist of players from particular States: it is axiomatic. The singles championship of Australia is open to anyone, even the player whose ambition is merely to enliven a holiday while knowing he has no hope of winning. In the rink games the Council had two courses open—one to have an Australian championship, the other to have an interstate championship. They chose the latter, and in untrue ostentation gave it the name of the former. If the event were what it professes to be Mr. Waxman (Vic.), Mr. Moses (N.S.W.), or any other player would be able and entitled to form a rink from any part of the Commonwealth. It is certain that a skip who was faced with a blank in his rink at one of the carnivals proposed to include a player from another State and was told he could not do so. He asserted his right, but without avail. How far this was a personal decision of a prominent figure on the Council is not clear, but the decision was observed, and a precedent was established.

The Council may consider that mixed rinks would rob the event of an interstate competitive spirit that is highly exciting and pleasureable, but a definite pronouncement is advisable either making the event what it is heroically dubbed, or declaring that the winning of the interstate rinks championship shall officially, if not in fact, carry with it the championship of the Commonwealth.

There is a suggestion in the air that New Zealand may join in federal unity with Australia. When some years ago it was hinted that New Zealand should join the Australian Commonwealth in political unity, someone said there were 1200 reasons against it—one for each mile of sea that separated the two countries. The same argument applies to bowls. From a sentimental point of view every Australian bowler would welcome unity with the New Zealand players. Administratively, however, there are difficulties. Apparently the game is well governed in the Dominion, and nothing would be gained over there. The sentimental union would not be strengthened, inasmuch as the golden measures of good feeling are already filled to overflowing. There would at some time be an Australasian president in New Zealand, and his sphere would extend to Western Australia. It would be too absurdly large a kingdom even for a merely decorative head. There is nothing to justify the added clerical labours and the settlement of questions of representation. Regarding it, however, in its true light, viz., sentiment, should New Zealand express a wish to join there can be no substantial reason for declining the proffered hand.

What is more to the point than official union with New Zealand is an expected declaration that the Australian annual carnivals are open to any accredited bowlers from other parts of the world. Exactly what events will be open to them will have to be determined. The possible appearance in the field of a New Zealand rink supports the argument that the rink championship shall be something more than an interstate rink competition. If New Zealanders had by invitation competed in the rink matches in Brisbane, and had won, it could hardly be urged that by defeating Louis Waxman's Victorian rink they had won the Australian rink championship. A rink selected to represent Australia would probably include other than Victorian players, although Waxman might retain his place as skip. That is, however, by the way. There is no clear reason why players from the United Kingdom, Canada, or New Zealand should not compete for Australian championships in the same way that an Australian may win the King's Prize in England as a marksman. Australian bowlers have sufficient confidence in their skill to regard such an invasion as welcome, while home sentiment will be sufficiently satisfied by purely interstate championships in which the visitors will not participate. The Bowling Council has the power to control and manage all interstate and international matches. Whether it will go so far as the above remains to be seen. Its powers are large—larger than was intended in the sentimental period that immediately preceded its formation—and, instead of powers being delegated to New South Wales to manage its own carnival as it thinks fit, the local association, in common with others, will have to do what it is told. Unless permission is forthcoming for an international carnival (which in fact means New Zealand participation), there will be much disappointment.

CYCLING.

LEAGUE DEFECTIONS.

THE INTERCLUB ASSOCIATION.

The League of New South Wales Wheelmen has not apparently looked upon the defection of the Ashfield and South Sydney Clubs as a matter of grave concern; neither is the Interclub Cycling Association, the new body formed to control the interests of the "outlaws," regarded as any serious opposition. During the 30 years of its existence the League of Wheelmen has seen many such breakaways. Ephemeral associations have come and gone, and the older heads in the professional ranks—those riders who were honourably known as "back-markers"—have learned their lesson. They have no desire at the present juncture of spoiling what little chance there is of putting the game once again on a firm footing in New South Wales by dividing the control, and, after all, it is these riders nowadays who are the lock, stock, and barrel' of the sport.

Certainly the formation of an interclub cycling association in Victoria has sounded the death-knell of the League of Victorian Wheelmen, but in the Southern State, it may be said, a totally different set of circumstances exist; and, because the I.C.C.A. has dominated the affairs of the League in Victoria it is not to say that an association which merely adopts a similar name will achieve similar success in New South Wales. The League of Wheelmen in New South Wales is undoubtedly in low financial waters at the present moment, but it may also be said that no expenses are being incurred. During this time of crisis the secretary, Mr. H. M. Mackay, is lending his services. There is a sufficient income from the registration and other sources to meet all current expenses, while the Bathurst-Sydney and other assured open road races will in the near future set the question of finance beyond dispute.

The League council has decided to deal leniently with the defaulters. They may transfer to any registered League club, such as the Granville or Northern Suburbs Clubs, without the payment of the usual transfer fee; but once they compete in an event outside the auspices of the League they are automatically disqualified for 12 months. The South Sydney or Ashfield clubs, however, are not likely to be readmitted to the League even if they so desire.

AUSTRALIANS IN FRANCE.

Bad luck is still pursuing the team of Australian road riders now on the Continent. In a letter from Paris, Don Kirkham, the Australian road champion, states that none of the members of the team did any good in the Tour de Belgium. Munro and Kirkham were both put out of the contest by the breaking of the frames of their machines. Kirkham was racing alongside a 6ft drain, when he skidded and fell into it. He straightened up his machine as best he could by the roadside, and by a desperate effort caught up with the leading bunch. At a later stage, however, the bottom bracket broke, and that was the end of the race as far as Kirkham was concerned. Piercey and Snell had the spokes ripped out of their wheels, and retired. Kirkham states that Piercey was passing over a railway crossing when a trooper's horse kicked at and hit the back part of the Australian's machine, also injuring the rider's ankle. Bell fell in an early stage, hurt his wrist, and was unable to continue. Only three members of the team—Kirkham, Munro, and Snell—were chosen to compete in the classic race from Paris to Bordeaux, a distance of 377 miles.

ATHLETICS.

MANLY CARNIVAL.

The Manly United Friendly Societies held their third annual sports at the Manly Oval on Saturday. The programme consisted of running and cycling events, the majority being for local residents. A half-mile handicap, open to members of the New South Wales Amateur Athletic Association, also a mile walk handicap for the Sydney Amateur Walkers' Club, and a 100 yards handicap for ladies were decided. In the last-named event Miss H. Mace won the first heat in 12 seconds, which equals the State record. The 880yds handicap was won after a well-judged race by H. J. Alexander (40yds) in 2m 7 2-5s. At the Balmain-Rozelle Carnival, held a week previously, Alexander won the mile open handicap from the 90yds mark.

As a rule the members of the Sydney Amateur Walkers' Club turn up in force when an event is to be decided, and Saturday was no exception, there being a good field. W. M'Laren (27s) easily won the event from S. Sheaves (30s) and C. Bonham (35s), his actual time being 7m 21s. A. W. Pickard (scr) finished fourth. The 440yds championship of the Manly Friendly Societies was won by H. D. M. Nicholls by inches from N. S. Lyons, in the slow time of 62 1-5s.

The first open road race of the winter season was conducted by the Redfern Harriers over a three-mile course, starting and finishing at the corner of Cleveland and Bourke streets, Redfern. There were 42 starters, and the majority of them completed the course. Members of the Newtown Harriers were prominent, as they finished in the three first places. H. Hayden (20s) finished tenth, and recorded fasted time, viz., 15m 57s.

Members of the New South Wales Amateur Athletic Association were well provided for at the Marrickville Chamber of Commerce sports on Monday; and at Wentworth Falls the recently-formed club included two open handicaps on its list. Only moderate support, however, was given to these events.

The Marrickville 100 yards handicap, run in one heat, was won by G. P. S. Parke, hon. secretary of the South Sydney Harriers, from 6½ yards, followed by his club mates, R. Henderson (3 yards) and G. Cotter (5 yards), (East Sydney A.A.C.). J. P. Grinton (Botany Harriers), 15 yards, won the 440 yards handicap in 51 2-5s. The winner ran with good judgment, and finished fast in 51 2-5s.

The one mile handicap was an interesting race, and after a splendid effort A. B. Stephens (Hurlstone Park Harriers), [illegible] yards, won by about three yards, the time being 4m 34⅘s.

S. Sheaves (South Sydney Harriers) easily won the one mile walk, with an allowance of 30s, from R. L. Bonham (15s) and E. Donohoe (70s). The winner's time was 7m 32s. A. Todarovitch had an easy task in the three miles handicap, with an allowance of 1m 5s.

SWIMMING.

A. D. HILL'S RETURN.

A. D. Hill, the Sydney Club sprinter, who has been located in Kelantin, Singapore, for the past three years, returned to Sydney last Thursday. He is on an extended holiday, and will represent his old club next season. Hill was a member of the club team that put up the world's record of 4 min. 58 4/5 secs. for the 500 yards relay race, his companions being H. Hardwick, L. Solomon, A. W. Barry, and L. Boardman. Unlike his comrades, who use the crawl, the returned swimmer rigidly adheres to the trudgeon, and is one of the few men who have broken the minute by this method. He was also a member of the Sydney Club's winning polo team in 1910. His club mates intend to entertain him at an early date, while Neutral Bay residents are arranging a welcome for June 15.

The English season had hardly commenced when the last mail left, yet a number of clubs had already unearthed some promising talent. "We are finding a few good youngsters, and hope to give the Australian team a real race at Berlin," wrote a prominent sporting writer recently. "Hatfield, too, seems capable of beating any of the existing middle-distance records, so that England's hopes for the 1916 contests seem bright." It is pleasing to know that the attempt to recover the swimming prestige is being taken so seriously by Englishmen.

LAWN TENNIS.

AUSTRALASIAN SUCCESSES.

The cables have been busy during the past week recording the principal matches in the world's championship on hard courts and the Northern championship at Liverpool. In these messages the names of the members of Australasia's Davis Cup team have been prominent. At Paris, Wilding seems to have had no difficulty in retaining his title to the singles championship of the world on hard courts, even though he did drop a set to de Morpurgo. How he came to do that is difficult to understand. There are two brothers of that name—H. L. and J. S.—but neither is in Wilding's class. J. S. de Morpurgo was one of the representatives of the Cambridge University team who beat Oxford last year, and it is probably he who gained the distinction of taking a set from the New Zealander. Either Wilding is in phenomenal form or Continental lawn tennis is below the standard of recent years. Perhaps there is something of both those alternatives. Certainly such players as Gobert, Decugis, Laurentz, Froitzheim, Rahe, and the brothers Kleinschroth have done so little of note so far this year that the French and German nations appear far less formidable for the Davis Cup contests than they were last year.

Although pride of place must be accorded to the world's championship, Australians have naturally been more deeply interested in the Northern championships at Liverpool, where those whom they know so well—Brookes, Dunlop, and Doust—were engaged. At this tournament the singles championship was notable for the victory of Doust over Parke, who won the title last year by defeating Wilding, the only reverse sustained by that player during the season. Parke's recent defeats in singles cannot but be disappointing to those who desire the success of the British Isles in the international matches, and will give the selectors some anxiety, for he was universally regarded as the one "certainty" for the team. It may be that his opponents this year have employed different tactics from those of the previous season, just as Brookes was compelled to alter his game in his later matches in Australia. Doust can play just the game to trouble Parke, for his short services, which have a low bound, would be distasteful to him, while he seldom indulges in hard driving, which is relished by Parke. The subsequent scratching of Doust and that of Brookes after beating Beamish robbed the singles of most of its interest. It was rather surprising that Brookes withdrew, for he won this event on his last visit to England in 1907.

All hope of Brookes repeating his triple win in the All-England championships, as he did in 1907, vanished when he and Mrs. Lambert Chambers were beaten by Doust and Miss Morton, as the mixed doubles at the Northern tournament carries the All-England title. This has been retained by Parke and Mrs. Larcombe, who won it in 1912, and successfully defended it last year against Wilding and Mrs. Lambert Chambers.

It was in the doubles that the Australasians were conspicuously successful, for Brookes and Dunlop won the event, with Doust, the other member of the team, opposed to them in the final, partnered by Mavrogordato. The latter pair would test Brookes and Dunlop well, for they have some good performances to their credit, including two wins of this event, gained in 1911 and 1912, and were only defeated by 3 sets to 2 by Rahe and H. Kleinschroth in the All-England doubles last year in one of the best exhibitions of the doubles game seen at that meeting. In addition to beating Doust and Mavrogordato, Brookes and Dunlop put out Parke and Beamish in straight sets, as they did in the Davis Cup match at Melbourne in 1912. These results inspire confidence in the likelihood of Australasia carrying off the doubles contests in the Davis Cup matches, for Brookes, with Wilding as partner, will probably be even more capable than with Dunlop.

The desirability of having a practice board at the courts of the New South Wales Lawn Tennis Association at Double Bay has been considered on more than one occasion by that body, but the proposal has not been received with favour. In New Zealand they are in much demand, but with few exceptions they have not been installed on Australian grounds, and there is a hesitation to incur the expense of erecting one at Double Bay when doubt exists as to whether it would be employed. With a suitable board and an efficient surface, there seems no doubt that a practice board, intelligently used, would be extremely beneficial for the correct production of strokes. One who is convinced of this is Mr. Dwight R. Meigs, a Rhodes scholar, who is now assistant head master of the Hill School at Pottstown, Pennsylvania, where a very fine practice board has been constructed. This is so arranged that it can be tilted at different angles, so as to produce bounds of diverse natures. Mr. Meigs states that those boys who make use of the practice board seem to grasp the theory and practice of strokes, both on and off the ground, much more quickly than on the regular court. It seems unquestionable that many Australians, old and young, could derive benefit, especially in ground strokes by such means; but there is a doubt whether they would go through what they would regard as the drudgery of playing against a board. Many would prefer to continue to make their strokes in style which prohibits any possibility of much improvement by the usual practice against an opponent. It is against a board, when the element of competition is absent, that a player can better analyse his method of stroke production.

BILLIARDS.

INMAN'S EARLY CAREER.

The announcement that the Australian champion, F. Lindrum, intends to revisit England, in company with T. Reece, at the close of the present Australian season, is pleasing to the many admirers of the young player. On his last visit the conditions were against him, and his form in the majority of his games was much below what he was capable of. On this occasion, however, Lindrum will be a more matured player; and the experience gained on his former trip should be of much assistance.

If Lindrum is desirous of entering for the English championship he will have to master the ivory ball angle, as it is now a settled condition that that material will be adhered to, even though it is freely admitted that the composition ball is truer and more mechanically perfect. Indeed, so difficult is it to obtain a passably true set of ivory balls, that in a late game between Stevenson and Inman several sets were utilised before the players were satisfied to proceed with the game.

Until a few years ago it was the custom to make the spot on one of the white balls by plugging it with a blackened piece of ivory or ebony, instead of, as at present, marking it with Indian ink. The latter system caused some comment in a game between Cecil Harverson and Melbourne Inman. The latter posed to execute a stroke, but instead kept looking round and round his ball. At last he looked up, and, addressing the referee, said, "The spot has come off my ball." Such was the case, and the game was suspended until another more or less satisfactory set was brought.

Another restriction on Lindrum's scoring power may be a limitation of the red losing hazard, as the Council of the Billiards Control Club is said to have some change in the rules under consideration which will affect the red hazard experts. Even so, Lindrum should do well in England.

Since Inman so decisively defeated Stevenson and Reece in this year's English championship many descriptions of his rise and progress have been published, but the following lines from the pen of "Ivor" in the "Sporting Chronicle" are about the most interesting:—

"When you dip into the fairy tales of Hans Andersen, you will come across a little story entitled 'The Ugly Duckling.' Read it, and follow how the least likely and neglected of the brood held within its unprepossessing exterior all the most charmful gifts of heart and head. It is all past and over now, but the first time I saw Melbourne Inman I thought him an extraordinary-looking young fellow. He was playing the late W. Spiller, and he came to the table in a suit of evening dress rather too large for him, and a pair of heavily-clamped boots. I am not writing this as a reflection on the champion, but just to give a picture of what the boy was, and how he must have struggled and striven to reach the far-away goal he always had in sight.

"No one received worse beatings than Inman did from Dawson, Stevenson, and Diggle. About the only one he could make sure of beating was Reece, whom he used humourously describe as his gold mine. Until Inman acquired a practical knowledge of the top-of-the-table methods he was always at the mercy of the top-notchers. He had some terribly hard experiences with Dawson and Diggle, and if not so uniformly successful as those two, Stevenson read him many hard lessons. But Inman had the good sense to make use of them all until it became evident that each succeeding season brought a further improvement to his scoring, and at last, two years ago he won the title, and has not been displaced since.

As was the case in the first of their two games, George Gray did poorly against Newman during the first week's play of the second match, as at that point he was 2541 behind. This may be attributed to a difficulty in gauging the vagaries of a strange set of ivory balls, as, most probably, Newman again won the toss for selection of balls, and chose his own set for the first week's play. During the second week, and using his own set, the Australian played more confidently, and did so well that when the match ended in a draw on Saturday, he was in the lead. He thus had the better of the two drawn games. However, it is most disappointing that after playing for a month, no definite result was arrived at by these clever young billiardists. Gray is improving his game with the ivory material, as he made several large breaks during the latter half of the match.

ROWING.

GRAND CHALLENGE CUP.

HENLEY OR OLYMPIC GAMES?

The greatest contest open to Australian and Canadian and foreign club crews is that historic race which is rowed at Henley-on-Thames for the Grand Challenge Cup, and which has been contested for 70 odd years. Australians have already left their records both in rowing and sculling, for they have won the two most coveted trophies—the Grand Challenge Cup and the Diamond Sculls. The question that is again exercising the minds of Australian rowers and their supporters is—whether they must confine their attention to Henley, or whether they must only look to the Olympic Games for new conquests. In view of the possibility of the Olympic Council financing the next Australian eight-oar crew in 1916, this question needs consideration. This matter caused some discussion in 1912, and a recurrence is certain.

Taking the opinions of the 1912 Australian representatives as a basis, there can be no doubt as to the relative importance attached to the Henley and Olympic race. That at Henley is by far the more important, and the trophy is the more coveted.

The importance of a rowing victory at the Olympic Games depends to a large extent on the British representation, if any; and to win against the other crews would not bring us much credit, beyond increasing the number of points to our total score, which, in any circumstances, must necessarily be few. The time, therefore, has arrived when the governing bodies of rowing should have control of all arrangements in connection with any visits abroad, in the same way as cricket and football tours are carried out. The whole undertaking should be organised and handled right through separately from the other sports. However, it is quite possible that the Victorian Rowing Association will see its way clear to undertake the responsibility of organising and financing another Australian representation, with the object of making another attempt to win the Grand Challenge Cup. At a meeting of this association, held last week, a motion for the affiliation of the Melbourne Rowing Club was under consideration; and at the New South Wales Rowing Association's meeting last night a communication was read from the V.R.A., asking to be supplied with a copy of the agreement between the Royal Henley Regatta Committee and the N.S.W.R.A., which request was readily granted. A new club, or, rather, an old one revived under conditions that would give its members all the necessary qualifications to compete at Henley, would be just what is needed to remove all doubts regarding status, etc. If the affiliation of the Melbourne Rowing Club has this end in view, then the idea is a very commendable one, and it is sure to meet with success and the approval of all who wish to see the sport advance. The conditions of the Henley rules provide that any club entering a crew must be established for at least 12 months, and that individual competitors must be members of that club for at least two months prior to June 1 before the races.

LACROSSE.

THE QUEENSLAND TEAM.

Interest is now centred in the Queensland B grade team at present in Sydney. In their two engagements the visitors have shown themselves to be excellent players, well versed in team tactics, and with the necessary adeptness in stickwork to put it into execution. Their best display was on Saturday, as they were not seen at their best on Monday in the wet. In the Saturday match, the visitors met Petersham Federals, who have been playing together during the past three years, and have worked up admirable combination. They have so far this season, been undefeated in their grade. Although the visitors were beaten, the game was evenly contested, the passing and catching being above B standard. The Federal's success was undoubtedly due to the phenomenal goal-keeping of Ward. Kane and Wilson bore the brunt of the Queensland attack, and Trundle stood out alone in the defence. All the local team played well, Gleeson and Barnett being the most conspicuous.

The visitors' match against the combined B grade team on Monday revealed the existence of a wealth of promising colts. Much criticism was levelled at the selection of the team, but, considering that it is so early in the season, the selectors did well. The Sydney team lacked combination, not having had any practice together, and they were fortunate in making a draw with the Queenslanders, as the latter played better lacrosse. The goals scored by the local team were the result of fine individual play, in contrast to the systematic ways of the Queenslanders. The worst feature of the game was the passing among the home players, but as a set-off against this the ground was very slippery, and handicapped their movements. Roberts and Turner were the mainstays of the N.S. Wales defence, their intercepting at times being brilliant. Gleeson and Barnett again played well, but Wagstaff, who created innumerable openings, was not supported. The same players as on Saturday were conspicuous among the visitors, viz., Kaine, Wilson, Trundle, and Finlayson. Queensland made use of the free arm as a means of defence. It was thought that the Australian Conference in 1912 had cleared all anomalies existing among the States, and a uniform set of rules created, but apparently the interpretation of this rule is different in the northern State from here, and, in view of the Interstate contests of August it would be advisable to have some settlement arrived at regarding the free arm. The N.S.W. Possible-Probable match set down as an early game to the juniors match on Monday was abandoned.

Word has at last been received from the New Zealand Association relative to the visit of the New South Wales team in September, and the following dates suggested were confirmed by the local association last night: The visitors are to play Wellington, at Wellington, on September 5; New Zealand at Auckland on the 12th, and Auckland at Auckland on the 16th. The annual fixture, Wellington v Auckland, will be played on the 9th, at Auckland. Arrangements have been made for the tourists to visit Rotorua. In view of the completion of the above trip, it is improbable that the Queensland invitation to send a team north in July will be accepted.

HOCKEY.

THE COMPETITION GAMES.

Good form was shown on the Grammar School grounds on Saturday. It is a pity that the association cannot secure this ground for all its matches, as its proximity to the city would tend to add to the pleasure of the game.

By decisively defeating Bohemians on Saturday, Bandits now lead in the competition. Pilgrims and Bandits have not been defeated so far, and drew with each other. However, Pilgrims have yet to play off their match with Howitzer Battery, which was postponed on account of the visit of the Melbourne University team. The game, however, is practically a foregone conclusion for Pilgrims; this will bring the rivals to the front together. On paper Pilgrims appear to be the stronger combination, but if Bandits maintain their form of Saturday last they will have little to fear.

As usual, forfeits were again prominent on Saturday, and both Howitzer Battery and Athenians II. had to fill up their short teams from other elevens. There was some excuse for Athenians II., as it was their first appearance in the second grade competition, having taken the place of Corinthians II., who have dropped out. Athenians, at very considerable inconvenience, have done their very best to fill the breach.

AN AUSTRALIAN IN BERLIN.

Madame Weidemann, whom Sydney concert goers will remember well as Miss Nellie Young, is at present visiting Sydney after eight years' absence, most of which time has been spent in Germany. Since her husband's death Madame Weidemann has made her home in Berlin, in order that her children "might learn to speak their father's language correctly;" and she has entered into the life of Berlin in a way that might not be possible to the average Australian. For instance, she has taken an active part in social work, being a member of the Children's Protection Society.

Germany is one of the countries which has seriously undertaken the task of saving its children, and there is splendid organisation for this purpose. The Children's Protection Society, which corresponds to our State Children's Relief Board, works in conjunction with the police. Members attend the Children's Court. This Court, explained Madame Weidemann, is run on rather different lines from ours. There is the Judge, a solicitor to appear for the child, an assessor or law student who has not quite finished his course, for the Crown, and a man of the people, such as a cobbler, baker, grocer, who represents the jury. This man must be of strict integrity, with absolutely no suspicion against his character. When the case has been heard, these four men retire to a room to discuss it, and then come back to give the verdict. Boys and girls up to 18 years of age are tried by the Children's Court; after that age they appear in the ordinary court.

The Children's Protection Society is also greatly helped in its work amongst the sick poor, by the Red Cross nurses, a band paid by the State for attending to the sick in their own homes. There are hundreds of these nurses engaged in Berlin, and they are not allowed to receive any payment from patients. There are also the nurses of the Dorcas Society, who correspond to our district nurses, being paid by private subscriptions. But the chief work for the child is the "Saugling" or Nursling Home. In no branch of social work has there been such advance in the past three years, as in these nursing homes; and nowhere have results been so satisfactory, for they have lowered the infant mortality tremendously. These homes are under the special patronage of the Crown Princess (Princess Cecilie). She takes a very real and practical interest in them. Then there are the creches (day nurseries) which were inaugurated by the Empress Frederick.

"Indeed, Germany owes a great deal to the Empress Frederick," says Madame Weidemann, "for it was through her interest that German women were first admitted to the Universities. Now, nearly every University is open to women, and there are thousands of women students. For the German woman is keeping pace with the times in this as in other maters. To be a good 'haus frau' is no longer her highest ambition. She takes her place intellectually and socially beside her husband, and I know of no more charming and cultured women than the well educated women of Germany. One reason, no doubt, why there is less of the old-fashioned housekeeping is that, whereas in former years the Germans were a poor people, now they are wealthy, and there is no need for the little piddling ways of spending a few pence at a time. For instance, once every housewife had the washing done in the house, and would have met the suggestion to send it to a laundry by the horrified remark, that it would be torn or worn. Now it is quite the custom to send the linen to the laundry.

"But you must not think that they have deserted the housekeeping arts. Their broader education has only shown them, as it has women of other countries, that, while a woman need not spend all her time on household matters, domestic science is a necessary part of every girl's education. And she gets it. Every school girl learns cookery and housekeeping, and needlework; and the girls and women in the country districts are provided with the same privileges by means of the caravan schools. The caravan domestic school is a very popular institution amongst the farmers' wives and daughters, who come from far and near to attend it during the six weeks it stays in their district. In addition to cooking and waiting at table, lessons are given in that part of dairy work which is usually done by the women, butter-making, cleansing the utensils, etc.

"As you know, German women are nearly always very clever with their needles. No girl leaves school without being able to embroider her own name, and fancy work is quite an art with them. Lace-making is also one of the branches in which they excel, and the Princess Wied has been doing a great deal to encourage lace-making as a home industry. She herself has one of the most wonderful collections of lace in the world, and every year, through the Lyceum Club, exhibitions are held to show what lace is being made in the country.

"With all their attention to these housewifely arts, the women still have plenty of time to attend concerts, opera, and lectures. The Humboldt Academy lectures are a very popular institution. For the modest sum of five marks (about five shillings) one can have a three months' course in art, science, literature, philosophy, architecture, by specialists in the subjects. And these lectures are attended by men and women of every class. It is interesting to note how they keep abreast of the literature of other lands. For instance, I have heard lectures on Bernard Shaw, Galsworthy, and Wilde, and, of course, on Shakespeare.

"Another great attraction in Berlin is that there one meets people of all nations and all tastes. One evening I sat down to dinner where, amongst the 28 guests, eight nations were represented. But it is a great regret to me, that, though there are many Australians in Berlin, there is no regular meeting place for them, no one to whom they have a right to go for help and information. I should very much like to see a club formed, which would be a rallying place for Australians, where they could meet each other, where newcomers could gain information about Germany, and where, too, Germans could learn something about Australia. For it is surprising how interested many Germans are in Australia to-day, but very often their interest simply dies out for lack of someone to give them the information they desire.

"Such a club as I have in mind would be of the greatest use and pleasure to the Australian students. There are a great many of them in Berlin now. To the University they come to study engineering and chemistry, and many musical students are coming to Berlin now instead of to Leipsic, as formerly. It would be a great boon to some of these students to have a common meeting place, where they could be sure of a friendly welcome, and where they could talk in their own language of 'home.' It will give you an idea of the number of Australians in Berlin when I tell you that when Captain Collins was there recently I was able to collect 36 Australians to meet him within 24 hours. I am very anxious to see a club established, and, as a room has been promised, rent free for two years, and some one else has offered to furnish it, there seems every hope of the fulfilment of my idea."

MORE PLAYTIME.

If only women were in Parliament to voice their "yeas" and "nays," it would be interesting to hear their opinions upon a certain measure set down for discussion by and by—that bill that has to do with the turning of our grey and gold half-work, half-playday Saturday into just a gay playday.

A few business men I heard talking about it last week shook grave heads over it, and said, "the world couldn't stand it. The world would stagnate. The world would become too dislocated to move on its axis." And that was, of course, just what they said when the bill to reduce the number of daily working hours to eight was introduced. But I wonder what the women think?

The world's workers are moaning and groaning about "the stress of life," and we are continually hearing of the strain people are under to "keep up with the pace of things," which is necessarily much swifter for us than it was for the generation before us. The mere crossing of a street can now be instanced as a species of nerve-tension forced upon us and our children, and quite unknown to the citizens of "the good old days."

Nerve illness under a score of different names is rife amongst us, and from our mind physicians comes the dread news that mental disease is becoming increasingly common.

Only just now, and with the same blast of trumpets that they use to draw our attention to the fact that an infectious and preventable epidemic is in our midst, did they tell of the unprecedented number of cases in our asylums for the insane.

They went into figures about the dread disease, and they classified it, and alluded to its primary and contributory causes, and there they left it, without ever telling us anything about its prevention, or if there is any known antidote to render the healthy immune.

Men die, it has been said by someone (surely an engineer), not so often naturally and because their time to shuffle off the stage has come, as because one or more of their parts have worn out, and cannot be—or, at any rate is not—replaced or repaired. But our surgeons are growing more and more skilled in repairing human machinery, in patching up an organ here, in grafting in a new part there, and in cutting out an effete one somewhere else.

All about us is fearfully and wonderfully repaired humanity, with a good chance of living long enough to die naturally. Modern life should thus be successful in evading that quiet corner known as God's acre till a later, and still later day. But what of that terrible other cemetery, just in our midst, the one wherein those who are dead in all but body wait?

Modern life, it seems, has a tendency to cause this space to become overcrowded. The dead herein have died, very many of them, of the old complaints—of love and hate, of drink and disease, of shock and sin, of loneliness and homesickness. But there is yet one new cause added, and it is named "the strain of modern life," or "the strenuousness of present-day conditions."

In the beginning of things one rest day in a week was ordered to be set apart, and we may be assured that what was deemed sufficient was indeed sufficient.

But the wheel of life turned with ever faster revolutions, and someone came along and lopped off from our working week Saturday afternoon, and gave it to us for playtime. And again, for a period, it was enough.

Now to-day the great wheel is revolving at a more and more terrific speed, and in the wear and tear and hurry and drive of things poor little humanity seems to be in danger of losing its reason. So now (is that why?) a reformer steps out, bent on relieving the tension for us, as he may not slacken the wheel, nor put back the clock, and he says, "Let us have Saturday a whole day playday."

MELBOURNE NOTES.

The School for Feeble-minded Children recently started in Fitzroy is doing very successful work. The school has an attendance of about 68 children, and is equipped with the special appliances and apparatus for imparting manual training in particular to children of feeble mind. The Minister of Education has been considering how it may be made to serve a wider area than at present reached. It is shown by investigation that there are feeble-minded children in other suburbs. To build special schools in every centre would mean a big outlay, and the Minister has decided to arrange for a motor car service in order to enable the children to be collected each day, brought to the Fitzroy school (where there is ample accommodation), and returned each evening to their parents.

A practical suggestion has been brought forward by the council of the College of Domestic Economy, of which Mrs. A. C. Mountain is president. It proposes to offer some of the privileges of the college to women who have not had any opportunity of training in domestic science. For a small fee, it will send first-class lecturers to various centres, who will give practical talks, and demonstrate on housewifery. The necessary equipment will be furnished by the council. Women who have watched the domestic movement develop will note with interest this innovation.

A large deputation (representative of the Council of the Royal Victorian Trained Nurses Association) waited upon the Minister of Health to request that a scheme of State registration for nurse be provided. Dr. Hurley stated that the objects of the association were (1) a uniform system of registration of nurses in Victoria; (2) a uniform system of training and examination. The association now has 1700 members. The chief reason actuating the association in requesting the Government to assume control of registration is the present inability to prevent non-qualified persons foisting themselves upon a credulous public as experts in nursing and midwifery. Miss Glover declared that the association had done all it could do under the present voluntary system. They looked to the State to do the rest. The Minister regretted that there was little chance of getting such a bill through at present. He expressed doubt as to the advisability of including in the bill midwifery provisions, chiefly because a separate midwifery bill had already been drawn up.

Lady Helen Munro Ferguson opened the second exhibition of paintings and sculpture by members of the Australian Art Association at the Athenaeum Gallery. This is the strongest combination of Australian artistic talent that has ever united in exhibition here. This association has wonderfully increased its strength since it began a little over a year ago. Mr. Hans Heysen's fine oil painting, "Bronzewing," occupies the place of honour. Miss Cumbrae Stewart and Mr. Percy Leeson are represented among the invited works in oil portraits.

A central news message states that by the unanimous decision of the inhabitants of Oberammergau the Passion Play will not be given next year on account of the unsatisfactory result of last year's representations and the diminution in the number of visitors.

THE HARBOUR LIGHTS GUILD.

The guild, with its membership of girls and women, was formed a few years ago by Lady Poore, and its object is to bring something of home to the visiting seamen. To many an incoming sailor the harbour lights are also the home lights, but to the greater number these same lights merely tell of a foreign port and a strange city, where the only friendly welcome is to be found at the Mission to Seamen and its club rooms. It is inside these walls the guild endeavours to create an atmosphere of home. The first most necessary move is to send an invitation to the newcomer before he gets ashore and is caught by the land shark, ever on the alert for his prey. This invitation the chaplain delivers when he meets the ship with the mission launch Endeavour. The upkeep of this launch is the primary care of the guild, who devote their subscriptions to this purpose. During the 1st year they have also collected sufficient for the purchase of new engines.

On arrival at the institute the guest receives any letters awaiting him, and is free to enjoy the many advantages provided. The large, airy hall and reading-room, with papers and magazines supplied; the writing-room, with every inducement to send along news to the far-off home; the gymnasium for healthy exercise, and the shower-bath to follow. The savings bank for safe keeping of earnings so easily squandered, and so badly needed by wife and children. The coffee bar, where soft drinks and hot coffee can be procured at cost price. And up aloft, for those who choose, the chapel, which provides for spiritual welfare.

In the evening some members of the guild and workers are present, and provide concerts and games.

No place is home without a woman. The sailor has been for months without her influence, and appreciates it when he comes ashore. There are not yet enough members to carry on the work as it should be done. Though many districts have their branch of the guild, and their hon. secretary, there is great need for more centres.

Do the country people ever think of the "moral and spiritual welfare" of these 180,000 seamen who are only in port here to convey their merchandise from shore to shore?

Do the business men, and citizens generally, stop to consider what share they take in providing hospitality to the merchant seamen? The main part of the work is left to two men—a chaplain, who is appointed and supported by the Home Society in England; and one lay-worker. And this in the fifth largest port in the world! Are the hundreds of homeless seamen to roam our city with no counter-attractions or refuge from the temptations rife in "Sailor town?" It is well for the community that the womenkind are doing so much; but if the Mission to Seamen is to extend its healthy influence it must receive more practical support from those concerned with the commercial life of Sydney.

A visit to the Rawson Institute any evening will forcibly prove the need for its existence. Come and see.

SERICULTURE.

The committee of the Silk Culture Society of N.S.W. is entering on the busiest time of the year for its work, for this is the planting season, and on the extensive propagation of the white mulberry the silk industry depends. Donations of a large number of cuttings are promised to the society, and will be distributed among all the members. It is only a question of sufficient mulberry trees being grown to make silk-growing an established Australian industry.

Through the Agricultural Department the society expects to receive very soon a consignment of choice varieties of graine (eggs of silk moth) from the silk-growing countries of Europe. This will be distributed among all members. It is hoped that, by getting the best graine that can be procured from abroad, a superior Australian strain may be evolved. Silkworms thrive so well in this country, and are so remarkably healthy, that, when it becomes known, there is sure to be a large demand for our graine from countries where disease among the silkworms is prevalent.

The fame of the Silk Culture Society is spreading all over the Commonwealth; the members are scattered all over this State, there are a number in Victoria, and some in South Australia, Tasmania, and New Guinea, and inquiries have been received from Western Australia and Norfolk Island. In Queensland the parent society has made much progress; it is able to reel the silk, and is seeking a market for raw silk. The New South Wales society is at present only dealing with cocoons, for which it is negotiating with spinning factories in Switzerland and France.

PUCK'S GIRDLE.

"I'll put a girdle round about the earth in forty minutes."—"Midsummer Night's Dream."

Miss Thea Proctor, who has been on a prolonged visit to her relations in Sydney, is returning to London this month. Miss Proctor, whose charming work, especially in her fans, has delighted all picture-lovers, has quite a distinct place in the art world of London, where there is a steady demand for her work, and where she has exhibited at the Royal Academy, the New English Art Club, and the Goupil Gallery. She has also shown at the International Exhibitions at Venice, and at Ghent. Miss Proctor leaves Sydney for Adelaide, where she will hold an exhibition of her pictures before departing for Europe.

The National Council of Women is showing earnestness in considering the question of women in municipal life, by appointing a sub-committee especially to deal with this matter. As all the bodies which are already taking action on this question, such as the Professional Women Workers, the Health Society, are represented on the National Council, we may expect some definite and satisfactory result from their considerations.

It was a pity that Miss Dorothea Spinney should have chosen a public holiday for the recital of "The Bacchae," and it was still more to be deplored that the night was wet, for many people were thus deprived of the pleasure of hearing the finest of the Euripides plays Miss Spinney has given, and one of the most beautiful things ever heard in Sydney. As the audience, which was by no means small, was passing out after the performance, one overheard more than one expression of regret that so-and-so had not been able to hear this exquisite play, and many hopes were voiced that the actress would give it again.

The grand benefit concert in aid of the Royal Hospital for Women and the Renwick Hospital for Infants, which takes palce at the Town Hall next Monday night, promises to be a huge success. And, indeed, it should; for not only is there a fine programme of splendid artists, but there is no charity in Sydney which appeals more strongly than this work which helps little children and women in their hour of need.

A number of the women painters met at Miss Ethel Stephen's studio on Monday afternoon to say "good-bye" to Miss Cusack and Miss Alice Cusack, who are leaving for Europe next Saturday. During the afternoon their friends presented Miss Cusack with a wrist watch, and her sister with a travelling clock. The Misses Cusack are going first to London, where they will probably have a studio. They also intend spending some time in Paris at their work, and have planned a caravan trip through England for their holidays.

Although the Sydney Kindergarten Training College has been settled in its own new home for some months, the committee is by no means free from the worry of financial matters, for there is still a big sum to pay on the building. It is hoped, by special efforts each year, to lessen this sum annually, so that interest and principal will be paid off together. There should not be any difficulty about this, for the work of kindergarten is so widely appreciated that its friends are legion. In order to help the purchase fund a company of clever amateurs are presenting "Niobe" at the Repertory Theatre next Saturday night.

The "Old Girls" of Argyle School have certainly maintained the tradition of the school in carrying out, quickly and well, the task they undertook. It is just a little over a year since they decided to endow in perpetuity a cot at the Royal Alexandra Hospital for Children, in honour of their teacher, Miss Emily Baxter, and already £1000 has been subscribed, the final sum being reached last week by the anonymous donation of £100 from one "old girl."

The Kindergarten Training College has been asked to undertake another duty, the supervision of Sunday schools, says the "Australian Kindergarten Magazine." This has been brought about by the institution of the Sunday school teachers' class, which is very popular. The Sunday schools are waking up to the need of revising their work according to the new methods of teaching. The efforts made by some teachers who know practically nothing about these, are pathetic in the extreme, for they are groping blindly with the merest flicker of light as their guide. The absolute necessity for trained teachers is being slowly but surely realised.

* * * * *

The Sunday school teachers, who have just finished their year's course of training at the Training College, formed a club to which any students who have attended, or are attending any part of the college course, may belong. The object of the club is an excellent one—to keep the teachers in touch with modern educational developments, for mutual help, and still further to increase the feeling of fellowship and unity between the different religious sects. It is this last point which is very strongly felt to be one of the most valuable results of the Sunday school teachers' course.

There are now in London three hundred schools for mothers, against the ninety that were in existence in 1910. The majority of these are affiliated to the central association, although they are not all worked on the same lines.

Of the first 50 sent out from Barnardo's Homes to Canada in 1882, not one but turned out well, says J. H. Machair, in the "Contemporary Review," writing of "the case for adoption." One boy, rescued from the streets, was adopted by a lawyer, and followed his foster father's profession with distinction. Later on, when a cry arose that Canada was being made the dumping ground for the children of degenerates, Dr. Barnardo offered to take back at any time any child who showed vicious propensities. I have not heard that he was ever called on to make his offer good. Instead, yearly increasing batches of children, under six, are sent out with the older ones for pure adoption, with almost unvarying success. While contrastingly, of children claimed by their parents in England from one large institute, 23 per cent. found their way to prison. So much for environment!

The greater freedom and activity of women nowadays has had many strange results, and one of the least expected is the effect upon the prosperity of men's clubs, says the "Queen." For some time now clubs have not been altogether happy about their balance-sheets, this has partly been due to the constant appearance of new clubs. But it is also due to a heavy falling off in the profits from meals and wines; and this is put down to the growing habit of dining in restaurants. That habit has undoubtedly had its origin very largely in the modern woman's determination to have a good time. She does not see why her husband (or her father for that matter) should dine comfortably at his club when he likes, and leave her to look after herself. So the club secretaries have had to look anxiously at diminishing accounts from the dining-rooms perhaps, without quite understanding what has happened.

GARDENS AND TREES.

My late garden would probably have met with scornful criticism from the properly-constituted gardener. Its lawns were green, but with many other plants as well as grass. Its beds were generally gay with flowers, but they were untidy annuals that had never learned to grow in conventional rows and the violet borders drew no hard and fast line, but mingled cheerily with the tangled couch, so that one could hardly tell where garden ended and lawn began. And I had three trees. The first was a fig-tree, brought by a former owner many years before from its rocky perch beside the harbour, and placed in the middle of the lawn. It had grown and spread, and offered me a dark, cool shade from the midday glare, which was more than passing pleasant. It poured down prodigal roots, giving quaint shapes to trunk and branches, and was one of my dearest delights. The second was a wattle, not one of the permissible wattles with silver leaves, but a plain black wattle. It had come of itself to me for sanctuary, and who was I that I should say it nay? So it grew and flourished by my side fence, and in December it rewarded me with golden bloom. The third was a blackbutt, that towered a hundred feet above my cottage. How it had come to be left there I never knew. It filled the gutters of my roof with leaves and branches, and gave me endless hours of work, but I loved it best of all.

My friends were very kind and sympathetic about my garden. They never tired of telling me just what was wrong with it. I could have a really nice garden, like all the others in the street, if I would only cut out those awful trees. Nothing would grow really well within a hundred yards of a gum tree. A wattle is the greediest thing imaginable. A fig means one continued mess of fallen leaves and fruit, and under it the grass will not grow. And violets and freesias must not be grown next to the grass, or borders will never be tidy. But I only laughed. And every time I passed their smug lawns, and their pernickety beds, with standard roses and close-cut bouvardias, and hardwood garden sticks more prominent than the plants they supported, I laughed the more. For my trees grew blossoms that their garden sticks will never grow, bright blossoms of the air which make my garden a garden of delight to me.

My fig tree brings me visitors that well repay the sweeping up of fallen fruit. Silver-eyes are always there, and most of the year mistletoe birds, with their steel-blue backs and scarlet throats. Shy honeyeaters come from the bush around, and in winter sometimes the big black magpies from the mountains, make the branches re-echo with their wild chorus. My wattle harbours many pests, but all day long bright-eyed police are tracking them to their lairs. Blue wrens, silvereyes, tits of several kinds, chatter and warble and creep and peer, giving an endless entertainment in return for their meal. But my blackbutt is my chiefest joy, for every year a pair of peewees raise three families in mud nests laboriously built upon its highest branches; and these families flutter down into my yard, and climb my clothes-props, and are fed upon the lines. My jacky-winters, too, nest on the lower branches, and their bright notes welcome me every morning. Sometimes a pair of wagtails build there; and once a pair of glossy razor-grinders, whose nesting tree in the paddock opposite had been cut down, honoured me by rearing a family. Once, too, the little tree runners, which creep over its trunk and pry into the crevices of its bark all through the year, built a beautiful shingled nest upon a high dead branch, and these babies also sheltered in the yard until they were strong enough to face the world. And as it stands out as the only big tree for a half a mile around, it serves as a port of call for all the larger birds that are passing my way. Blue jays, magpies, kookaburras, kingfishers, and various cuckoos, all halt a while, as if to pass the time of day; while the rarer visitors that I have seen at odd times would make a long list. That is why I laugh when they tell me to cut down my trees. Or, rather, why I used to laugh.

For now I live in a place with a proper garden. My lawns are of buffalo grass, which will allow no intruding clover bloom to thrust up its head. Their edges are so straight that I can hardly bear to look at them. My gardener allows no wayward branch to spoil the symmetry of any shrub. Even my hedge, of which I once had hopes, is ruthlessly kept back to just above the height of the fence. There is nothing more than 8ft high in the place. Now and again a spinebill flits in for a moment, and sips from my bouvardias. Sometimes a jacky-winter perches on top of one of my nice one-by-one hardwood garden sticks, and I fancy he regards me sorrowfully. Very rarely a little tit or a blackcap stops for a moment, and then flies off with an expression of disgust. I hate my proper garden. I would give it all, garden sticks and hedge and buffalo grass, aye, and even the grey and yellow yucca enthroned in solitary state in a round bed in the middle of the lawn, for just an hour of my old garden, with my fig, and my wattle, and my blackbutt, and all they meant to me.

PHYSIOLOGY.

Reading the paper the other day this phrase caught my eye. "Several of the lady speakers were opposed to the girls being taught physiology." It seems hardly creditable that there should be any objection to the judicious teaching of physiology to girls. Physiology, as the word implies in the original Greek, is an inquiring into Nature, the branch of medical science that deals with the healthy (mark you) functions of different organs. Knowledge is power, we are taught in the copy books, and you may as well expect an enginedriver to drive a train safely and sanely without experience as a girl to keep her body in good form, unless she knows something of its inner mechanism and workings. Besides being an extremely interesting science, it is useful in everyday life. Naturally, a girl will feel more inclined to pay attention to diet and exercise when she knows the whys and wherefores of so doing, and the benefit to accrue thereby. One could hardly credit the appalling ignorance of the physical structure of the body that prevails among some girls. Recently, attending a lecture on health and exercise, delivered at a girls' guild, I was amused at some of the replies to questions put by the lecturer. The audience consisted of some 40 or 50 girls, all over 16 or 17, and a sprinkling of women. They were listening eagerly and interestedly to the lecturer, and when he held up a human vertebra and asked what it was they seemed doubtful—but finally, having ascertained that it was a spine, they were asked what it contained in the centre. All were silent, till one, more venturesome than the rest, volunteered, "It's full of brittle matter," and another, encouraged, stated it "was full of liquid." These are isolated cases, and a mere detail to some of the answers received. I think there is a great deal of neglect of the human body, which could, and would be, rectified if girls were taught the ill-effects physiologically of bad habits of standing, sitting, diet, dress, etc. Of course, there are some girls who cannot take anything seriously, and who will make it as hard and unpleasant for the teacher as they can, but it would not be fair to the majority who enjoy it, and benefit by it, to deprive them, on account of the minority, who don't value the lessons. The girls of to-day are the mothers of to-morrow, and what they learn from pure-minded, capable teachers now is going to enable them later on to teach their children what will do more for race purity than any system of eugenics.

MENS SANA IN SANO CORPORE.

CO-EDUCATION IN PRACTICE.

Co-education will be quite a new idea to some parents, in spite of the fact that large co-educational schools have existed in England for 30 or 40 years, writes Mr. Roberts in the Girls' Realm Magazine. Of course, co-education in day schools is not so uncommon, and in Scotland co-education in universities is an established custom. But to some the idea that English boys and girls can be and are successfully educated together up to the age of 19 will be new.

Well-known men and women, however, favour the system. Sir Oliver Lodge has had his children educated in such a school, and so has Sir Victor Horsley, and a large number of the clergy send their children to such schools. And the problems and difficulties of co-education can only be solved in practice. In England we are slow to change, and we want very convincing evidence for a change to such a system as the co-educational. Let us see, then, what the life is like.

The boarding-houses are, of course, separate, but with that exception, the boys and girls are together at lessons and at games, and in all school sports competitions, debating societies. They sit together on the same form; they play many of the games together; then games committees are made for boys and girls. Boys and girls play hockey together, and the younger ones sometimes play cricket together; but the boys play football by themselves, and the girls net-ball. In other ways there are separations. A boy will turn to his boxing lessons, a girl to her sewing and embroidery. The girls are not so keen on games as boys, and in some schools it has been found that their standard of honour in games is not the same as boys. But association with boys makes them keener, and the standard of honour in games is raised. There is another difference. A healthy, normal boy will fight out his difference with another. He believes in physical force. It is a stage in his development. A girl believes more in moral suasion. In Keswich School the punishment for boys is detention and corporal punishment, and for the girls detention and suspension.

Now, of course, the first question asked is: Does this sharing of sports tend to make the girls too rough and the boys effeminate? All co-educational experience—and it is only in actual experience that these problems are worked out—goes to prove that the girls are not coarsened by this contact, and that the boys' standard of language and manner is raised. It may be thought that "it may not be so," but the fact is that it is so. The girls are much more sensitive to public opinion than the boys, and the wider view of things, and the more robust standard of boys in these matters brace girls up, and, on the whole, have a healthy influence.

In class work the presence of girls stimulates the boys. Boys—this is the experience of King Alfred School, Bedales, Keswick, and others—are quicker and more curious; girls are more receptive and more patient. These qualities react one on the other.

At Letchworth (one of the garden cities) co-education is being tried, and the headmaster endorses the opinion formed at other schools. "The boy acquires a higher standard of manners and behaviour; but the girl gains even more than the boy. We notice a most striking effect on girls wanting in the social sense or too individualistic. A girl will sacrifice herself for a person, but not for a community; she is wanting in the social instinct, but she develops it from contact with boys. She learns the meaning of esprit de corps, and as she will more and more have to rub shoulders with humanity, it is very necessary she should learn it. She has to learn, too, that there is a code of honour in relation to the world."

One must remember that the co-educational schools will not take pupils after 12 or 13 years at the latest, and they prefer to have them as young as possible, so that they may grow up naturally together. The ideal is, of course, an extension in the school of the best kind of family life.

All kinds of hobbledy-hoyishness are abolished by the co-educational system. Nor are there any sentimental friendships. If there were they would be laughed out of existence by the commonsense of the majority. Friendships there are of a better kind, but mawkishness and sentimentality have no chance at all to flourish. And a great advantage is that boys and girls come to understand one another's point of view. There is always a tendency for the boys to despise the girls' outlook, and for the girls either to envy or secretly dislike the boys' outlook. This arises from the fact that the boy goes to a public school, whereas the girl stays at home, and the difference in education is unduly accentuated. It is a great benefit and a necessary advantage that now, when more and more women are coming into touch on all sides of life, their point of view should be naturally understood by men. And this is best accomplished if done early. The co-educational school is the best prophylactic against the horrors of a sex war.

The writer of this article is a believer in the co-educational system, but he is a believer in caution. It must be remembered that the co-educational school to-day has much in its favour, even though it has to fight against ignorance and prejudice. It has the best of teachers—those who are thorough enthusiasts in their work. It has parents who are in full sympathy with its aims; it has therefore the best kind of atmosphere to encourage the fulfilment of its ideal. A sudden plunge on a large scale into the co-educational system might be disastrous.

PENELOPE'S WEEKLY NOTES.

As surely as

"Little drops of water,
Little grains of sand,
Make the mighty ocean,
And the desert land,"

even so surely does the "mere" halfpenny, penny, or twopence a pound increase on our meat make our butchers' weekly bills run to quite serious figures. "Once upon a time," not nearly as long ago, as "the good old days," we could buy a very fair-sized leg of mutton for about 1s 9d or 2s. To-day we pay double that price for a joint neither better nor larger. The day of cheap meat has gone, almost certainly never to return, and the housekeeper has long since survived the hope that Legislation, whatever other works it may achieve, will ever compass that most urgent one of reducing the cost of food.

Dear meat has now become one of our familiar burdens. Just prior to the late meat strike we were being charged 4½d a lb for sirloin of beef—to-day its price is 6d a lb. Ribs of beef were then 4d—now we are asked to pay from a halfpenny to a penny a lb more for that joint. Corned beef is 5d a lb now as against 4d then. These prices in both cases are those of town tradesmen. In most suburban localities—particularly the more "select" ones—one has to pay still more per pound for one's meat. To quote now, from the prices charged by a well-patronised butcher in a very popular neighbourhood:—Leg of mutton, 6d a lb to-day as against 4½d before the meat strike; sirloin of beef and short loin chops, 8d a lb now as against 6d then; neck of mutton, 6d a lb now as against 4½d then; and cutlets, 9d a lb now as against 6d then. These are the cuts of meat, perhaps, most commonly asked for, and it may be seen that the increase per pound upon beef and mutton within the last four months runs from ½d to 3d, according to the "cut" of meat required and the locality of the butcher's shop. The prices charged by most of the metropolitan shops are less startling. Strangely enough, veal and pork do not appear to have "suffered" an increase at all. Tripe remains at 4d per lb, ox tails are 1s each, and ox tongues 2s 6d to 3s each.

* * * * *

Fruit hunger has almost disappeared from among us, and the result is that business in the markets is now quite frequently reported "dull." Pineapples still remain large and ornamental, but little asked for, at 1s and 1s 6d each. Many housekeepers have taken advantage of the jam melon season, and set upon their shelves a goodly store of melon and pineapple jam. Oranges are increasingly plentiful, and may be bought for as little as 6d a dozen. Large rosy apples are to be bought as cheap as oranges. Custard apples (from Queensland) are 6d each; bananas may be had for 8d a dozen and upwards; pears run from 6d to 2s a dozen—at the latter price they are excellent; at the former scarcely worth buying. Large, fine strawberries are to be had at 1s 6d and 2s a punnet; mulberries are plentiful, at 6d a basket (mulberry pie and cream make an excellent "sweet" dish); Cape gooseberries are to be bought for the same price as mulberries.

* * * * *

The cold weather has played havoc with the growth of our suburban French beans, and, whereas but a little while ago they were so plentiful and cheap as to be scarcely worth the labour of picking, to-day they may scarcely be bought, and the best of them are as much as 2s a peck. Cauliflowers are with us in abundance, and run from 3d to 8d each, according to size; peas are 2s 6d a peck—only a few pence dearer than beans, but well worth buying. Here and there they may be bought for 1s 8d and 2s a peck, but they are naturally less good than at the higher price. For some purses, however, these latter priced ones may be recommended. Cabbages run from 4d to 8d apiece; the medium-sized cabbage will generally be found to be tenderer than the very large. Jerusalem artichokes are 2d a lb. (Besides being useful as a vegetable artichokes may be put into soup with great advantage.) Sweet corn, very young and delicate, is only 2d a cob. Rhubarb seems very fresh at present. Stewed, it is excellent: and in pies, trats, and puddings very good. Rhubarb jam is well liked by many—the housekeeper in Scotland uses it for purposes not deemed sufficiently important to warrant the use of her "best" preserves. Large yellow guavas are 1s a dozen—too dear for jam or jelly, but excellent for dessert. Passionfruit are dearer and scarcer again, those worth buying at all being 1s 6d a dozen.

HEROES AND HEROINES.

Heroes once were always disdaining to speak, and spurning their foes. Nowadays, no hero disdains to speak, and no hero ventures to spurn anyone—least of all his foes—writes Katherine Gerould, in the "Atlantic Monthly." He is humble of heart and very loquacious. Mrs. Humphrey Ward has inherited from George Eliot, and the latest heroes of Mr. Galsworthy and Mr. Hewlett, for example, are the children of Vernon Whitford, Matey Weyburn, and Owain Wyther. They are humanitarian and democratic; they are ignorant of hatred; they are inclined to think the ill-born necessarily better than the well-born; and they are quite sure that women are superior to men.

But take a handful of heroes elsewhere: the Rev. John Hodder, the ex-convict "Daniel Smith," V. V., or even Corystan, the Socialist peer. Where in the lot of them do you find either pride or reticence in the old sense? Where, in any one of them, do you find the satanic charm? Which one would Harriet Byron or Jane Eyre, or Catherine Earnshaw, or Elizabeth Bennett have looked at with eyes of love?

Women, as we know, have long wanted to be talked to as if they were men; and the result is that the heroines now let themselves be lectured at in a way that very few men would endure.

Meredith railed against the "veiled virginal doll" as heroine. Well; our heroines now are never veiled virginal dolls; but sometimes our heroes are. Lancelot has gone out, and Galahad has come in.

FROM PARIS.

Mr. H. N. Southwell, whose generous help to innumerable girl concert-givers in the past entitles him to a place on the Page for Women, writes from Paris:—"My holiday is slipping away with wonderful ease. Several delightful unmarred weeks of pleasure in Italy made me wish for enough wealth to go no further for the rest of my life. Then a trip through the flower land of Holland and the old lovely cities and quaint villages promptly transferred my allegiance. In the wake of Holland came the claim of Belgium, with its brilliant capital, and Bruges and Ostend and vigorous Antwerp. I came to Paris quite tired of travelling, and saying to myself, 'I just want to be able to say I saw it.' Behold, I am invigorated by the colossal life and beauty of this amazing city. How can I ever leave it? It is grandly magnificent, and in no particular more than in the marvellous streets and myriads of people. The Champs Elysees is a blaze of brilliant life, and the boulevardes stun the brain with their complex activity. The cafes are always full, but there is no placid life as in the Italian cafes.

"While in Brussels I received an impulsively worded letter of welcome from Madame Melba, in which she wanted me to come and stay at her house in Paris, and giving me facilities for hearing opera in Covent Garden 'whenever I liked.' This was very kind of her, and I very much appreciate it. I go to London next Monday. If it beats Paris, then I must have another shock."

CHAPTER XXVIII.

The same night passed as sleeplessly for Herbert Goddard as it did for Clive.

As he stood in the doorway, watching the departure of his guest, his brain was in a whirl, and certain words kept repeating themselves over and over again so that it almost seemed as if he were shrieking them aloud. "It wasn't I—it wasn't I—I never dreamed of such a thing—and yet—God, he might have died!"

He shook his fist at Clive's retreating form. "It was an accident," he muttered, "that careless fellow, Thomson—he was in the place with me when I unpacked the adders, and I left him there—the spiders were all right when I went out—I looked at them—yes, it was certainly Thomson and an accident—but yet—if I had thought of that way—such an obvious accident—"

He struck his cheek fiercely with his clenched fist. "You fool," he exclaimed, "you haven't the pluck—you were horrified when the thing happened—you'd have risked getting stung yourself in an effort to save if you'd had the chance—yes, you would, just sheer instinct—yet you want to kill—to sweep your enemy out of your path! 'As long as the same earth holds us both,' she said—and what other way is there? Oh, you fool, you fool."

He went back into the house, where he found Mr. Hartridge, with old Gradidge in attendance, holding a strict inquiry into the cause of the accident to the spiders' cage. He had summoned the various assistants before him, and had already arrived at the conclusion that Thomson must be guilty, though the man stoutly protested his innocence.

Mr. Hartridge, however, was not prepared to show any mercy, and Thomson was given notice there and then; after having thus administered summary justice, the court was dismissed, and Mr. Hartridge, with hardly a word to Goddard, allowed himself to be wheeled away to his own apartment.

Goddard had a suite of rooms to himself on the ground floor, which communicated with the reptile house. The sitting-room had a glass door to it—a sort of French window—with heavy curtains which could be drawn at pleasure. The bedroom communicated directly with this apartment.

Now it happened that night that Goddard was unable to sleep. The same thoughts that had tormented him the afternoon kept repeating themselves under different forms, so that he could obtain no rest.

He had an enemy whose death he desired—but he had not the pluck to kill. He could not even formulate a plan by which the ends might be achieved. He was not of the stuff of which murderers are made.

Besides, he had no active dislike for the man whom he wished to injure. It was only to gain his own selfish ends that he desired him out of the way. Herbert Goddard had a conscience, and it was his conscience that was torturing him now.

Suddenly—it must have been about midnight—as he lay awake, he became conscious of a sound in the reptile house. Holding his breath, he listened with all his ears. Yes, there could be no doubt about it. Somebody was there, moving stealthily as if wearing soft slippers or rubber-soled shoes.

Goddard sprang out of bed and slipped a heavy fur overcoat, which happened to be lying handily over his pyjama suit, on, groping his way in the dark, he entered the sitting-room, crossed it, and drew back a fold of the curtain that was drawn before the window. Even before doing this he had realised that there was a light in the reptile house—he could see the glint of it through the curtains, which did not come wholly together.

Goddard stared in bewilderment—half imagining that he must be dreaming. He had expected to see one of his assistants, who may have left something behind, and have come across from the cottages to get it. The man had their keys, and could get in from the outside.

The glass door opening on to the grounds stood ajar, and it was obviously by this way that the intruder had effected an entrance. But he was a stranger to Goddard.

He was a tall, slouching man, and as he bent over the boxes that contained the puff-adders, with which he appeared to be intently occupied, Goddard noticed that he had remarkably bushy eyebrows and a nose that was so hooked as to be almost misshapen.

Herbert Goddard stood, rooted to the spot, unable to move hand or foot. The thing was so surprising, so utterly beyond comprehension.

Who was this stranger who had broken in by night, and what was his concern with the snakes?

Goddard was quite sure that he had never seen the man before. He knew every soul living in the neighbourhood by sight, if not personally, and this individual was utterly unlike any one of them.

He did not look like an ordinary thief, or like a tramp. His clothes were good, but the cut of them was strange and out of date—the man had the appearance of a foreigner, and the broad-brimmed hat he wore came down well over his eyes. It was when he lifted his head that Goddard had noticed those heavy brows that came together in a peak just above the hooked nose. It was a malignant face—an evil face.

Of course Goddard knew what was his duty. It was obvious. He ought to interfere—to interfere at once. Here was a trespasser bent on some evil purpose—there could be no doubt as to that. He must be treated as any thief who breaks in to steal.

But somehow Goddard was unable to do this; he could only stand there, gripping a fold of the curtain on either side of him with nervous fingers, as if he were hypnotised—he could not even cry out and give the alarm—although this would have been of little service, since no one else slept in that part of the house.

Why was it? The man was alone, and had no suspicion that he had been discovered. A quick attack, and he would no doubt be mastered. Yet that attack was not levied. Why?

It was because a paralysing reflection had shot into Goddard's brain, and deprived him of all power of action.

The mysterious enemy of Arthur Darrell—the man who had threatened to murder the son, even as the father had been murdered! Could this be he? There was reason to think so.

In a flash Goddard recalled the conversation which he had overheard between the soi-disant Arthur Darrell—the man whom he had not yet learnt to think of under his true name—and Naiada Gale.

It was, so he had gathered, to take this dancer upon himself that the former, at the request of Mr. Lindley, had adopted the role of Arthur Darrell. Goddard had thought the whole story suspicious, but, in the stress of his own concerns with regard to Naiada, he had given insufficient attention to it; but he remembered that Hartridge—yes, that was his rival's real name—had made light of the peril that was supposed to threaten him.

But now it seemed as if there might be some real foundation for it, and that here, under Goddard's eyes, was the enemy himself. For what about the Gallodes that afternoon? Was it not likely that they had been let out, with Hartridge, Mr. Bacon, Sir Hubert and Sir Alfred East, the thought the general standard of excellence of the pictures at the exhibition spoke well for the high level of all that was best in British art at the present time. In England we moved slowly; we did not readily adopt new ideas, but herein lay, perhaps, one safety as regarded the future of art in this country. He did not want to curb any legitimate originality or true inspiration of the artistic sense, but it would be prudent if some of the new schools of art followed a little nearer in the footsteps of the great masters instead of indulging in the most fantastic vagaries of artistic license which we saw in some of the exhibitions of modern pictures. He supposed he had himself open to the accusation of having been educated up to the point of being able to appreciate these phantasies of the brush at their real worth—(laughter)—but he must confess that he preferred to remain true to the teachings of the old masters, and he ventured to think he was in good company in that respect. Modern art—and perhaps it was a good fault—was becoming somewhat aggrieved; it no longer asked for recognition, but demanded it in a slightly overbearing fashion. He hoped that the influence of the Royal Academy might be sufficient to keep the rank and file of artists from indulging in the extremes of artistic license. It seemed almost a crime to use the sacred name of art as the cloak for what seemed to him a perverted view of the artistic sense.

IF A CHILD IS CROSS, FEVERISH, and SICK, LOOK, MOTHER! IF TONGUE IS COATED, CLEANSE THE LITTLE BOWELS WITH "CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS."

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver, and bowels so nicely.

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is that they become clogged with waste, the liver becomes sluggish, the stomach is disordered, and then your little one becomes cross, feverish, and does not eat, sleep, or behave naturally. Often the breath is bad, and system "stuffy" with a cold; the child has sore throat, stomach-ache, or diarrhoea. Listen, mother! See if the tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a healthy, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs," because it is perfectly harmless, children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver, and bowels.

Ask your chemist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages, and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company," and sold by all leading chemists, 1/-, and 1/9 per bottle. Refuse any other kind with contempt.—Advt.

ARTISTIC LICENSE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Following remarks made at the opening of recent exhibitions of pictures and correspondence on art teaching and progress, the speech by Prince Arthur of Connaught at the Royal Academy banquet, reported in a London paper, may be of interest:—

Prince Arthur of Connaught, in replying to the toast, said they all deplored the loss of the late Mr. Solomon Hart, Mr. Bacon, Sir Hubert von Herkomer, Sir Alfred East. He thought the general standard of excellence of the pictures at the exhibition spoke well for the high level of all that was best in British art at the present time. In England we moved slowly; we did not readily adopt new ideas, but herein lay, perhaps, one safety as regarded the future of art in this country. He did not want to curb any legitimate originality or true inspiration of the artistic sense, but it would be prudent if some of the new schools of art followed a little nearer in the footsteps of the great masters instead of indulging in the most fantastic vagaries of artistic license which we saw in some of the exhibitions of modern pictures. He supposed he had himself open to the accusation of having been educated up to the point of being able to appreciate these phantasies of the brush at their real worth—(laughter)—but he must confess that he preferred to remain true to the teachings of the old masters, and he ventured to think he was in good company in that respect. Modern art—and perhaps it was a good fault—was becoming somewhat aggrieved; it no longer asked for recognition, but demanded it in a slightly overbearing fashion. He hoped that the influence of the Royal Academy might be sufficient to keep the rank and file of artists from indulging in the extremes of artistic license. POULTRY.

Questions relating to fancy or commercial poultry-keeping, diseases, etc., should be addressed to "Accons," "Herald" Office.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Anxious.—There are so many books on poultry-keeping that it would be difficult to say which would suit you best. Write to any of the booksellers for their list. The "Poultry Book of Australasia" is practical, and should form one of your selection.

Berowra.—There is no best breed. There are a number of successful poultry farmers in your district, some who specialise in several breeds; others who keep but one or two. Leghorns, Langshans, Plymouth Rocks, Minorcas, Rhode Island Reds, Sussex, and Wyandottes are all breeds which can be profitably kept. There may be others. You should visit the show this week at the Municipal Markets, where all the above will be on view.

E.H.R.—(1) The trouble appears to be liver disease, for which there is no cure. (2) Orpingtons would possibly give you best results. There may be good laying strains of Wyandottes in this State, but those sent to the competitions have done rather poorly. Langshans are a satisfactory breed to keep.

Reader: The white Leghorn hen, with the pale legs, is from your description a much better exhibition bird than the one with the discoloured and wrinkled earlobe.

Puzzled: The large score which is being made at the present Australian egg-laying competition is more apparent than real, there being ten birds in a pen as against six in this and other States.

Breeders of Sussex fowls are increasing at such a rate that a meeting has been announced for Saturday evening, at the Municipal Markets, with the object of forming a club to advance the interests of the breed.

Poultry farmers desirous of securing concession tickets for the Hawkesbury College poultry conference, should apply not later than to-day, to the Under Secretary for Agriculture.

Messrs. C. J. Turner and Sons' sale of pure-bred fowls on Wednesday last, was one of the best of the season, good prices ruling throughout. Leghorn cockerels went up to 24s each, Plymouth Rocks 20s, Indian Game 14s, Wyandottes 12s, and Orpington 7s 6d. Breeding pens of Plymouth Rocks fetched 25s, and 28s. Pullets and hens were scarce, prices being fair.

The largest collection of pure-bred hens and pullets of the season will be offered at the Premier Co-operative Poultry Company's overflow sale to-day. Leghorns, Orpingtons, Langshans, and Wyandottes will form the bulk of the consignments.

There has been for several consecutive years such a diminishing entry at the shows of the poultry club that some people spoke of the fancy as being dead, or a thing of the past. Others believed there were as many admirers in the State of fine fowls as ever, and only required looking up. The latter has proved to be correct, for under new management, with Mr. W. H. Tombs as pilot, the poultry entries for the forthcoming show have increased beyond all expectation to nearly double that of last year. With such a response, the club should in a year or two be able to regain its lost position as having the largest poultry exhibition in the State. The show opens to-morrow, at the Municipal Poultry Mart for exhibits open to 10 o'clock each of the three nights.

There are still some people who think that the bulk of the chickens are hatched in the spring months, and that hatching at other times is unprofitable. People who are in the business for a living hatch all the year round, or when eggs are available. There was overwhelming evidence of this on Thursday last, when, at the various poultry sales there were actually thousands of from 3½ to 5 months old chickens, an age which necessitated their being produced in January and February last, months considered by some to be the worst in the year for incubating, but, whether or not, hatching at the periods mentioned would be discontinued did it not pay.

The egg-laying at the various sections of the Hawkesbury College competition for May very largely exceeded that of the corresponding month of last year. For the two months in the 13th competition Mr. S. Champion leads with Leghorns, 133; Mrs. Gressod, W. Leghorns, 172; A. S. M'Kimm, Langshans, 168; E. T. Thomson, W. Leghorns, 163; E. J. Goddard, Langshans, 155; L. L. Ramsay, Orpingtons, 154. Messrs. Salter, Nicholson, Partridge, White, and Speed lead in the two-year-old section. In the test of open yards against the closed houses, or intensive system, the ten pens in the open yards have produced 913 eggs, against 819 for those in the closed-in houses.

A sample of the interest which is taken in egg-laying competitions in America can be gauged by the fact that one woman poultry farmer in Idaho forwarded a pen of fowls to the Storrs competition, Connecticut. They were obliged to travel eight miles on mule back, 28 miles by stage coach, and, after that, a long railway journey. Notwithstanding this, the birds at the end of the twenty-fourth week held the highest pen average in the contest.

In order to develop poultry-keeping in Scotland, the Scottish Board of Agriculture has established a number of egg distributing stations. The breeds approved by the board include Buff and White Orpingtons, White Wyandottes, Rhode Island Reds, Plymouth Rocks, Light Sussex, Minorcas, and White, Black, and Brown Leghorns. Ducks include Aylesbury and Indian Runner. There are in all 261 stations, from any of which smallholders, cottagers, and farm servants may obtain settings of eggs at a price of 1s a dozen. The arrangements include the payment to the station holders of 1s 6d a setting in respect of the first hundred settings distributed, and 1s for each setting supplied in excess of that number. But the bonus is payable only in respect of settings sold to the classes named, and it is understood that smallholders include only those who occupy an area of land of not more than 50 acres, or whose rent does not exceed £50.

Petaluma, where the incubators of that name come from, in California, and the largest poultry-raising centre in the world. Within the radius of a few square miles it is estimated that there are over one and a half million laying hens, while over 2,000,000 chickens are hatched and reared annually. Petaluma shipped during the past 12 months 7,159,481 doz. eggs, and 120,012 doz. fowls; while the hatcheries there used over 3,000,000 eggs for their immense day-old chicken trade; one hatchery alone turns out over a million day-old chickens annually. It is possible to take a drive for several miles in almost any direction and see nothing but poultry farms, from two to ten acres in extent. There are large ranches with 15,000 to 20,000 head of laying hens. Ninety-nine per cent. of the fowls are Leghorns.

DIPHTHERIA AT LITHGOW.

In view of alarming reports concerning diphtheria at Lithgow, the Acting Minister for Public Instruction caused investigations to be made by Dr. Willis, principal medical officer of the Education Department. The Acting Minister has now received that officer's report, which he states proves conclusively that the municipal authorities have either made a very serious miscalculation, or that they have been wrongly informed. Dr. Willis' report shows that, instead of 77 cases of diphtheria occurring amongst school children, only 56 cases have been notified from amongst the whole population of Lithgow during the 12 months ended April 30 last. The number of cases occurring during that part of the 12 months included in this year can be regarded as very small, when it is remembered that there are 1,300 children enrolled at the schools, and that at present diphtheria is so rife throughout the State.

HANDBOOK FOR NEW SOUTH WALES.

To commemorate the first visit of the British Association to Sydney a handbook has been issued for the use of members, which gives an outline of the history, more important problems and studies of social, economic, and natural science in New South Wales. Mr. W. S. Dun, the editor, has been fortunate in enlisting a very distinguished band of contributors, many of whom are recognised throughout the world as authorities in their various spheres. The first section of the book is devoted to economic and social subjects. Mr. Trivett discusses the history and geography of the State, while there are sketches of its literature, legislation, industrial laws, and so forth, by other gentlemen. Mr. J. C. Watson writes upon "The Labour Movement," and Mr. L. A. B. Wade on water conservation. There are also chapters dealing with education, railways, agriculture, dairying, fruitgrowing, and other matters connected with our national development. The second section is devoted to naturel science, and treats of the zoology, botany, physical geography, and geology of New South Wales. The editors in charge of these sub-sections are Professor Haswell, Mr. J. H. Maiden, Professor Lawson, and Professor David, who have been assisted by a number of learned contributors. The whole handbook is an admirable one, and the utmost credit is due to those who have been responsible for its production.

NOTES.

The well-known bulldog Calder Monocrat died recently in Brisbane. This dog was a son of Calder Solitaire, and was bred in the kennels of Mrs. Freeman, of Arncliffe, who sold him at a high price to Dr. McEncroe, of Brisbane. Monocrat won several championships in Queensland.

In New South Wales, Victoria, and South Australia dog fanciers have for some time been at variance. Without going into the merits of the question, it may be said that the conflict is between the bodies that seek to govern and the specialist clubs. The members of these clubs own nearly all the dogs, and their one or two breed shows have proved very successful. Instances of this have been the recent record shows of the Victorian Fox and Irish Terrier Club and the bulldog clubs of Victoria and South Australia.

A New Zealand Yorkshire terrier fancier has brought from Mrs. Mason, of Sydney, a blue and tan puppy bitch. A Sydney silky puppy has been transferred from Mr. J. Cosgrove to Mr. F. Belot.

Mr. R. Cookson, president of the Sydney Silky Yorkshire and Australian Terrier Club, is convalescent after a long illness. He has gone away for a holiday.

Mrs. Campbell, one of the founders of the Queensland Ladies' Kennel Club, who is in Sydney, has called on several of the Australian terrier fanciers. Mrs. Campbell says that Australian terriers are popular in Brisbane, and it is more than likely that a strong team will be sent down to represent the northern State at the A.S.S.Y. and A.T. Club's forthcoming show.

Mr. J. E. Cook, of Newcastle, visited Sydney last week. He has in quarantine the imported Yorkshire dog, Bright Gold, and two bitches. Their coats, which were not in good condition when they arrived here, have improved. They will be exhibited at the next show.

The Fox-terrier Club held a meeting last Thursday at the Customs-house Hotel. Show matters were discussed, and also a proposal from another club to hold a combined show. Entries for the club's annual exhibition close on Saturday.

Mr. George Parkes, of Forest Hill, Canterbury, who died last week, was a consistent supporter of foxhounds, harriers, and beagles. Mr. Gerald Barry, who is now in England, presented him with the important foxhound Nobleman, whose blood predominates in most of th hound winners.

CRITICISM OF AWARDS.

"Cattledog" writes:—"Are not prize-winning dogs open to criticism? Must not owners expect it? Are not most owners "sports" enough to desire it in order to know and learn what are their dogs' good or bad points? Is is not the owner to defend his exhibit from his own point of view, and draw attention to any feature that he may think has been overlooked by the critic? Is it not a fact that such public criticism is the only way to check mistakes in judging, and to prevent dog shows becoming a farce? Are not dog shows held for the purpose of pointing out the best-shaped dogs? If by by bad judging inferior dogs receive awards, will not the whole section eventually reduce to lowest grade?

"Is it not true that some judges are sometime influenced by other judges' decisions and repeat their awards? As a safeguard, does not every true dog man prefer and welcome just criticism? Do not real fanciers, if they believe in their dogs' merits, take criticism in good part, knowing it is merely to uphold the best that is going, and is contributed entirely free of ill-feeling or personality?"

COMETS.

HOW ONE WAS SPLIT IN TWO.

PROFESSOR COOKE'S LECTURE.

The second of Professor Cooke's series of three University Extension lectures was delivered at Killara Hall, Killara, last night, to a large audience. The subject was "Comets."

"Until quite recently," said the lecturer, "comets were regarded with superstition and awe, and as portents of dreadful things to happen. In people's imaginations, their very appearance was distorted." Professor Cooke then went on to refer to the many well-known comets. eH spoke interestingly of the great work of the astronomer Hailey, in connection with the comet that bears his name; how he discovered its motion round the sun in an elliptic orbit, and predicted its return in 70 years; and how that prediction was verified. By that verification, practically the last stronghold of superstition was destroyed. Then there was Encke's comet, which was watched by Rumker at Sir Thomas Brisbane' observatory at Parramatta in May of 1823, Encke having predicted its return, and also that it would be only visible in the Southern Hemisphere. It was watched until 1858, and then it had diminished to half its original size. Astronomers thought this indicated a resisting medium in space.

Holmes' comet, first seen in 1893, gradually faded aye, and latterly only with a strong telescope. It changed wonderfully. Lexell's comet, discovered in Paris in 1770, was visible for four months, and was predicted to return in five and a half years, but was never seen again. Biela's comet, discovered by an Austrian officer of that name, was found to be identical with a comet observed in 1772 and 1805. Its return was predicted for 1832, but it was next seen in 1839, and again in 1845. Towards the end of that year a protuberance was noticed on the comet, and in January of the next year it was seen to have split in two. It has not been seen since. Moorehouse's comet was also referred to.

The lecturer said there were many remarkable comets, and many varieties. He dealt interestingly with their formation.

LATE MR. W. H. SMITH.

Probate has been granted of the will of the late William Henry Smith, the well-known jockey, who died at Auburn on March 25 last, from injuries received at the Rosehill races a few days previously, to the widow, appointed Mabel Roberta Smith, and John Thomas Lang, auctioneer, of Auburn, executrix and executor and trustees of his estate. He bequeathed all his household furniture and effects and his motor car to his widow absolutely, and an annuity of 30s a week to his mother during her life. The residue of his estate he bequeathed to his trustees upon trust to pay the income to his widow until his son, William Henry, attained the age of 21 years, when the income was to be divided equally between his widow and son. On the death of the widow the whole estate passes to the son absolutely.

The net value of the estate was sworn at £14,976 15s, of which £6754 represented real estate.

Of victims to colds there would be fewer
If folks used Woods' Peppermint Cure."—Advt.

SELLING A SECRET.

CAIRNS (Q.), Tuesday.

John Hunt was committed for trial on a charge of using a fraudulent device to mislead the public. He inserted an advertisement in the local press stating he would send any married woman for half a crown a valuable secret, which had cost him £10. The evidence of a chemist went to shew that what accused had recommended was worthless for the complexion.

STATE MAIN ROADS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Judging by what one sees between New York and the West Coast of California, one cannot but notice how much better the roads are there for general traffic than is the case in Australia. At the present time a cemented highway is being constructed from New oYrk right across to San Francisco, sufficiently broad for motor cars and other vehicles to pass one another with ease. Engineers elicited the information that money is borrowed by State issues of road bonds for highways, and the interest on the amount borrowed, and cost of maintenance, is supplied by annual taxes on motor cars, motor cycles, motor trucks, and other vehicles. Many motor tourists informed my brother and myself that they had heard the main roads in Australia are in such a rough state, that they did not feel encouraged to come so far, and they spoke disparagingly of the hotel accommodation as compared with America. Is it not the case too, that our shires councils would be willing to keep the subsidiary roads in good order if they were relieved of the cost and the care of the leading highways? In a sketchy way, I suggest that our State Government might open negotiations with the local governing bodies, and say to them we are willing to construct the main roads from Sydney to the west, another to the north, and another to the south, and keep them in good repair, if you, on your part, will undertake to keep in like good repair all roads that branch off from the main roads." The suggested modus operandi for raising the money might be something like the following:—

Motor cars and motor trucks or trollies to be taxed annually, in approved proportion to weight, with a minimum tax of £5. Motor cycles £1, and cycle cars £1 10s per annum each. Wheeled vehicles to be classed hereafter, but, say, at a minimum of £1 each. Presuming there are 13,300 motor cars and motor cycles and trucks in the State, and 50,000 other wheeled vehicles, the estimate of annual income would be as follows:—

(b) 2000 motor cars, at an average of £7	£1,000
(c) 6000 motor cycles, at £1	£6,000
(d) 50,000 other wheeled traffic, at minimum of £1	£50,000
	£189,500

Of course, the tax rates should be such as, in addition to paying interest, to cover the estimated annual cost of maintaining the roads in thoroughly good order. If the State Government issued, as required, transferable road bonds carrying four and a quarter per cent. interest, payable half-yearly, and repayable in —— years, say, £1,000,000 for first issue. The annual interest would be £42,500, leaving £60,000 for repairs, etc., and probably considerably more each year as the population increased. The road board trustees, out of surplus revenue, to be empowered from time to time to retire the bonds by ballot, or, if preferred, by buying in the open market.

This is only a rough outline of the suggested scheme, in absence of statistics bearing on the point. The bonds would suit many people as an investment, as doubtless they would be quoted on the Stock Exchange, and at any time could be readily salable. As time goes on, and population increases, the income should go on increasing, and the trustees would probably be able to reduce the tax, as, after all the bonds had been retired, the income would cover the cost of keeping the main roads in order, or, if not sufficient, the Government could issue further bonds if thought necessary. Motor cars would be in much greater demand if the roads were kept in thoroughly good repair, and in consequence more employment would be provided by those who build motor cars, and a corresponding increase of motor garages would necessarily take place; also there, by, there would be increased inducement for tourists to visit us, and the man on the land would get his produce to the railway or market with greater despatch. During my recent visit to California, I discovered that there were upwards of 50,000 motor cars registered in that State alone. I am, etc.,

Don't Neglect Your Skin!

RUB ZAM-BUK IN & AVOID WINTER SKIN TROUBLES

THE skin is one of the most sensitive parts of the human body, and because it is also the most exposed to injury and disease, it ought to get more attention than most people think it necessary. One should be exceptionally careful just now, because June is a very critical month for the skin. It has been fighting against big odds all through the summer, and the odds are bigger just now, both because of the trying weather, and because the first crop of early winter pimples and nasty eruptions may be expected—unless the skin is corrected and fortified by Zam-Buk.

A sudden chill, dirt in a cold-crack or small abrasion, and skin weakness are all likely to lead to trouble. Neglected chafings, "chaps," chilblains, cold-sores or cuts may also cause more serious disease in the shape of festering wounds, ulcers, or itching sores, and even chronic Eczema is often traceable to neglect in the early stages of a simple affection.

Smearing the skin with Zam-Buk has an almost instantaneous cleansing effect. So pure are the juices in Zam-Buk that they sink deep into the pores, permeating all the minute "machinery" of the tissues, and they end the trouble thoroughly and efficiently.

Zam-Buk treatment gives proper moisture and a workable flexibility to the tissues, and so induces the blood to circulate better. Thus the outer skin gets properly fed, normal activity and strength are restored, and the whole tissue is made sound and strong. June winds are now powerless to hurt, and blotches, pimples, sores, usually so common in early winter, are either quickly banished or entirely avoided.

In advanced stages of skin disease Zam-Buk destroys germs, acts as a powerful antiseptic, allays irritation, takes out inflammation, and finally aids Nature in the replacing of new healthy skin.

The Zam-Buk protective and corrective treatment is ideal because it is natural, and natural because Nature's saps and juices enter into Zam-Buk's composition. Don't increase the odds against the skin by resorting to coarse, fatty ointments and cold creams or liniments and embrocations containing poisonous minerals. Such crude preparations often have a distinctly harmful effect, and in no case do they accomplish real and lasting good, as Zam-Buk undoubtedly does.

The Zam-Buk treatment can reasonable claim to be a revival of one of the LOST ARTS of the old Grecian days, when proper care of the skin was universal.

Zam-Buk is a perfect healer for Cuts, Bruises, Burns, Scalds, Abrasions, Boils, Eczema, Pimples, Running Sores, Scalp Troubles, Poisoned Wounds, Festering Sores, Bad Legs, Ulcers, Abscesses, Ringworms, Diseased Ankles, Teething Sores, Barber's Rash, Swellings, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Old Sores, and Injured and Diseased Conditions of the Skin. Zam-Buk is also invaluable as an Embrocation for Rheumatism, Stiffness, Sprains, etc. Zam-Buk is obtainable from all Chemists and Stores at 1/6 per pot, and 3/6 special large family size (containing nearly four times the 1/6 pot). "Daily mishaps make Zam-Buk a daily need," and the busy housewife needs a pot of this pure healer always handy for herself and babies, and the bread-winner for the knocks and bruises he sustains at his work.

EVERY HOME NEEDS ZAM-BUK.

WIND-CHAFED SKIN AND CHILBLAINS.

Mrs. Maud Niham, of 68 Simpson-street, East Melbourne, says:—"My skin is naturally very delicate and tender, and having to go out in all sorts of weather and winds, I suffered a great deal from skin irritation. My face was often sore and extremely painful, and although I tried many remedies, I did not get any ease whatever.

"Some Zam-Buk came into my possession, and I decided to try this balm. Its splendid soothing influence was delightful, and in a very short time my skin was in a splendidly healthy condition. I have derived great benefit from Zam-Buk. I dressed a child's hands, who was suffering from chilblains, with Zam-Buk. Its wonderful healing properties quickly gave the child ease, and healed the chilblains. I attribute my children's clear, healthy skins to the occasional use of Zam-Buk."

WINTER ECZEMA.

At this season, eczema is a particularly troublesome complaint. For three months, Miss Norah Quigley, of 12 Cowper-street, Glebe, Sydney, was tortured night and day by a distressing form of eczema.

"An attack of eczema caused me intense suffering," says Miss Quigley. "This horrible disease first commenced in the form of blisters, which merged into one another, and then spread and swelled in a fearful state. The pain and itchiness was maddening, and I felt as if I could tear myself to pieces.

"For three months I remained in this terrible state without relief. My mother then obtained some Zam-Buk, and we dressed my arms with it. I had only been using Zam-Buk a little while when I was once more able to enjoy a good night's rest, for the pain and itchiness were ended. By persevering with Zam-Buk the eczema was completely cured."

LAW REPORT.

BANCO COURT.

(Before the Chief Justice without a jury.)

SHAREBROKER'S COMMISSION.

This was an action brought by the Wild Cherry Tin Mining Co., No Liability, against William Soutar, sharebroker, of Post Office-chambers, Pitt-street, Sydney, for the recovery of £623, which the company alleged was due to it through the defendant overcharging commission at the rate of 6d per share in connection with the flotation of the company.

Mr. Campbell, K.C., and Mr. Windeyer, instructed by Mr. S. M. Sutherens, appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Shand, K.C., and Mr. Pickburn, instructed by Messrs. Perkins, Stevenson, and Co., for the defendant.

The case stands part heard.

NO. 1 JURY COURT.

BARREN JACK DAM.

ACTION ON A GUARANTEE.

Lane v Peters.

Mr. Loxton, K.C., and Mr. Monahan, instructed by Messrs. Harold T. Morgan and Morgan, appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Garland, K.C., and Mr. Betts, instructed by Messrs. Piggott and Stinson, for the defendant.

This was an action brought by Walker Lane against Thomas Peters to recover the sum of £4500, being the balance alleged to be due by defendant on a credit bond or guarantee. The case for the plaintiff, as stated by Mr. Loxton, was that the parties to the action are contractors, and up to about 1907 they were in partnership, one of their contracts having been the construction of the Cataract dam in connection with the Sydney water supply. Some time at the end of 1908 or the beginning of the following year, the partnership having by that meantime been dissolved, defendant tendered for the contract for the construction of the Barren Jack dam, which involved an expenditure of something like £300,000. His tender was accepted before defendant's contract was accepted he saw plaintiff and pointed out to him that if he (defendant) obtained the contract he expected that the profit would be about £50,000. He asked plaintiff to assist him in financing the matter to some extent, and plaintiff subsequently agreed to give a guarantee to the London Bank of Australia, Ltd., in the sum of £5000. He also promised that, if necessary, he would increase the guarantee by £2000. Defendant gave promissory notes for the amount, the last being due on July 7, 1910. After defendant's contract was accepted and work had proceeded for some weeks he offered plaintiff a one-fourth interest in the job if he would finance him to the extent of £5000. Plaintiff replied intimating that it would not make further advances unless security by some third party was furnished. Plaintiff went into figures and later on the and defendant visited Barren Jack, and being satisfied with the inspection, he agreed to guarantee the bank on behalf of defendant for a further sum of £2500, but refused to accept as security the interest on the contract, which defendant had offered to him. In 1909 plaintiff asked defendant for something on account of the guarantee, and on January 25, 1910, defendant paid him £1200. He subsequently paid further sums, making a total payment up to December, 1910, of £2500, but he denied that he was liable for the balance now sued for.

Defendant pleaded that he did not agree as alleged, and never indebted.

In the course of his evidence defendant denied that he asked plaintiff to give any guarantee beyond the sum of £5000. On one occasion plaintiff told him that the bank had asked for a further guarantee for additional advances, and plaintiff added that it would be all right. He (defendant) was not called upon by his bank to give a further guarantee. The first he heard of the second guarantee was in October, 1912, when plaintiff met him on the racecourse, and subsequently plaintiff wrote to him stating that he owed him £4200, but after seeing his accountant he wrote to the plaintiff denying the alleged indebtedness. The sums paid to plaintiff were paid at the latter's request.

IN EQUITY.

(Before the Chief Judge, Mr. Justice Simpson.)

INCOME TAX ASSESSMENTS.

Nosworthy v Commissioners for Taxation.

Mr. Knox, K.C., and Mr. A. M. Harper, instructed by Messrs. Minter, Simpson, and Co., appeared on behalf of Robert John Nosworthy, secretary and public officer of Burns, Philp, and Co., Ltd., and made an ex parte application for an injunction to restrain the Commissioners for Taxation from proceeding with certain income tax assessments, and enforcing payment of the same.

Plaintiff set out in his statement of claim that Burns, Philp, and Co., Ltd., was assessed for, and had paid, income tax for 1912 and 1913. In accordance with the provisions of section 17 of the Income Tax (management) Act of 1913, he, as public officer of the company, furnished to the defendants for the years 1912 and 1913 respectively, returns of income received by the company, stating the name, occupation, and address of shareholders to whom the company had paid dividends during the years mentioned, and the amounts of dividends so paid. Certain of the shareholders were resident out of the State, and he had furnished no returns of income for or on their behalf, nor had he included in the income tax returns furnished by him in respect of his own income, the dividends, or any moneys representing the income of any of those shareholders. Defendants had now assessed the income of plaintiff, as agent for each of the shareholders. In default of furnishing returns, and were claiming income tax from him as such agent in respect of the sums paids to shareholders as dividends for the periods mentioned, and the total amount of income tax so claimed was £3884 11s 5d.

Plaintiff had never been agent of the said shareholders for the purpose of income tax or the receipt or disposal of income, nor had he ever had any money or assets belonging to them, or under his control, or carried on any business on their behalf. The company had never been the agent of the said shareholders, nor had it any moneys or assets belonging to them. He had duly lodged with defendants notice of objection to the assessments of the income tax, and had in accordance with the regulations asked defendants to accept such notice as notice of appeal to the Court of Review. Defendants required payment of the amount claimed, and unless the sum mentioned was paid on or before June 10, he would be liable to be sued for the amounts, with the addition of a fine of 10 per cent. for default in paying the moneys. He had requested defendants to expedite the hearing of the appeals to the Court of Review, and to allow such appeals to be heard without the prior payment of the amounts claimed, to have the question of his liability decided on a test case, and to refrain from taking proceedings to recover the amounts until the appeal had been heard; but they had refused to do so unless the amounts claimed were first paid by him.

Plaintiff prayed among other things that it might be declared that the assessments in respect of income tax for 1912 and 1913 respectively were illegal and invalid; that defendants be ordered to amend or cancel all entries in the assessment book relating to the income for the years mentioned, or the income tax referred to in respect thereof; and that defendants be restrained by injunction from proceeding with the assessments or any of them, and enforcing payment of them.

His Honor granted an injunction till Friday next, with leave to move to continue it on that day.

MEMORANDA OF MORTGAGE AND TRANSFER.

Original Mont de Piete v Isaacs.

The hearing was entered upon of a suit in which the plaintiff was the Original Mont de Piete, Ltd., and the defendant Maude Eleanor Isaacs, executrix of the will of Adolphus Isaacs, deceased.

Mr. R. K. Manning and Mr. Abrahams, instructed by Messrs. John Williamson and Sons, appeared for the plaintiff company; and Mr. Lingen, instructed by Messrs. Piggott and Stinson, for the defendant.

The plaintiff company set out in its statement of claim that by a memorandum of mortgage dated November 27, 1896, John James Jeune, who was the registered proprietor of 2¾ perches of land in the parish of Gordon, mortgaged the land to Adolphus Isaacs, to secure the repayment of certain moneys. The mortgage remained undischarged, and moneys were due in respect of it. About December 13, 1900, Horatia Mary Wardell Sherwood, who was the registered proprietor of about 135 acres of land in the Swan District, Western Australia, transferred the property to Adolphus Isaacs, in consideration of certain moneys. At the time of the execution of the mortgage and the memorandum of transfer, Adolphus Isaacs was a director of the plaintiff company, and it was alleged that the whole of the moneys paid to Jeune and Sherwood belonged to the company, and that memoranda of mortgage and transfer were taken and held by Adolphus Isaacs as trustee for the company. Adolphus Isaacs died on September 2, 1910, and probate of his will was granted to the defendant. Adolphus Isaacs was registered as the proprietor of the mortgage and transfer, and the company had requested defendant to execute the necessary documents to enable it to become registered as transferee of the mortgage and proprietor of the Western Australian land; and had offered to pay reasonable costs to her in connection therewith; but she claimed to be absolutely entitled to the mortgage and the land, and had refused to execute any document.

Plaintiff prayed that it might be declared that Adolphus Isaacs had been, and defendant was, trustee for the company of the memoranda of mortgage and transfer; that defendant be ordered to all things necessary to enable the company to become registered as the transferee of the mortgaged land and as proprietor of the Western Australian property.

The defendant stated that she did not know, and could not admit, that the moneys alleged to have been paid (which payment she did not admit) were moneys belonging to the plaintiff company, or that the memorandum of mortgage or transfer were taken or held by Adolphus Isaacs as trustee for the company. Plaintiff had refused to give her any or sufficient information, explanation, or admission by the testator to rebut the inference to be drawn from the properties being in his name, and she submited that in any event she was entitled to her costs of the suit from the company. By way of counter claim, she stated that the company was in possession of the title deeds of other property standing in the deceased's name, and belonging to his estate, and particularly land in Western Australia, granted to him in 1889. Plaintiff had refused to give further particulars thereof, and she was therefore unable to describe it more accurately. She alleged that the company had refused to deliver up the documents of title mentioned, and prayed that it be ordered to deliver up the documents and discover what other properties she was entitled to as executrix of the will of Adolphus Isaacs, the title deeds of which were in plaintiff's possession.

His Honor held that Adolphus Isaacs held the lands as trustee for the plaintiff, and ordered defendant as his executrix to transfer them to the company, costs for the plaintiff, with liberty to defendant to set off the costs incurred with regard to the resealing of probate in Western Australia. The counter claim was dismissed with costs.

HANNAH CROWSHAW'S ESTATE.

Stansfield and others v Crowshaw and others.

Judgment was delivered in the suit of Stansfield and others versus Stansfield Crowshaw, in which the plaintiffs obtained leave to buy certain land at Waverley.

Mr. R. H. L. Innes, instructed by Mr. G. W. Phillips, appeared for the plaintiffs, Archibald Stansfield, of Beaudesert (Q.), Ada Humphrey, of Waverley, Ellen Georgina Delarme, of Killara, Walter Carter, of Waverley, and Anna Maria Lewis, of Paddington; and Mr. Bonney, instructed by Messrs. Boyce and Magney, for the defendants, Ambrose John Stansfield Crowshaw and others, who were infants under the age of 21 years.

The petition set out that the late Hannah Crowshaw settled one-fourth of certain land at Waverley upon certain trusts, alternately for the benefit of the infant defendants. In 1903 the owners of the other three-fourths sold their interests to the petitioners, who asked to be allowed to purchase the remaining one-fourth on the basis of its value in 1903.

His Honor declined to make an order as to the basis of value without hearing further evidence. The matter was allowed to stand over till Friday next to give the parties an opportunity of conferring with a view to fixing a basis on which the land was to be sold.

A CANBELEGO HOTEL LEASE.

Fennell v M'Loughlin.

This was a matter in which Mr. Norman Pilcher, instructed by Messrs. Collins and Mulholland, made an ex parte application on behalf of Michael Henry Fennell, hotelkeeper, of Bodoongara, near Wellington, for an injunction to restrain Margaret M'Loughlin, of Wilson-street, Newtown, from further proceeding against him in an action for ejectment from certain hotel premises at Canbelego, near Cobar.

It appeared from the statement of claim that defendant gave plaintiff a lease of the hotel at Canbelego, and that she had recently instituted proceedings to eject plaintiff from the premises on the ground that he had committed certain breaches of the agreement with regard to the lease.

His Honor granted an interim injunction till June 15, with leave to move to continue it on that day.

The matter was allowed to stand over for further evidence.

KEECH v KEECH.

Harold John Keech petitioned for a divorce from Margaret May Keech, formerly Conrad, on the ground of misconduct with John Patrick Flynn, who was joined in the suit as corespondent. The parties were married in Melbourne on January 31, 1911, according to the rites of the Presbyterian Church.

(Before Mr. Justice Edmunds.)

NOMINATION OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. Barker, of the United Storemen and Packers' Union, nominated as the employees' representative on the Transport Group No. 17 Board George Buckingham, 11 Dick-street, Balmain, vice William Barr, resigned. His Honor recommended the nomination.

Mr. Henwood, on behalf of the Farriers' Union, nominated George Rowland, of the Trades Hall, Goulburn-street, Sydney, as the employees' representative on the Iron and Shipbuilding Trades Group, No. 10 Board, vice Charles Hones, resigned. The recommendation was granted.

In connection with the Costume Makers' (Chart) Board, Mr. S. J. Carruthers, accountant, nominated by affidavit Charles Lloyd Jones, a director of David Jones, Ltd., Sydney, as the employers' representative. The vacancy on the board was caused by the death of the late W. T. Waters. The nomination was recommended.

Mr. S. J. Carruthers, secretary of the Master Retailers' Association, nominated by affidavit Sam Hordern, director of Anthony Hordern and Sons, Ltd., as the employers' representative on the Professional and Shopworkers' Group No. 8 Board, vice W. T. Waters, deceased. His Honor recommended the nomination.

In connection with the nomination of employers' representative to the Labourers' Group, No. 1 Board, Mr. Porteus appeared for the Minister for Works, and Mr. Richards for the Master Builders' Association. The matter was adjourned by consent to Friday next.

SPECIAL DEMARCATION BOARD.

The Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners and the Australian Society of Progressive Carpenters and Joiners made applications for special demarcation boards for the industry.

The Amalgamated Society asked for the constitution of the board to determine whether ship joiners and ship carpenters should be employed to do certain work in connection with the making, fixing, and repairing of all woodwork on ships, motor boats, and launches, to the exclusion of employees in other callings.

Mr. W. J. Corbitt, on behalf of the applicant body, set out that shipwrights had recently claimed certain work on various ships and boat-builders had claimed, and were doing, certain portions of their (carpenters and joiners) work on launches. The Amalgamated Society of Engineers had recently claimed that portion of the work known as "lagging."

Objection to the application was lodged by Mr. H. W. Jackson on behalf of the Shipwrights' Provident Union. The demarcation was granted in 1904, and expired in 1907, cost an immense amount of money and time, and worked very satisfactorily. Till 1911 it was worked under, notwithstanding that it was not law. In 1911 the Shipwrights' Employers ratified it, and they claimed it was law until its expiry in 1914.

The application of the Progressive Carpenters and Joiners was on similar lines to that of the Amalgamated Society.

Further objection to the applications was taken by Mr. Macbeth, on behalf of the Boat-builders' Union, and Mr. Deegate, for the Amalgamated Society of Engineers.

The applications were adjourned till Friday next.

BOARD DISSOLVED.

The dissolution of the Professional and Shop-workers' Group, No. 11 Board, was granted.

BUILDING TRADES CASE.

The application for a variation of the award of the Building Trades Group, No. 1 Board, by several of the bodies affected was further heard.

Mr. Corke, on behalf of the Sydney and Suburban Timber Merchants' Association, concluded his argument, and was followed by Mr. Broomfield, on behalf of the Master Builders' Association.

The matter stands part heard.

(Before Mr. G. C. Addison, Chief Industrial Magistrate.)

"BOOKING-OFF."

The Minister for Labour and Industry, by Inspector W. D. Clarke, proceeded against the Chief Commissioner for Railways and Tramways on a charge of a breach of the Government Railway Group, No. 3 Board award, in "booking-off" in the day time, for less than two hours, an employee named W. Simpson, a guard, having an interval during his time on duty when he was not required to work.

Mr. Bretnall appeared on behalf of the defendant.

Simpson stated that on February 13 last, he signed on at 7.15 a.m., at Sydney, and signed off at 3.45 p.m., at Penrith. He signed on again at 5.34 p.m., on the same day at Penrith. He signed off at 7 p.m. at Sydney. Between 3.45 and 5.34 p.m., he was waiting about for a train to come home, and between 5.34 and 7 p.m., he was travelling with the guard as a passenger. He was not paid for the time between 3.45 and 5.34 p.m. When travelling as a passenger he could be called on to do duty, and on occasion he had been so called upon.

In defence, Mr. Bretnall produced the regulations and referred to them. He said that a guard was paid when travelling as a passenger, and when so travelling had to assist the other guard, if necessary. When the man signed on at 5.34 he was not signed on for duty, but merely as a passenger travelling home. Certain practices were in use before the award, and he submitted that the board did not intend to alter the practice then existing.

Inspector Clarke submitted that the Court would take the literal meaning of the award, and not the regulation.

Mr. Addison said that it seemed impossible to construe the award as providing for the interval between the time of finishing work and the signing on in order to travel home as a passenger, although the interval had been specifically provided for in the Departmental instructions. The award only dealt with the interval between ceasing work and taking up work again, and the provision in the award in respect of that interval, was in the same terms as that contained in the previous award, and in substantially the same terms as that contained in the departmental instructions, which had been in force for years. No claim, therefore, could arise under the award in respect of the period after knocking off work and before travelling back as a passenger, during which time the guard, though called upon to report, and perhaps occasionally assist the train guard, was not "on duty" within the meaning of the award. The board could, of course, provide for the matter if it thought fit.

No order was made against the defendant, and £2 2s costs allowed against complainant.

A WAITER'S PAY.

Vera Reynolds, of the Grand Pacific Cafe, Coogee, was charged with a breach of the Domestic Group, No. 3 Board, in failing to pay a waiter in a class B restaurant, the minimum wage of £1 12s 6d.

A plea of guilty was entered, and it was stated that the waiter was paid £1 10s a week. Defendant told the inspector that she read the wrong clause in the award.

An order for 5s, with 16s costs, was made against defendant.

MUSICIANS' AWARD.

Lilian Symons, of 86 Hunter-street, was charged with a breach of the Professional and Shopworkers' Group, No. 1 Board award (Musicians), in failing to pay "a person who plays for reward a musical instrument, in weekly engagement, other than grand opera, general theatrical engagements, circuses, and picture shows," the minimum weekly wage of £3.

Inspector Nolan prosecuted, and Mr. Dreyer, appeared for the defence. A plea of guilty was entered.

It was stated that the defendant employed the musician for two months at £1 a week. The restaurant was The Ritz.

Mr. Dreyer said that the lady was employed before the award came out, and defendant did not know of its existence. The girls only worked 12 hours a week.

An order was made against defendant for £2, with 17s costs.

For not exhibiting a copy of the award, defendant was fined 10s, with 6s costs; and a similar amount for not keeping correctly-written time and pay sheets.

OVERTIME AND NOTICE.

Andrew M'Kye, Pittwater-road, Manly, was charged with a breach of the Food Supply and Distribution, No. 1 Group, No. 4 Board award, in failing to pay overtime to a pastry-cook named J. Sorensen. The amount was 8s 1d. Defendant was fined 10s, with 15s costs.

There was a second charge against M'Kye of failing to give Sorensen a week's notice of intention to discharge him. Mr. Landon prosecuted, and Mr. Atkinson appeared for the defence. M'Kye stated that he asked the union secretary to send him a good man. Sorensen came over and witness told him he was too old, but he would keep him on till the end of the week. No order was made against defendant, complainant being ordered to pay £2 2s costs.

CLEMENT MASON C.C. CO. v CENTENNIAL PARK R.R., LTD.

The hearing was concluded of the action in which the Clement Mason Cinematograph Company, Ltd., of Sydney, claimed £89 17s 2d from the Centennial Park Roller Rink, Ltd. of Bondi Junction, for damages for alleged negligence with regard to the hire of a photo. film.

Mr. James, instructed by Messrs. Robson and Cowlishaw, appeared for the plaintiff company, and Mr. Milner Stephen, instructed by Mr. F. A. Davenport, for the defendant company.

Plaintiffs alleged that, during the hiring or transit of the film, damage had been caused to it to the extent of the amount claimed, and that defendants did not take proper care of the film, but returned it in a damaged and practically useless condition.

The defendants denied the alleged negligence, and pleaded that the film was faulty when they received it.

OWERS v HARRISON AND ANOTHER.

James Owers, contractor, of Campbell-street, St. Peters, was the plaintiff in an action against Leslie Morris Harrison and Percy William Shave, trading as the Federal Company, of Vickery's-chambers, 82 Pitt-street, Sydney, for the recovery of £100, alleged to be the amount of deposit paid by plaintiff to defendants on December 5 last, in connection with a contract for the purchase of the Commercial Hotel at Mittagong.

The defence was that plaintiff was suing the wrong parties, and, even if he were suing the right parties, that they had accounted to the vendor for the deposit.

Mr. O'Reilly, instructed by Messrs. Dawson and Hereford, appeared for plaintiff, and Mr. J. M. Sanders, instructed by Messrs. Shipway and Berne, for the defendant company.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

(Before Judge Backhouse and juries.)

Mr. A. F. Dawson, Crown Prosecutor.

NOT GUILTY OF WOUNDING.

Garnet Leslie Boardman, 30, was charged with having maliciously wounded Elsie Andrews, at Newtown, on May 23.

Mr. J. W. Abigail appeared for the defence.

The case for the Crown was that Andrews received a wound in the hand, and she said that the accused had caused it with a knife.

Andrews, in her evidence, said that she was now satisfied that the injury was caused accidentally.

His Honor said that, under the circumstances, the jury could not convict Boardman, and directed an acquittal. The jury acquitted Boardman, and he was discharged.

ALLEGED BREAKING AND ENTERING.

Leslie Dale and William Heffernan, two young men, were charged with breaking and entering the warehouse of John Rankin and another, at Sydney, on April 9, and stealing 201b of bacon and 801b of cheese.

Mr. J. J. Kiely appeared for Dale; and Mr. H. Levien for Heffernan.

The case for the Crown was that at about 6.15 on the evening of April 9, an employee of the municipal council, named Glynn, saw two men acting suspiciously outside of a produce store kept by Mr. Rankin, in Sussex-street. Glynn informed the police, and on going to the store it was found that the lock of the front door had been broken off, and Heffernan was on the footpath close by. On entering the store Dale was seen standing there with a bag containing the cheese and bacon at his feet. Heffernan was detained, and he and Dale were afterwards arrested.

Glynn, in his evidence, said that he could not identify the two men whom he saw outside the store; Heffernan was a good deal stouter than either man.

At the close of the Crown case, his Honor said he considered that no jury in the world would convict Heffernan on the evidence, and directed the jury to acquit, which was done, and he was discharged.

Dale, a carter, in his defence, said that when he was passing Rankin's store he noticed that the door was open, and, thinking that there was something wrong, he went inside, and had been there but a short time when the constable arrested him. Witness had worked at another store opposite to Rankin's for three years. He did not see anyone standing outside when he went inside the store. He had carted chaff to Rankin's store, but he did not know where the bacon and cheese were kept.

The jury returned a verdict of not guilty, and Dale was released.

ACQUITTED OF ASSAULT AND ROBBERY.

James M'Dowell, 22, and Leonard Keiran, 19, pleaded not guilty to a charge of assaulting John Rowell, at Redfern, on May 15, and robbing him of a bottle of beer and £2 17s.

Mr. Leslie Gannon appeared for Keiran; M'Dowell conducted his own defence.

Each of the accused denied the charge, and said that they were not near where the assault took place.

The jury, without leaving the box, acquitted both of the accused, and they were discharged.

SENTENCE DEFERRED.

Patrick Dolan, 49, who had pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing in the dwelling-house of Maud Clontans, at Sydney, on May 8, a watch and chain and a necklet, the property of Lucia Jenkins, was bound over on his own recognisance to appear for sentence when called upon.

Mr. V. Read, who appeared for defendants, said the firm was anxious to, and actually did, comply with the factory regulations, but the men removed the protective covers themselves.

Mr. Smithers: You can make the machinery foolproof, I suppose?

Mr. Read said that put the case in a nutshell. They had no wish to evade the law.

AFTER ENTERIC OR TYPHOID FEVER TAKE CLEMENTS TONIC.

An Officer who Served with his Contingent in South Africa writes.

Clements Tonic is admitted a splendid restorative medicine after severe attacks of fever, influenza, operations, or slow-fevers. It is rapid in its effect upon run-down or emaciated systems. This testimony is given by Corporal John Turner, 102 Regent-street, Newtown, who served with his contingent in the Boer War. He writes, 14/8/'13:—

"CLEMENTS TONIC, LTD.

"Having contracted enteric fever during the South African campaign, serving with 2nd Australian Light Horse Contingent, and after returning home completely run down in health from the after-effects that ensued, I was prevailed on by a friend to try a bottle of Clements Tonic. Finding it did good I kept using it, and was restored to full health. I have never regretted acting upon my friend's advice, and still take a dose occasionally if I feel anyway out of sorts. You may publish this if you wish.

"(Signed), CPL. JOHN TURNER."

For the cure of lassitude, physical breakdown, anæmia, or bloodlessness in women, hysteria or melancholia, debility in men or lack of vital force, indigestion, flatulence, biliousness, sick headache, palpitation, constipation, or irregular kidney action, no medicine equals Clements Tonic, because it keeps the bowels regular, the stomach healthy, and the nerves strong. ALL CHEMISTS AND STORES SELL IT. Send for it. It lengthens life and keeps disease distant.—Advt.

Good for the Whole Family.

"A good cough remedy is one that can be depended upon to cure coughs. Not one that cures some particular cough, but coughs in general.

It must be a cough remedy that can be relied upon for all the different coughs that are so prevalent in Australasia. While the causes of all coughs are primarily the same, yet the condition of the patient is what makes the difference in the nature of the cough itself. Coughs of healthy persons are easier to cure than the coughs of invalids. The powerful convulsive cough of a large man is harder to cure than the cough of a baby. If you get a remedy that will cure a large man's cough, and yet not be too powerful for the baby, you have a good cough remedy.

CHAMBERLAIN'S COUGH REMEDY

is just this kind of remedy. It is good for any member of the family. It cures coughs of all kinds. It is the product of much thought and study to produce an ideal cough remedy. It is composed of things which cure easily and soothingly without harming the most delicate tissues of the throat. It acts as easily and safely on the young as on the old. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the ideal remedy for coughs, colds, croup, influenza, whooping cough and bronchitis."

Yours for Health —"Granny" Chamberlain.

SLAUGHTERING COWS.

A few years ago the slaughtering of cows in the Argentine had reached such a pitch that the Government of that country was compelled to intervene, as there appeared to be a danger that the meat export industry would be wiped out in the course of a few years. Of course the reason of this marketing of cows was the high prices offered for beef, and the same thing is happening in Australia to-day. If the slaughtering of cows proceeds at the present rate there will be need for legislative action, otherwise the serious position of the meat export business will be intensified tenfold. Queensland appears to be the chief offender in this matter. At the principal saleyards in the northern State for months past the number of cows offered for sale has been well over 50 per cent. of the total yardings, and on occasions they have been over 60 per cent. Where all these cows come from appears to be a mystery. It has been suggested that they are the result of persistent culling of dairy herds, consequent on the work of the herd-tester. But this is not quite the truth, as in most cases the dairy farmer who culls his herd does not spey his cows, but passes them on to the next man who will buy them; or, perhaps, to some struggling farmer who cannot afford to pay high prices at starting. That is one of the evils of the herd-testing system; it should be accompanied by some method whereby every cow rejected because it is a boarder in the herd would be made useless for milk production. Most of the cows sold in the saleyards are coming from the stations. They formed part of the breeders that have been speyed and fattened. Of course there must always be a proportion of cows coming in as a result of the end of their usefulness at the stud, but the number could not possibly reach the proportions recently noted. It must be due to the cupidity of stockowners, who see an opportunity of getting high prices, without any regard to the future. In view of the national aspect of this question the action of stockowners in marketing cows is being soundly condemned. It is claimed that even if the quality of the cows is poor, Argentina has bred up the finest herds in the world on a worse foundation—the native cattle. By the aid of good bulls—and these are now available in Australia—even the poorest cows can often be profitably utilised. Fortunately, the higher prices for fat stock are once more inducing cattle-owners to secure good bulls and do away with the grade bulls, that did so much to lower the standard of herds in the Commonwealth. Once more there is a boom in cattle, and strongly as sheep have become entrenched there are people now predicting that cattle will oust them on many holdings, so good a proposition do horned stock appear to be at present.

WHEAT SMUT.

Dr. Humphrey, of the Washington Experiment Station, has found that smut spores retain their power of germination for at least ten years. That long ago some smut balls were placed in a safe, dry place in the station laboratory, and of these a test was made quite recently to determine their vitality. So far as ability to produce infection of seed wheat is concerned, these ten-year-old spores are to-day just as active as ever. How much longer than this a smut spore will retain its vitality is at present not definitely known to scientists. At present Dr. Humphrey believes that wheat will germinate in a much lower temperature than will smut. The suggestion is made by Dr. Humphrey, who has charge of the smut investigation, that farmers who treat their seed wheat without blowing the smut balls out of it will most certainly reinfect their seed by passing it through the seeder, and crushing the balls. The failure to blow or float the balls from wheat used for seed he gives as one of the most prevalent sources of smut infection. As observed microscopically, the germinating smut spore first of all produces a germ tube about ten times as large as the diameter of the spore. The upper end of the tube gives rise to a number of sicle-shaped spores which fuse, forming H-like structures. The latter are capable of producing infection by coming into contact with the wheat sprout of, say, a quarter of an inch in length. Should the sprout not lie near enough for contact, these long, sickle-shaped spores produce a generation of somewhat bean-shaped spores. These are capable of producing infection. Should this generation of bean-shaped spores not establish contact with wheat sprouts, a second generation of bean-shaped spores is produced. This process may be repeated for generation after generation.

Three hundred smut spores placed side by side would extend a distance of a fourth of an inch. A smut ball contains about three million spores, 80 per cent. of which, according to Dr. Humphrey's tests, are capable of germination, and a smutted head of wheat ordinarily contains from 20 to 40 smut balls. Giving these figures, Dr. Humphrey suggests that it should prove interesting to a farmer to figure how much ground 37,000 smutted heads of wheat would infect.

SUGAR-GROWING.

WHAT QUEENSLAND FARMERS ARE FACING.

The award recently made by Mr. Judge Macnaughten in Queensland, fixing minimum rates for labour in the canefields, has caused consternation to the cane sugar farmers in Queensland, even more so than when Mr. Tudor issued his celebrated order, fixing 8s per day for field workers. In the latter case there was always the chance that a change in political parties might lead to an alteration in the rate; in the case of Judge Macnaughten there is no appeal. The rates fixed were by way of appeal from the decisions of the industrial boards in the several divisions. It was hoped by farmers that when the industry was transferred from Federal to State control most of their troubles would be at an end—that their industry would no longer be the shuttlecock of politics. The boards, however, did not fix rates that were sufficiently high in the opinion of the employees, and appeals were made in the three instances.

His Honor gave very great consideration to the question of a minimum wage, and his judgments on separate occasions were of great length. He took pains to arrive at what he considered a living wage in the various parts of the northern State, and ultimately took an increase of 8 per cent. in the cost of living, and basing the wage on 8s a day existing, as he said, in 1911, fixed 8s 8d per day in the south, and 9s 2d in the central and northern divisions. The rates of cane cutting were fixed at 11s and 12s respectively. This happened to be the split in the difference between the amount which growers were compelled to pay under the order issued by Mr. Tudor in August, 1912, and afterwards confirmed by the Queensland Parliament, pending the settlement of the question by industrial boards, and the amount asked for by the A.W.U. The amount fixed was also higher than the log submitted by the employees in the southern board recently. The amount allowed for keep was 15s in the south, and 16s in the north.

It is calculated that the award will mean an addition of £200,000 to £250,000 to the cost of running the industry, and this amount must come out of the pockets of farmers—not the millowners. The rates are much greater than those fixed at the time the strike in the industry was settled a couple of years ago. From all parts of the northern State protests have been lodged, and many of the resolutions savour of despair on the part of the planters. His Honor, at the time, was apparently very doubtful about the ability of the industry to stand the impost, for he said: "I am of opinion as a result of the whole of the evidence before me that the capacity of the industry—so far at least as the growers are concerned—to bear the minimum wages now prescribed is very doubtful, and it may have to struggle for existence." The Judge, however, was not able to allow this fact to interfere with his duty. He based his action on the authority of Mr. Justice Higgins in the Harvester and Marine Cooks' cases, when he said: "The first condition in the settlement of this industrial dispute as to wages is that, at the very least, a living wage should be secured to the employees." Judge Macnaughten added that employers could always demand an inquiry as to the capacity of an industry to bear rates which would otherwise be fair. The answer to that inquiry would probably not affect the basic or living wage, but under special circumstances, as where an industry was struggling for an existence, it might be allowed to affect the amount of additional wage—the wage of skill.

The growers contend, and with much show of reason, that a vital blow has been struck at their industry. Even if it can carry the impost in the coming season, which is not expected to be a good one, much above the average, it will be most disastrous in bad times; and there are few crops so susceptible to changes as sugar, it being rare that good seasons are obtained consecutively. It is contended that the action of the Judge in fixing such a large amount for cane cutting, without naming any minimum quantity of cane that must be cut, will have the effect of practically killing the contract system. Men have been able to make large cheques by cutting cane under contract, and they did so by working long hours, which helped the farmer to get his cane off quickly, an important feature of the industry. This incentive will disappear under the new conditions. It is held that the effect of the award is wholly in favour of the nomadic labourers and against the interests of the resident wage-earners, who are wholly dependent on the industry for their living, since the tendency will be for the farmer to do with as little labour as possible in the working of his property. This in turn will have a bad effect on cultivation, because, unless the weeds are kept down the crop does not make such satisfactory progress. This will be a disaster. Under the stimulus of improved conditions during the last year there were many farmers who were employing a great deal of labour and acting the part of superintendents, while at the same time extending their cultivated areas as much as possible. There will now be a tendency to curtail the area under crop to paddocks of cane that can be conveniently dealt with by the family.

THE IRRIGATION AREAS.

A REPLY TO MR. ABBOTT.

In the course of a lengthy reply to Mr. W. E. Abbott's letter, "A Yanco Waster" says:—

Mr. Abbott seems to be exasperated because Mr. L. A. B. Wade has dared to say that he is satisfied with the success of this great scheme. Perhaps Mr. Abbott will be surprised to hear that many have come here with preconceived notions regarding the future prospects of this settlers of this area, that all are satisfied they have seen the large amount of development work done by both sides, and also the wonderful growth of the fruit trees, lucerne, vegetables, etc. We have not yet had the pleasure of a visit from Mr. Abbott, it is very evident; I am quite confident that he would return a convert. I may say, on behalf of the settlers of the area, that all are satisfied that this scheme will be a great success as time moves on, but, like all such schemes throughout the world, many difficulties have to be surmounted, and it is now recognised in the home of irrigation, America, that to gain the best results in the shortest time, and with the minimum of failures, much more assistance must be rendered to the settler in the preparation of his lands. Much money has been sunk owing to the long wait and imperfect preparation of much of the land, when left to the individual with his limited resources, up to the time that he was in a position to produce. Seeing all this, and the loss of rental that is sure to follow such a method, the Canadian Pacific Company boldly paid out all those who had not sufficient, and whom they thought could not succeed, and then prepared the blocks as ready-made farms, so that a man could come in with a reasonable amount of capital and with many chances of succeeding. Now, this company is not a philanthropic institution, and Mr. Abbott's mind can be at rest that we are not going down hill fast, with the wealth of the State scattered uselessly around us.

We settlers get no spoon-feeding, as so many glibly think; I can say with confidence that if Mr. Abbott only had a small spoonful of what we have got it would be enough for him. Here we are among the gums, working from daylight to dark every day, and spending our own money, which has been hardly earned. We are among the poor depositors that Mr. Abbott refers to in such a concerned way; we are drawing our little deposits that he mentions out of the banks daily, to help develop Australia, and without any return for perhaps two or three years at least. The sun rises and the sun sets, and we work along with stout hearts, looking into the future for all we may get, and our resources are getting less. Some poor fellows have spent their all, and are stigmatised as wasters by Mr. Abbott. We are spending all our money here in providing an asset for our country; we are making it possible to populate Australia, without which we must soon allow an alien race to take a hand, but this does not count with such men as Mr. Abbott. Surely the taxpayer is willing to help to protect himself, but the taxes for development of this great country must be paid, and the irrigationist will be in the position to pay a very large slice, owing to the greater production of these settlements. As settlers spending their money in developing this country, we have a right to ask the Government to step in and take their share of the work. We have a right to expect our lands to be rent free, and water also, pro tem., or may I tell Mr. Abbott, for at least the period that our lands take to bring them to the productive stage. Are we to do all, to give all our money and hard labour, with compound interest, to make a modest home only, and then to be called upon to pay up for what we do not receive any real benefit from?

To make this area the success it should be in as short a time as possible, we want our factories up, and then we shall soon prove to Mr. Abbott's mind that the Yanco Settlement is not what he contemplates. We shall soon be producing largely, and we want the factories, without which we cannot do anything. We want cold storage, fruitworks, bacon factory, etc.; this has to be done and it might as well be with us at first as last, as it will stimulate all to produce as fast as possible. Mr. Abbott will, no doubt, be surprised to hear that we can grow lucerne here as good as any in the State. We have run 450 sheep and over on 30 acres of some of our lucerne for six weeks, and they were prime when they were sold. If Mr. Abbott will sit down and take a pencil and calculate how many sheep 46,000 acres will carry, deducting 20 per cent. for ditchings, etc., he will have his mind illuminated, as also, when he knows that we can fatten at least 12 per acre, and run also from 15 to 20 pigs per acre. Artichokes grow like a weed once they are in, and this makes a balanced ration for pigs, of which much will be heard in the near future. All fruits do well here. I can show Mr. Abbott citrus trees that he cannot beat on age; I will show him vegetables that he cannot beat; I can show him lucerne that grows 28 inches in 14 days; then, I must ask Mr. Abbott how he formed his conclusions regarding Yanco and us wasters? Perhaps Mr. Abbott has something up his sleeve to show us. I hope he has, or for ever hold his peace, or talk about matters he has some knowledge of.

"We settlers—and I may say that I am no novice as an irrigationist—will have to write off some of our capital, not because we have made mistakes, but owing to unforeseen difficulties that we have to face with the heavy costs of all our plant and materials, and by charges and loss of interest of our money, before we emerge into a paying proposition. Then it is reasonable to expect that the Government are prepared to do the same. Why should we take all the burden? I have seen most of the irrigation settlement of the world, and I can say that this settlement offers inducements second to none, both in climate, soil, and many other points. I came to this land with my family, and it may surprise Mr. Abbott to hear that I thought so much of the scheme that I waited three years and more for it to mature. I am no novice. Am I satisfied with the future prospects? I may be asked. I can reply with all good faith that, put up your works to deal with our products, and there is no shadow of doubt in my mind.

A man may fail, but he is not a waster, he has had grit, but has lost through lack of sufficient capital to reach the goal.

In conclusion, I may say that he is wrong in assuming that this irrigation scheme is going to rob the riparian rights along the river. The dam will be an insurance that the river will always get its share, and Mr. Abbott can rest assured that the more the farmers know of the importance of the dam in conserving their rights, the more they will like it, and Mr. Abbott will also be willing to own up that he has made a mistake in coming to his hurried conclusions.

You have my address, Sir, and if Mr. Abbott will accept my hospitality, I shall be pleased to make him my guest, and I am confident he will return a wiser man.

THE MEAT TRUST.

Mr. M. F. Dalton, Kangaroobie, Mullion Creek, writes:—The reason of higher prices for cattle to-day is diminished numbers, the reason for diminished numbers in this country—you cannot consider dairy cattle in this question—is due to the fact that, generally speaking, cattle did not pay to raise on freehold areas or on country suitable for the breeding of sheep, wool-growing, or farming. Closer settlement is also having some effect, because cattle cannot be economically run on a farm. It is a notable fact that, in countries where the holdings are small, artificial means are resorted to to raise and fatten cattle, instance England, Ireland, Scotland, and most European countries, in all of which beef is necessarily dear, if it be the home product. The writer of the article in the "Herald" says the United States of America should certainly be able to produce sufficient meat for the local demand. Of course they could, but at a high rate, when the competition of the Argentine and Australia has to be reckoned with. Even if we have a beef trust established in this country, and the operation of that body is responsible for present high prices, what you predict may not rule in the distant future. do you think cattle raisers would continue to produce cattle at a loss? The American rancher, who has abandoned raising cattle, has to do so for the same reason the man in Australia has given up cattle raising in favour of sheep or wheat growing, because it did not pay, not because of the operation of the beef trust. The history of civilisation in America has been cattle runs, then sheep, followed by farms, resulting in the springing up of villages, to give place to towns, then cities; this is being borne out in Australia. Cattle will be still dearer, and I hope never cheaper, because the producer has so many additional financial burdens to bear, payable principally to the State, that he cannot produce cattle at a lower rate than obtains at present and leave a reasonable margin of profit. The reason of present prices is not difficult to find, when you consider the comparatively limited area on which cattle are now raised, the increased cost of production, marketing, killing, and distribution, added to which you have a considerably higher rate of wages than that ruling even a few years ago, and consequently people live better. The supplies of cattle sold weekly at Homebush are, I should say, double what they were 10 years ago. This points to increased consumption, and production has diminished.

[Unfortunately for the above argument, statistics do not support the statement that "the reason of higher prices is diminished numbers." The numbers have not diminished. According to the Official Year Book, the number of cattle in Australia shows an increase during the last few years, viz.:—

Year 1909	11,040,391

The total for 1911 is the highest on record. Although in this increase dairy cattle are included, this factor hardly justifies the assertion that the number of cattle is diminishing sufficiently to affect the price seriously. The biggest increase in the number of dairy cattle has been probably in New South Wales, and from 1908 to 1911 inclusive the increase in this State was only 110,662 head, while the total increase in all cattle was 238,302. Therefore, in New South Wales alone, there has been an increase in the number of beef cattle, according to the official figures. This would be still more the case in Queensland the leading cattle State. In Queensland there were 5,073,201 head of cattle in 1911, and 4,321,600 head in 1908. The 751,601 increase has not been made up by dairy cattle.]

Mr. Henry Smith writes:—With regard to the Beef Trust, I claim to have some knowledge after 43 years connected with stock selling and exportation, and studying the world's conditions from time to time. The whole thing lies in this, that we have not the necessary "balance of producers" of foodstuffs for the world's consumption, and this is becoming more accentuated. Whatever may have happened in the past, you will find that the American farmer has given up raising beef because of the vastly greater returns to be obtained from cereals, fruit, etc., than could be obtained from stock, under the most favourable conditions, due to the great proportion of non-producers, their desire for so many created wants, both as to foods, clothing and manufactures. The American beef purchasers are here after beef, because they must have it, and they are willing to pay a big price to the vast benefit of our stock owners and Australia. We and the Argentine are the only people with beef, and we cannot expect to hold back more than our needs when other nations are willing to pay for it. It would be a very selfish idea. Also the Americans know enough of the possibilities of Australian legislation to throw away vast sums on "sinister designs."

ABATTOIR COMMISSION.

The South Australian Commission on abattoirs continued its sittings at Parliament House yesterday. Mr. J. G. Moseley presided.

Mr. G. Maiden, fat stock salesman, of Moore-street, said the Glebe Island abattoirs were obsolete, as compared with those at Adelaide. He was not opposed to chilled meat, and believed it should be chilled in Sydney all the year round. He did not share the opinion that the erection of the large meat works in Queensland would affect local prices, for butchers in Sydney could get their supplies locally, without going to Queensland. He did not think that a dry season would have the effect of raising present prices of meat. He preferred the system of selling stock in Sydney to that obtaining at Adelaide. There would be a lesser degree of mortality, if the railway compartment were divided into four and not two.

In view of the export demand for meat, witness did not regard the outlook for local supply as a gloomy one. Local stock breeders would have to pay more attention to their industry than they had done in the past. Local demand and not export demand governed the high prices now obtaining.

Witness thought that if there was another meat export outlet in the way of State works stock owners would be safeguarded to some extent against trust methods. He had met only one representative of Swift and Company in Sydney—a Mr. Malkow. Witness thought the advent of a meat trust would assist the stock breeder. In Riverina to-day, owing to the Victorian demand, 20s to 24s was being paid for sheep.

AUSTRALIAN FRUIT EXPORT.

The Minister of Agriculture is in receipt of a communication from the Agent-General in London, under date of April 17, stating that with the arrival of fruit by the Otranto, Telamon, and Ceramic, the market has been well supplied, and prices have, in consequence, weakened, although not to any appreciable extent, as with the case in prices the demand has been correspondingly increased, and in view of the smaller quantity expected during the following week, the agents have not forced the sales of the fruit, and have thus been able to hold the market.

With regard to pears, it is stated that these readily bruise, and for this reason alone the bushel box is not suitable, as the pressure on the fruit becomes too heavy. It is said that the single layer tray is much more suitable, and, provided the pears are properly graded as to size, and selected as to ripeness, a permanently good market throughout the season is assured.

The Agent-General states that, up to the time of writing, the following are the averages of prices realised for the fruit:—Apples: Cox's Orange Pippins, 9/ to 11/ to 17/, wasty 7/; Jonathans, 9/ to 10/6 to 17/; Ribstons, 9/ to 10/6 to 12/6, Cleopatras, 9/ to 10/6 to 16/; Alexander, 8/6 to 9/6; other marks, 8/6 to 10/. Pears: Vicars, 7/ to 8/ (bushel box); Caplimont, 5/6 to 6/6 (large single-layer tray); Marie Louise, 9/6 to 10/ (two half-trays battened together); Bonne Louise, 9/ to 10/ (two half-trays battened together); Beurre Bosc, 11/ to 12/ (two half-trays battened together). Grapes: Gros Colman, 23/ (case 31lb); Flame Tokay, 8/9 to 9/6 (case 31lb).

DISTRICT EXHIBITS.

PRESENTATION TO ORGANISERS.

INVERELL.—Substantial recognition will be made of the services of Mr. E. A. Thomas and assistants who organised the district trophy, which secured first prize at the recent Royal Show. It has been decided to present Mr. Thomas with a gold watch of the value of 25 guineas, and Mrs. Thomas with a ten guinea bracelet, and Messrs. Brown, Sweeney, Fox, and Guan each with a gold medal and a purse of sovereigns.

DISTRICT ITEMS.

NARRANDERA.—Seeding has now been almost completed in this district, an increased area, due to subdivision of estates, and to the good autumn experienced, having been sown. Crops are mostly above ground and are looking well, though a good fall of rain would be welcomed. In some parts the season has been so mild that wattle trees are out in blossom. There is an abundance of good winter grass, and a record lambing is expected, stock generally being in very good condition.

QUEANBEYAN.—Foxes are very numerous in this and the surrounding districts. Drives are being organised for their destruction. At Fairlight station 25 were shot.

SALE OF STATION.

BERRIGAN.—Burrangong station, between Urana and Oaklands, has been sold by Mr. F. Gell to Mr. Maslin, of South Australia. The proposed Henty-Billabong railway runs through the property. This estate has been in the possession of the Gell family for nearly 60 years, and this is the first time the property has changed hands.

HANDS SWELLED AND CRACKED.
Ocean View, Licunda, Vic.—"Cuticura Ointment has cured my hands after suffering intense misery for several years. About eleven years ago little red spots appeared on both hands, which itched so terribly that I would rub them with the scissors till the skin came off. They grew worse, swelled and cracked, causing great pain, which, however, was not so bad as the irritation. I have waked in the morning to find my hands bleeding where I had scratched them while asleep. After being like this for about three years my hands gradually got better, but never well.
"A gentleman who had suffered from weeping eczema and who had tried everything cured himself with the Cuticura Remedies. He persuaded me to try the Cuticura Ointment, which I did. I used two tins of the Cuticura Ointment as directed, and my hands are well, the skin sound, smooth, and soft, whereas since they first took bad they have been hard, cracked, and dry, when not bleeding." (Signed) Mrs. H. Berryman, June, 1912.
Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world, a sample of each, with 32-page Skin Book, will be mailed free on application to R. Towns and Co., Dept. T., Sydney, N.S.W.—Advt.

THE FIG TREES.

MORE SLAUGHTER IN HYDE PARK.

A COUNCIL PROPOSAL.

Trees were the principal subject of discussion at yesterday's meeting of the Health Committee of the City Council, when a scheme was submitted to cut down the fig trees in Hyde Park fronting Elizabeth-street.

Concerning the motion by Alderman T. H. Kelly, that preference be given to native trees in street and park plantations, Mr. W. G. Layton, who is in charge of the parks, said that he did not consider that from the city beautiful aspect the best results would be obtained from giving preference to any particular kind of tree. The beauty to be derived from a judicious grouping of various kinds of trees with their ever changing shade and colour of foliage could not be denied. The trees for city parks should be selected from those which by experience were known to do well. There were numerous beautiful trees and flowering shrubs indigenous to Australia, which, with great care and attention, could be grown satisfactorily in gardens situated away from the smoke and dust of a great city, and, in congenial soil, but which would be very disappointing if tried against all the opposing forces named. So far as the city parks were concerned, they were so full of large, strong growing trees that there was little, if any, room for more trees of any kind.

With regard to trees for tree planting, the selection of those suitable for the purpose was extremely limited. First of all, such trees should be symmetrical in shape, and amenable to training on one straight stem. That condition alone greatly restricted the choice. Soil conditions varied considerably in Sydney. The Oriental plane had been found to do well under the most trying circumstances, although he did not consider it a satisfactory tree. In a sheltered street in Darlinghurst jacarandas were being tried, but did not promise much success. He proposed giving the Illawarra flame tree a trial, but when it was remembered that it was a scrub tree, and in its natural state was sheltered on every side, and grew in deep, rich soil, it could hardly be expected to give much success as a street tree planted in a pot hole, and exposed to every wind that blew. The lophostemon was a good street tree where the soil was suitable. At Moore Park various trees had been tried, and, with the exception of the Moreton Bay and Port Jackson fig trees the Phoenix palms had given the best results.

Alderman Lawrence moved in favour of the removal of the fig trees in Hyde Park along the Elizabeth-street frontage, with a view to making that portion of the park more attractive by the introduction of flower beds.

Mr. Layton said that the importance of the proposal was hard to over-estimate, as if approval was given to it, it must be considered the first real move by the council in the direction of reconstructing Hyde Park, a work which should not be delayed any longer. Tens of thousands passed through and rested in Hyde Park daily, and while a great deal of foundation work had been done by the City Council, very little had been done to really beautify the park, and to rectify the errors originally made in laying out and planning. Those who had been responsible for the planting of the Moreton Bay fig trees in the park could have had no idea of the growing capacity of these trees. The trees in the main avenue were very fine, and he hoped no suggestion would ever be made to destroy them, but something might be done to improve their condition, by a judicious and slight cutting back of straggling branches, with a view to encouraging their growth. Severe lopping, however, should not be thought of, as it destroyed the character of trees, and rendered them unsightly, as well as useless. While he was opposed to touching the central avenue, he was of opinion that it would be a decided move in the right direction to take out a large proportion of these trees in other parts of the park. If this were done, the beauty of the many fine specimens of Port Jackson figs and other trees would be enhanced. He believed in taking out the trees along the Elizabeth-street frontage, in order to be able to treat that portion of the park in a more pleasing and artistic way. Large masses of colour could be introduced, with a near background of groups of native trees and shrubs, and to his mind, the picture was alluring, and realisable, and would be a vast improvement on the monotonous rows of Moreton Bay trees. When the Elizabeth-street frontage had been reformed and beautified, the other three frontages should be dealt with on similar lines, relying for variety on the introduction of flowering shrubs, etc. There was a disposition in work of this kind not to look very far ahead. As evidence of what was possible if a reasonable number of trees were removed, he directed attention to such reserves as Belmore Park, Lang Park, and Macquarie reserve, where sufficient trees had been left to afford shade, and give the necessary landscape effect. Hyde Park should contain all the elements that made for beauty, restfulness, and refinement.

Alderman Lawrence contended that the parks were too dead at present. They wanted livening up by the introduction of patches of colour, which would please the eye.

Alderman Sandy: But not give shade.

After discussion, consideration of the proposal was deferred until next meeting.

TARIFF INQUIRY.

PAPER DUTIES.

EVIDENCE BEFORE COMMISSION.

At the Interstate Commission's inquiry into the tariff yesterday, Edward John Erskine, general manager of Crompton and Co., Ltd., electrical engineers, gave evidence with regard to the removal of duty on catalogues of British manufacture printed in Great Britain. The duty, he complained, prevented the widespread distribution of the catalogues, for which his firm made no charge.

George Thompson, general manager of Messrs. Stewarts and Lloyd's, Ltd., tube manufacturers, confirmed the evidence of Mr. Erskine. There was an element of injustice, he said, in making British manufacturers pay duty on catalogues in bulk, when foreigners escaped payment of duty.

Edward Everett, representing James Williamson and Son, Lancaster, England, linoleum manufacturers, applied for removal of duty on lithographed patterns of floorcloths and linoleums. Witness said linoleum was not manufactured in Australia, and the removal of the duty would not injure an Australian industry.

A. G. Huie, secretary of the Free Trade and Land Values League, who applied for the removal of duty on paper-hangers or wall-paper, said the Customs' taxes on paperhangings or wall-paper were of a revenue character. They had the effect of increasing the cost of the article to the trade and the public. Such goods were not made in Australia.

James Perritt, decorator, and Charles Morrison, importer of wall papers and oil and colours, also gave evidence. The latter said he did not think it would be possible to manufacture wall papers in Australia for many years. Large and expensive installations of machinery would be necessary even for the manufacture of monotone wall papers.

N. McIntosh, manager of Carmichael and Co., representative of the Wayagamack Pulp and Paper Company, Three Rivers, Quebec, asked for a preferential duty on craft paper manufactured in Canada, equal to that now enjoyed by British manufacturers.

Robert Sands, of John Sands, Ltd., recalled, opposed the abolition of duty on leatherboard and wood pulp board.

Mr. Nall, who gave evidence on Friday, stated that pasteboard was not made in Australia, but he understood that the Cumberland mills were about to manufacture it. Only the Cumberland mills could touch the manufacture of this pasteboard.

Colin, McLeod, of John Sands, Ltd., gave evidence to show that the duty asked for by the Cumberland paper-board mills would mean that on the extra cost of the boxes a tailor would lose ½d in profit on every £5 suit; a milliner would lose 1d on three hats valued at £2 each; a bootman would lose 1d on 14 pairs of boots valued at £14; a cigarette manufacturer would lose 4½d on 1000 complete boxes sold to the tobacconists, at £9 15s a thousand boxes filled. A food purveyor, putting up oatmeal, for instance, in 2lb cartons, would lose ½d on 10 boxes. A caterer would lose ½d on six boxes of cakes valued at, say, 10s; a tag manufacturer would be handicapped to the extent of 12½d a thousand tags sold to the public at about 3s.

Evidence regarding pianos is published elsewhere.

"Dear Sirs,—With great pleasure I send you an account of the wonderful cure of my little daughter. She was two years of age last January. The following month she was seized with whooping cough, and had it for three months, when she was prostrated with pneumonia for sixteen weeks. She fell away to a mere frame, and was given up by the doctors. Having heard of your wonderful remedy, HYPOL, I resolved to try it; she had not finished one bottle when we saw a distinct change. She is now running about, a fine, healthy child.—Yours truly, (Signed), Mrs. J. McNEILAGE."

STATE CAUCUS CONUNDRUMS.

A month ago it seemed certain that the next meeting of the caucus of the State Parliamentary Labour party would be a very lively one. Everything pointed to a trial of strength between the Premier and the Speaker for supremacy, or, at any rate, for that measure of influence upon members which would decide the course of business and the question of power in the Legislative Assembly itself. Even a week ago there was a fair indication that no quarter was to be shown one another by the opposing sections. The fact of the caucus meeting on a certain date was challenge enough to those behind the scenes to begin prophesying; and everybody connected with Labour in politics, and quite a host of people outside, were on tip-toe as to the probable outcome of an encounter between Mr. Holman and Mr. Meagher. Now, however, everything is changed. Nobody seems to have time for the State situation. It does not appear that the matter of the Premier's claim to control the course of business and administration as against caucus resolutions was discussed at yesterday's caucus meeting, or that the faction leaders had any time to give to each other. All the time available was given to the new position created by the Governor-General's granting of a double dissolution, and to the prospects of legislation in view of tremendous turmoil throughout the State. The unexpected has happened. Senators McDougall and Gardiner have upset more than the Federal Labour party's calculations, and have driven the State caucus into something like hysterics. At least, we can only assume that Mr. Holman and his supporters do not know what to do now, either by way of forecasting possible legislation or of arranging for a date upon which Parliament is to meet. As to the former point, the Premier says that his outline of business was very cordially received, and that the greatest harmony prevailed; but we get no particulars. The admission is made in effect, however, that a new outlook has to be studied. Recent events have sobered the younger members of the caucus; and what Mr. Holman kindly refers to as "an excess of zeal," is held responsible for the troubles of the past. It is all very plausible and indefinite; but back of the assurance of cordiality and happy agreement is a restlessness which shows how hard the State Labour party has been hit, how little it likes the thought of a campaign coming right on top of the meeting of Parliament, and how uncertain Ministers feel about their prospects.

Parliament is due to meet, according to the Government's recent statement of its needs against a strenuous session, in about a month's time—early in July. From the party point of view this matter of an early start was not open to discussion, as it was considered that the earlier members got to work the better. At first, no doubt, the Government intended to make it a health session. It was to be memorable for its comprehensive dealing with hospitals, district nursing, and a great deal else connected with public health; and Mr. Flowers was preparing for a good time in the limelight. But pressure came from various directions at once. The programme was enlarged, and again enlarged. It took in even the North Shore Bridge and underground trains, with extraordinary results for the Premier, who had to explain to the Farmers and Settlers' Association, and to country folk who look upon Sydney as a gigantic octopus, that certain correspondence was unauthorised. But apart from that somewhat serious slip, the work for the coming session took a very wide sweep, until at last the absurdity of expecting the Legislature to deal with a tithe of it between July and Christmas moved the Premier to explain afresh that he was really indicating the programme for the rest of the life of this Parliament. With so much urgency imported into the call for fresh legislation, therefore, it is surprising to find what a difference the double dissolution of the Federal Parliament is making. The State Parliament may not sit now until the House of Representatives and the Senate are again constituted, and that may mean holding everything over till well on towards the last quarter of the year. That is to say, Parliament must meet before the end of July, but it may adjourn after supply has been granted. Under the Audit Act, a month's grace is given as from the end of the financial year. Then supply must be obtained to carry on the work of the departments, and to maintain the ordinary administrative functions of the State. But now it seems likely that Ministers will not attempt to face more than supply with the Federal elections due in August or later, and everything is to be hung up until their courage comes again. This is a curious paradox, and yet it shows how intimately related are the Labour politics of State and Commonwealth. Meanwhile the paradox has extended by the appearance of Mr. Fisher and his friends as champions of State rights, and as contemners of the hideous thought of unification. It is a strange world, my masters!

THE TWO POLICIES.

The people of Australia will have to wait for some weeks before they are told the details of the respective policies on which their leaders will rely in the coming electoral campaign. Mr. Fisher will probably speak in Melbourne before returning to his constituency. Mr. Cook will deliver his first important speech at Parramatta, and will afterwards address meetings in most of the capital cities. When these two leaders have spoken, the electors, after comparing past promises with past performances, will be better able to decide between the claims which will be made on their support. We cannot imagine that the elections will be decided by a consideration of spasmodic protests against Mr. Cook's advice to the Governor-General, or of the reasons which will be given in defence of it. It is still more unlikely that the electors will be influenced by denunciations of the Governor-General's action, however bellicose and however emphatic. The dissolution was granted on the advice of responsible Ministers, who are bound and are prepared to bear the consequences. The majority of the votes given at the election will, no doubt, be cast on strictly party lines. But the decisive factor will be the opinion of the unattached minority on the ability of the Liberal or Labour leaders to govern Australia during the ensuing three years. On one point all Australians will be agreed. It is to be hoped that the party which assumes office in the new Parliament, whichever it be, will decisively outnumber its opponents. Nothing worse can be anticipated than a repetition of the state of things which prevailed during the past year. It is to the lasting credit of Mr. Cook that he put an end to it as soon as a couple of rebellious senators gave him his opportunity. The state of parties made it impossible for him to carry through any legislation of importance, and the conduct of his opponents has made it equally impossible for them to criticise either the barrenness of his record or its fruits. It is only by administrative acts that the contrast between the two parties has been demonstrated in actual performances. The electors have some opportunity of discovering which of the two parties is more worthy of their confidence by studying the results of a Liberal Administration and the attacks which have been made upon it by the Labour leaders.

In the Senate, the Labour stronghold, the party has insisted on the privilege which was used so freely during the Fisher administration, the privilege of making political opinions and not ability the test by which applicants for public appointments should be judged. They have shown a determination to carry the spirit which insists on preference for unionists in Government employment through all branches of the Public Service, whatever the fitness of the candidates may be. In the House of Representatives Mr Fisher has been compelled to rely on suggestions of malpractice which have been first refuted, then withdrawn, and then repeated again. The Cook Government may claim that it has administered the public funds with the impartiality of a trustee for the whole community. To have done so is to have performed a public duty which, important at all times, is especially important now in face of a constant growth in Government expenditure. The electors in weighing the claims of the two parties will remember how greatly the expenses of government were increased under Mr. Fisher, and how they have increased in every State which has a Labour Government. Fortunately the two fallacies on which Labour Ministries rely have been exposed in this State. It is no longer believed that you can decrease production without increasing the cost of living. No Labour Ministry will be able to preach again that though a vast expenditure may mean new taxes these taxes will be paid by millionaires. In the past six months the public has learned that economy and efficiency are two of the virtues of every party which would govern in the interests of the people as a whole. It is one of its claims on popular support that the Cook Government has practised these virtues as far as the legacies of its predecessors would permit.

THE NEW HEBRIDES.

To-day the Anglo-French conference which has been appointed to inquire into the whole question of the New Hebrides and their administration commences its sittings. Some time ago the Secretary for the Colonies assured us that Australian opinion with regard to the Condominium would be taken into consideration, and the personnel of the conference shows that our interests have been committed to safe hands. The chief British representative, Lord Emmot, was a member of the Parliamentary party which recently visited this country, and consequently has had an opportunity of acquainting himself at first hand with our aspirations in the matter. His personal knowledge will be supplemented by that of Mr. Mahaffy, who has had an extensive experience of the problems of administration in the Pacific in general, and in the New Hebrides in particular. We may expect that the conference will result in some definite enunciation of policy, and although the uncertainty of the political outlook in France at the present moment may prevent the immediate adoption of any scheme which it formulates, it is reasonable to assume that any proposal that comes from an accredited body of such authority will sooner or later receive the very serious consideration of the Parliaments of the two nations concerned. Of course, it is impossible to prophesy what the conference will ultimately propose, but one may suggest with some degree of confidence that it is not likely to advocate the retention of the existing system of government. If any weight is to be attached to the evidence which we in Australia are continually hearing, the Condominium has proved unworkable. In this all nationalities and creeds and factions are unanimous. Indeed, it is the single point on which they agree. The burden of their tale is that the Condominium must go, but when they begin to discuss an alternative, the unanimity ceases and the diversity of opinion is immense.

If the conference comes to the conclusion that the Condominium is not practicable, it will have to propose one of three possible solutions. The group may be divided between the two nations, or else either Britain or France may be "bought out" either in hard cash or by a cession of territory elsewhere. Partition sounds attractive and easy, and it has many advocates, but there are also many who say that as long as France and Britain follow different principles in their legislation on such matters as the liquor traffic and labour-recruiting, partition will only accentuate the existing difficulties instead of removing them. The idea of evacuation and compensation has many supporters, all of whom seem to take it for granted that France is not unwilling to part with her interests in the islands. A portion of Gambia or the island of Mauritius has been suggested as the price of her departure. In the latter case, at least, the transaction would not be a very profitable one from Britain's point of view. However, the conference will go into the question from all its aspects, and will be able to appraise at its true worth the evidence inspired by national or sectarian prejudice which at close quarters is so apt to cloud the vital issue. Australia will await the verdict with much interest, the more so because it may mean that we will have to define our own policy over the New Hebrides. Hitherto we have talked a good deal about the conservation of Australian interests in the group, and we have taken it rather as a matter of course that Britain should act for us in the matter. But we have shown no disposition to accept any part of the burden. We can hardly expect Britain to give away valuable possessions or large sums of money simply to keep the British flag flying in what is, after all, an insignificant and not very profitable part of her sphere. Still less can we expect that she should make over these islands to us as a free gift. We have told the Colonial Office that it is essential to our interests that the New Hebrides should remain British. It is by no means inconceivable that, when the conference has made its recommendations, the reply may be that we must be prepared to assume some of the financial obligations which the preservation of our interests has entailed.

THE LANTERN BEARERS.

Students of penology and the psychology of crime have often discussed the motives of the burglar. He will often incur great risks for little booty, and there are very often many other ways of thieving which would yield a richer harvest with less effort and danger. It is, however, the spirit of adventure which prompts the breaking into premises at night, the exercise of qualities of agility and dexterity in opening windows and forcing safes, in laughing up one's sleeve as one smokes the best brand of cigars kept by one's unconscious host, or helps oneself to a whisky and soda in the dining-room when the silver has been carefully deposited in a convenient receptacle, and one needs refreshment after somewhat exhausting exertions. Stevenson, in that delightful essay of his called the "Lantern Bearers," describes the secret joy of the youthful pirates who sally forth with lantern at their belts and coats securely buttoned in the highest heaven of bliss in their self-deception at accomplishing daring deeds that are calculated to strike terror in the hearts of all who may chance to cross their path. The modern Sydney burglar, whether he is a local product or an "undesirable alien" imported from abroad, unfortunately does not conduct his operations with any such innocent results. His actions may be stimulated by the sheer joy of breaking open a jeweller's shop or robbing a post-office, but the impelling springs of his conduct are not so interesting to the public as the amount of goods and chattels which he manages to remove from the violated premises.

In our issue to-day we record a number of burglaries which have occurred during the past few days, and in particular the daring entry of a jeweller's shop in Castlereagh-street. Here there is no question of a scattered suburb, imperfectly protected by an inadequate police force. These burglaries take place in the very heart of the city, where, it would have been supposed, the supervision of the police would be most effective. The burglars seem to have gone about their business with great thoroughness and skill, and the boring of holes in the safes must have taken some considerable time. Last week the Oxford-street Post-office was similarly entered. The orthodox modes of access were ignored, the thieves entered the premises by a fan light, and escaped by the fire escape. Again, in Elizabeth-street a shop was successfully broken into last week. The ease with which premises may be entered by unauthorised persons has been demonstrated by the exploit of the man who raided Buckingham Palace a few days ago. So that we should perhaps exercise restraint in complaining of similar incidents in regard to a humble jeweller's shop or a post-office in Sydney. A state of things, however, in which such actions are possible in the centre of the city is clearly deplorable. It seems certain that the premises in question have been imperfectly protected, although upon whom the responsibility lies is another matter. It will be the duty of the authorities to consider the matter very carefully, for it is profoundly unsatisfactory that so many serious outrages upon citizens should continue to be committed, and that the perpetrators should in many cases escape with impunity. We are convinced that the community will support the police and other authorities in any steps they may be able to take to check this rather widespread outbreak of thievery.

The "Sydney Mail."—This week's "Mail" is another of the special numbers which have helped to place that popular journal beyond comparison with any other illustrated weekly in Australia—or, indeed (when the price is considered)—in any part of the Empire. It is an Ideal Homes number, consisting of no fewer than 68 pages, excellently printed, and profusely illustrated. The issue of such a production at threepence is rendered possible only by an extensive circulation and the utilisation of the most modern machinery. It is not only a beautiful production, but a useful one, and it will doubtless prove helpful to many of those who contemplate the building and furnishing of homes for themselves. The subjects are treated in an attractive style, free from technicality, and the examples of what are considered "the correct thing" are drawn from other States as well as New South Wales. A prominent architect describes "Some Decorative Essentials," and another tells "How I would Build my Own Home." There are several articles on furnishing, all of which advocate simplicity of style and the discarding of unnecessary articles so as to minimise work as much as possible. There are pictures of beautiful homes, large and small, with conveniently designed and comfortably as well as artistically furnished rooms; and among other special articles, is an interesting garden page. The regular features of the paper are preserved, and two pages are devoted to the Federal crisis.

The Forehand Stroke in Lawn Tennis.—In our Week's Sport to-day we publish the second of a series of articles on lawn tennis, written by famous players. To-day's article deals with the forehand stroke, and is contributed by the famous Irish player, J. C. Parke, conqueror of N. E. Brookes on the occasion of the British Isles team wresting the Davis Cup from Australasia in 1912. Mr. Parke deals with his subject exhaustively, and in an interesting manner—how to hold the racket, how to hit the ball, and how to practice. In addition, the running drive, or what is known as "the Irish drive"—a stroke at which Mr. Parke is an adept—is described. He is credited with being the originator of this stroke, but he states that the honour belongs to Mr. W. J. Hamilton.

Competition in Art.—In presiding at the 100th anniversary dinner of the Artists' General Benevolent Institution in London recently, Prince Arthur of Connaught referred to the many difficulties which beset the artist. "The competition in the profession of art is something enormous," he remarked. "This year he believed that out of some 11,000 pictures only about 1800 were accepted by the Royal Academy. Those that were rejected were rejected not necessarily because they were bad works of art, but because there were others better. The days of the patron had long since vanished, when, as in the case of Velasquez, the office of palace marshal and court painter were held by the most incomparable artist the world had ever known. Some whose works were now not appreciated or understood might follow the fate of this great master—for a hundred years forgotten, for another hundred years just now and then remembered, and eventually occupying a position without parallel in the history of art. But unfortunately artists were unable to raise money on the security of their acquiring well-deserved recognition 250 years hence. He thought the public did not realise what they owed to art and artists. Imagine what a dull place London would be without the National Gallery, Wallace Collection, and the Tate Gallery. Again, half the joys of foreign travel would be lost if there was no Louvre in Paris, no galleries in Florence or Rome, or Prado Museum in Madrid. The artistic life of a nation was indissoluble bound up with its progress and civilisation."

The Income Tax.—The Commissioners of Taxation have decided to exact, without exception, fines of 10 per cent. for the non-payment of the income tax after to-day. It is feared that if taxpayers attend the offices of commissioners a good deal of delay will result owing to the limited accommodation, and it is therefore suggested, in the interests of both the taxpayers and the officials, that payments be made by remittances through the post. Notwithstanding the fact that objections or appeals may be lodged against assessments up to Wednesday next, the full amount of tax must be paid to-day.

Delayed Call to a Minister.—At a meeting of the Presbytery of Sydney last evening, it was stated that a call from St. Pauls, Christchurch, New Zealand, had been given to the Rev. John Paterson, now minister of Chalmers Church, Sydney. The clerk of the Presbytery, the Rev. John Edwards, stated that the call had not been received, and the question was, could the Presbytery proceed without the call being laid on the table. Chalmers Church has been notified of the call, and had appointed commissioners to represent the congregation at the bar of the Presbytery. A cable had been received from New Zealand, stating that the call had been duly posted, and ought to be in Sydney now. Christ Church congregation was anxious to have Mr. Paterson settled in their midst as soon as possible, if he were willing to come, in order that his assistance might be secured to fight for prohibition at the approaching general elections in New Zealand. It was decided to postpone the whole matter, and make a search for the missing letter.

Life at Colombo.—Australia is not the only place where the cost of living is comparatively high. According to a correspondent with the Bisley team, the expense of living at Colombo is heavy. "Young men employed in the large commercial houses," writes the correspondent, "who, in similar positions in Australia, would earn £200 to £250 a year, are here paid £400. Expenses are so high that the usual practice is for four or five men to club together, and live in a bungalow. The bungalow is generally a fair sized homestead; the living rooms are big and lofty, the bedrooms large and airy, each with its own bathroom, and the whole is usually surrounded by a deep verandah and a garden full of shady trees. There are also servants quarters. Each man has a personal servant or valet, and in addition a couple of house boys, two or three boys in the kitchen, two in the garden, two washermen, and a couple more coolies for the most menial tasks will be deemed necessary. The men, who are clubbing together, will each probably have his own rickshaw boy. The wages of these servants will amount to about £180 a year; the rent of the house will be £200, and food, except for local products, is by no means cheap, so when all is said and done, £400 a year is about the least upon which a single man can live comfortably.

Cutting Down the Trees.—"It's a scandalous shame," declared Alderman Sandy warmly when the chairman of the health committee of the City Council (Alderman Evan Jones) informed him at yesterday's meeting of that body that orders had that day been given to cut down the fine row of Moreton Bay fig trees that line and adorn Government House grounds at the foot of Macquarie-street. The work of felling the trees was begun yesterday afternoon. It was intended that the work should start at 5 o'clock yesterday morning, with a gang of 40 men, but only half the number turned up, and, on account of the rain, operations were not commenced until after the lunch hour.

The Bed of the Destitute.—"I don't believe that a man should come under the arm of the law because he has no better bed than God's green grass," declared the Dean of Sydney at the Salvation Army demonstration at the Town Hall last night. "I think the best thing to do is to take him, as the Army does, to a warm and comfortable bed." He added that he had seen men at night carrying with them their bed-clothes in the shape of newspapers. Wednesdays and Saturdays were important days for such men, for they meant a few extra bed sheets. (Laughter.) Mr. Talbot added that the streets of Sydney compared very favourably with any of his acquaintance on the Continent or in England. (Applause.)

Record Power Boat Race.—Fifty-two motor boats of all sizes and speeds will race in the general invitation handicap of the Motor Yacht Club of New South Wales at Rose Bay on Saturday afternoon. This is a record number of entries for an event of this kind in Australasia, and as the boats have been handicapped according to their actual speeds the race should prove particularly interesting. In promoting the event the Motor Yacht Club has endeavoured to stimulate interest in this branch of aquatics, the local facilities for which are unrivalled in any part of the world. It is estimated that there are over a thousand power-boats on the harbour, a large proportion being used for commercial purposes. On Saturday the boats will race from Rose Bay to the Pile Light and back twice, a distance of a little over eight miles. The scratch boat is Mr. W. H. Mason's Tu Tu, a speed boat capable of 32 miles per hour; while the limit boat is a dingy, with an outboard motor, owned by Mr. W. J. Whitton, and having a speed of only four miles per hour. Tu Tu will concede the dingy 1h 39m 15s start.

Dearer Butter.—The wholesale quotation for butter was yesterday advanced 4/ per cwt. Choicest brands were worth 114/ per cwt., delivered in boxes. Supplies received from the North Coast showed a substantial falling-off, and were only just equal to requirements.

The funeral of Mr. George R. Martin, late librarian of the Sydney School of Arts, who was drowned at Terrigal on Monday while on a holiday trip, took place yesterday at the Gosford Cemetery, and was largely attended.

Captain Hall Thompson, who has been appointed Naval Adviser to the New Zealand Government, is a passenger by the R.M.S. Osterley, which arrived at Fremantle yesterday.

Captain G. Lambert, who recently retired from the service of the Union Company, was a passenger on the Moeraki from Wellington yesterday on a visit to Sydney.

Dr. Eugene Glynn, brother of the Minister for External Affairs, died at Riverton (S.A.) on Tuesday.

THE GREAT RIVERS.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA'S INQUIRY.

VII.

THE MAN WHO DID IT.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL COMMISSIONER LATELY WITH THE SOUTH AUSTRALIAN COMMITTEE.)

ADELAIDE, June 1.

The country through which the Murray runs out to the sea was one of the desolate regions of Australia. Swamp teeming with duck. Mallee teeming with dingoes. The Ninety Mile Desert at the back of it. Only a few years ago I heard a distinguished politician in Sydney marvelling at the perseverance of a few German farmers who actually managed to scrape an occasional hay crop from those inhospitable Murray banks.

To-day they are growing wheat in the "Ninety Mile." The wild duck swamps are now dry land carrying 30 fat sheep to the acre. The dingoes are still thick in the mallee south and east of the Murray—far too thick for sheep. But they howl harmlessly around wheat paddocks. If the ghost of one of the old river skippers returns to his beloved Murray marshes 15 years hence the probabilities are that he will find the old stream running through the middle of one of the largest wheat and fruit growing areas in Australia.

The men chiefly—are responsible. A Renmark lad, brought up under the Chaffeys, who founded Renmark and Mildura, is mainly responsible for what is being done on the irrigated land—Mr. S. MacIntosh, now Director of Irrigation. The man to whom everyone—farmer, worker, business man—ascribes the revolution in the dry areas—the complete changing of the face of South Australia—is Professor Lowrie.

HE GOT IT ALL.

Farmers are slow to listen to professors. It was years before Professor Lowrie obtained their confidence. But when it came he got it all. New Zealand managed to steal Professor Lowrie for a year or two. South Australia had to get him back. She might have other agriculturists whose methods were brilliant. But the farmers would not look at them. They wanted to know what Professor Lowrie said. If he said "Yes," well and good. If Professor Lowrie did not approve, all the learned men in the world might talk till all was blue without moving the South Australian farmer a single inch.

After having been told a dozen times a day that Professor Lowrie was "the father of dry farming," which has done such wonderful things in South Australia, I determined, if possible, to find out from Professor Lowrie himself how it had been brought about. Very courteously he spared me part of a busy day. His desk telephone was going the whole time.

"Who's speaking? Mr. Jones? About that lime? I should give that place in the hills a ton to the acre to start with—don't be afraid of putting on too much the first year; then you can go on with 5 cwt. Try an acre of two first."

Five minutes interval—then another ring. "Mr. Brown? Oh, yes, Mr. Brown, I was ringing you about those shells. I think I would add a little of the Mount Lyell stuff—crush the shell and add that; they've plenty of it. It ought to make a very valuable manure. And look, if I were you I'd push it in the hills. They want it up there—I should say there is the makings of a profitable trade."

Don't talk of dry farming!

In the intervals one sought, from the man whom one had heard named the "father of dry farming," the exact story of how "dry farming" began.

One found that the "father of dry farming" said there was no such thing as "dry farming" at all.

He grew quite indignant about it. Professor Lowrie is the double of Mr. Fisher, the ex-Prime Minister, both in appearance and in voice. He has the same fiery Glasgow temperament, and he expresses it in the same terse Glasgow speech.

"Dry farming," he said. "I am sick of the nonsense they write about it. There isn't a principle in dry farming that has not been practised by good farmers in South Australia ever since farming began here, and by good farmers in Great Britain a hundred years before. The 'dry farming boom some years ago was more an advertising campaign than anything else. It was started by land speculators in America who wanted to sell large areas of dry land. They boomed this so-called dry farming to help them unload it. We had dry farming congresses and goodness knows what not. But there was nothing in the whole of it that was not known and practised by good farmers here and in America and Great Britain before the discoverers of this so-called dry farming were born. Working on anything under 20 inches of rainfall is called dry farming in America. Why, nine-tenths—ninety-nine-hundredths—of the wheat in South Australia is, and has been, grown on less than 20 inches.

JETHRO TULL, 1740.

"If you want to know the man who really introduced these practices, I should say it was Jethro Tull, a farmer, who lived in the South of England about 1740, and who brought in the seed drill, and the practice of keeping the earth constantly turned. He was a bit of a musician, and he got the idea of the seed drill from the organ pipes.

"So much for the so-called dry farming. It is simply good farming, and always was practised by good farmers here. As for our farming in the mallee, mallee country was farmed long before I came. Stump-jumping machinery is a South Australian invention; it was used here before 1890. Who is to have the credit for it is disputed; but I have no hesitation myself in ascribing it to Mr. Smith, of Ardrossan.

THE WONDERFUL "SUPER."

"The one development for which I believe I really was responsible was the discovery of the great value of superphosphate manure in Australian soils. There were one or two farmers using bonedust and super. before I came here, but the extraordinary value of superphosphate was not realised. What first showed it to me was some experiments that I made at Roseworthy College the year after my arrival. I had put in a series of plots for teaching—to show the effects of different manures used in Great Britain. I treated plots with nitrates, phosphates, potash; other plots with mixtures of them; and one plot with a complete manure, containing all. To my amazement the plot containing superphosphate alone gave better returns than the complete manure. As this was quite different from the experience in the old country, I hesitated to accept the result, but two or three years confirmed it.

HEAVIER CROPS AFTER 30 YEARS.

"From that time I preached it amongst the farmers to the best of my ability. Lecturing would not do it—the only thing was to bring them to the farm at Roseworthy and let them see the blocks there. That brought about a rapid conversion. It has been hard to explain how it was possible to get 22 bushels to the acre, as has been done, on a 12-inch rainfall. I think it has been shown that the superphosphate is really the complement of the mineral manures already in the soil, and the mineral manures enable the building up of a plant with a less transpiration of moisture. There are no signs of a falling off in the nitrogen in land treated with super. Some of the college fields at Roseworthy have never had any nitrogenous manure applied for the last 30 years, and they are carrying heavier crops than when they were new land."

RAILWAY MISHAPS.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

A coal train which left Tannymorel at 7.35 a.m. for Warwick, met with an accident today at Swan Creek. Portion of the train was derailed. A waggon left the rails when approaching the bridge, and fell over the bridge. Another waggon and a brake van were also derailed, but did not capsize. The rolling stock and the bridge were considerably damaged.

SUFFRAGISTS.

"SHRIEK AT THE KING."

ROYAL HORSE SHOW EPISODE

POPULAR RESENTMENT.

LONDON, June 8.

A suffragist attempted to enter the arena at the Royal Horse Show this afternoon, and shrieked at the King, who was present. The police carried her out. Later on three other women were carried out, kicking and screaming.

A crowd of people attacked a number of suffragists at Ilford, and pursued them to the residence of the local leader where the mob smashed the windows of the house.

The students of Trinity College raided the Dublin offices of the suffragists, and threw the furniture through the windows.

WHY CHURCHES ARE BURNT.

LONDON, June 9.

Miss Wylie, speaking at a meeting of the Women's Social and Political Union, last night, defended the smuggling of drugs into prison for the use of hunger-strikers.

She accused the authorities of using narcotics and sedatives, in forcible feeding, and declared that the women were obliged to obtain antidotes.

The Churches, said Miss Wylie, had forsaken Christianity, and that was why the suffragists burned them down.

SUFFRAGIST REBUKES SUFFRAGISTS.

Mdlle. Yvette Guilbert, the well-known actress, in an open letter to the militant women's suffragists, while recalling her staunch support of the cause, deplores the present militant tactics.

She says:—"You lose your dignity when you lose your self command; and you kill, you assassinate, an admirable cause."

The "Standard," in a leading article headed "Let Them Die," denounces the suffragists' vandalism, arson, disloyalty, and sacrilege, and urges the adoption of a short bill to indemnify the Secretary of State for Home Affairs and the prison governors in the event of hunger-strikers dying.

CAPTURED BY PAGE.

FREAK DUE TO DRINK.

LONDON, June 8.

Harry Pike, described as an engineer's fitter, was brought before the Bow-street Police Court to-day, having been found in the servants' quarters in Buckingham Palace on the previous evening.

Pike stated that he wanted to test the possibility of entering the palace, because of allusions made to the subject by suffragists. He admitted that he had been drinking for several days.

Defendant described how he had entered the palace, explaining that he climbed the railings enclosing the ground on Constitution Hill, and then a spiked wall, from which he dropped 20ft into the area. He gained admission to the palace through a window in the basement, and ascended a staircase to a long corridor, at the top of the palace, where he entered a room and changed his clothing, which was torn. Entering a second room, he alarmed two maidservants who were sleeping there. He apologised for making a mistake, and finally entered a room where James Cople, the Queen's page, was sleeping. Cople woke, pursued, and captured the defendant.

It was stated that Pike seemed respectable, but his action had evidently been a freak, due to drinking, and the police were inclined to accept this explanation.

James Cople, the Queen's page, in his evidence, stated that the floor on which he captured Pike gave access to the whole palace.

The magistrate pointed out that several articles has been stolen from the Palace, and remanded the defendant for a week.

BRITISH TRADE RETURNS.

LONDON, June 8.

The returns of the Board of Trade for May show the value of imports decreased by £2,176,029, and exports by £1,807,027; but re-exports increased by £1,001,264 compared with the corresponding period last year.

MEXICO.

HUERTA'S INTENTIONS.

READY TO RESIGN.

WASHINGTON, June 8.

General Huerta has abandoned his intention to blockade Tampico, and asserts that it is his intention not to interfere with the progress of the peace negotiations.

Diplomatic circles regard this decision as proof of General Huerta's intention to abandon the Presidency whenever arrangements are made for his successor.

DRUNKEN MEXICAN SHOT.

WASHINGTON, June 8.

When a drunken Mexican attempted to interfere with the Mexican police, Lieutenant Houston, of the United States Infantry, shot him dead.

It was announced late to-night that General Funston had reported that the Mexican attacked Lieutenant Houston with a knife. Therefore, it was a case of justifiable homicide, and no further action was considered necessary.

REBELS ARREST JAPANESE DIPLOMAT

LONDON, June 9.

The Mexican correspondent of the "Daily Telegraph" states that the Japanese Minister and Attache were taken prisoners by the rebels after leaving Colima for Manzanillo, and it is not known where they are at present.

PRESIDENT WILSON CRITICISED.

WASHINGTON, June 9.

In the course of the debate on the Panama Canal Tolls Exemption Repeal Bill in the Senate last night Senator Smith declared that President Wilson did not possess the far-sightedness of his predecessors.

Senator Smith expressed the view that the President had moved towards the present "desperate position" through sudden developments in the Mexican situation and the visit of Japanese naval officers to President Huerta during the crisis.

THE NEW HEBRIDES.

PARTITION SUGGESTION.

APPREHENSION IN FRANCE.

LONDON, June 9.

The Paris correspondent of the "Morning Post" states that the suggested partition of the New Hebrides has caused some apprehension in French colonial circles, because there is no one in France with a good knowledge of the islands. The French colonists are settled near the coast, and therefore have no time to explore the interior, whereas the English missionaries have travelled throughout the islands. Moreover, France has continually changed her Residents in the New Hebrides, and they have thus been unable to become acquainted with the country.

The "Temps" deduces that partition is the only logical solution of the problem, but adds that it should not be made until France has thoroughly explored the islands.

ANTI-MILITARISM.

ITALIAN DEMONSTRATION.

GENERAL STRIKE PRECIPITATED.

ROME, June 9.

The anarchists and socialists at Ancona attempted to hold a demonstration as a protest against the prohibition of anti-militarist meetings, but the police interfered, and a riot ensued, during which seventeen police were injured by flying stones, several of them being seriously wounded.

Finally the police fired their revolvers into the mob, killing three people.

A general strike in Rome has followed, as a protest against the action of the authorities in Ancona.

SOUTH AFRICA.

INDIAN GRIEVANCES.

THE UNION BILL.

CAPETOWN, June 9.

The Indian Grievances Bill was read the second time in the House of Assembly last nights by 60 votes to 24.

The measure provides for free passages for those who are willing to return to India and forgo their residence in South Africa.

In course of the debate Mr. Leuchars expressed the fear that the natives would regard the concessions to the Indians as a sign of weakness, and would follow the precedent set by the Indians in regard to the non-payment of taxes.

The Natal members demanded that a referendum should be taken in Natal before the bill was proceeded with.

Members of the Labour party urged repatriation and compensation.

The Prime Minister, General Botha, declared that the Government would do its utmost to "get Natal out of the mire," and would go a long way to obtain the repatriation of the Indians.

ASIATIC IMMIGRATION.

PROBLEM IN CANADA.

OTTAWA, June 8.

In the House of Commons to-day Mr. H. H. Stevens (Vancouver City) introduced a bill to prevent the admission of Asiatics. He said that the objections to the presence of Asiatics in Western Canada were not offensive toward foreign countries. The question was whether a line should be drawn against the admission of Asiatics, or should Canada be opened to a flood of unassimilable elements.

He quoted a recent speech by Lord Curzon in which he declared that the common rights of British citizenship could not over-ride the rights of the oversea dominions to protect themselves.

The Premier, Mr. R. L. Borden, promised to consider the bill, but pointed out that the end of the session was near, and it was not likely facilities could be given for its passage.

AN AUSTRALIAN OPERA.

"STELLA" IN LONDON.

LONDON, June 9.

Prof. Marshall Hall's opera, "Stella," has met with a favourable reception at the Palladium.

The "Standard" states: "There is nothing antipodean in either the music or the story, the latter being badly adapted to the operatic stage. We fear that 'Stella' is a work inspired by but few great moments."

The "Daily Telegraph" says: "The libretto is not novel, and the music shows that Professor Marshall Hall is much under Italian influence. Though there is no question of plagiarism, it savours of Puccini, Leoncavallo and Mascagni.

DECLINING BIRTH-RATE.

THE GERMAN COMMISSION.

BERLIN, June 9.

The Government Commission which was appointed to investigate the decline of the birth-rate states, in its report, that there is no question of deterioration in physique, the decline being attributed to economic reasons, and to a growing disinclination for marriage.

COLLISION IN PORT.

PINNACE SUNK.

RUN DOWN BY A COASTER.

A STOKER DROWNED.

A fatal collision occurred yesterday at the entrance to Sydney Cove, and a leading stoker from the submarine A.1 was drowned, while two seamen were rescued on the point of exhaustion, after struggling in the water for some time.

The pinnace belonging to H.M.A.S. Penguin was proceeding down the harbour from Cockatoo Island to Garden Island, with three bluejackets on board—Leading Seaman Joseph McGregor, Able Seaman John Reardon, and Leading Stoker John Groves. It was just after half-past 2 o'clock, and the Sydney Ferries steamer Kai Kai had left Milson's Point for the Quay. To miss the ferryboat McGregor, who was at the helm, altered his course, but immediately afterwards saw the North Coast steamer Coombar bearing down on the pinnace. He tried to steer the little craft out of danger, while the captain of the Coombar gave the signal "full-speed astern." But it was too late, and the stem of the coaster crashed into the pinnace, which sank immediately.

ON THE FERRY.

The three men were precipitated into the water, and Groves, who could not swim, struggled for a minute and then sank. There was great excitement on the Kai Kai, and Captain C. Taylor went astern at once to render assistance. One passenger, a young man, started to divest himself of his overcoat, preparatory to springing overboard to save Groves, but his mother cried out frantically, threw her arms round him, and would not let him go. Another passenger, Mr. John Hope, of Willoughby, seeing the plight of Groves, dived overboard, and swam towards him, but the unfortunate stoker sank just as Hope was a few yards away. Life-buoys were thrown overboard from the ferry, and the plucky passenger was hauled on board the tug Norman Wallace, almost exhausted.

FIGHT FOR LIFE.

Meanwhile, Reardon and McGregor were struggling in the cold waters, hampered with their clothes. The former had dived overboard just as the smash occurred, and he swam round, hoping to be picked up. McGregor had stuck to his seat in the stern until the coaster cut into the pinnace and he was thrown into the water. After several minutes had elapsed the Sydney Harbour Trust launch Helen came along and rescued McGregor.

Reardon, half-frozen, and almost exhausted, was still battling for dear life, when he caught a life-buoy thrown from the Kai Kai, and soon after was hauled on board. He was brought to the Quay by the ferry, and, after being attended to, was able to proceed to Man-o'-War steps, and return to Garden Island.

The Coombar and the Helen hovered about in the vicinity, hoping to see signs of the missing stoker. Then the Water Police were informed, and commenced dragging for the body.

SURVIVOR'S STORY.

Able Seaman Reardon was seen just as he left the Kai Kai. He was cold and shivering, minus his hat, and his clothes were still drenched. "I was on deck," he said, "when we came opposite Milson's Point. McGregor was steering, and Groves was down below. We saw the Kai Kai, and McGregor changed his course to escape it. Then I saw the Coombar bearing down on us, and knew we were in for a smash. I yelled out 'I'll chance a swim,' and dived overboard. Just after, the steamer struck the pinnace fair amidships on the port side, cut into the side, and turned her right over. The pinnace sank at once. McGregor did not move till the crash came and he was shot into the water. I watched and saw him rise, but I did not see anything of Groves. McGregor got a life-buoy, and I saw him taken on board the Harbour Trust launch. My clothes seemed very heavy, and I was afraid of sharks, and I was just giving up when the Kai Kai came towards me. So I swam till I got a buoy from the ferry, and soon after was hauled on board."

ATTEMPTED RESCUE.

MR. HOPE'S EFFORT.

Mr. John Hope, of 45 Willoughby-street, North Sydney, who was a passenger by the steamer Kai Kai, which left Milson's Point at 2.30 p.m., for Circular Quay, made a gallant attempt to save the unfortunate man Groves from drowning.

"I did not witness the actual collision," said Mr. Hope, when seen after the accident. "When I looked up our boat was going astern, and the Coombar was going past us. I saw two men in the water making for lifebelts.

"I noticed another man some distance from these two men, and he appeared to be in difficulties. His face was black, and he appeared to have been stoking. I threw off my coat and waistcoat and jumped over from the stern of the Kai Kai. My boots and clothes were fairly heavy in the water, but I swam straight for the man.

"When I was about five yards from him he suddenly sank. There were a lot of lifebelts and pieces of wreckage bobbing about in the water near me, and I thought I had lost sight of him amongst these. I waited, expecting to see him appear again, but he did not come up."

"It was most unfortunate that he should have sunk so suddenly, as another half a dozen strokes would have brought me to him."

NEXT SESSION.

MAY BE POSTPONED.

EFFECT OF THE ELECTIONS.

It is regarded as likely that the State Parliament will not be called together till after July.

The forthcoming Federal elections are said to be likely to completely alter the intentions of a few weeks ago. It is also thought not unlikely that the Government may call Parliament together only formally at the beginning of August, for the purpose of passing a supply bill to enable the Houses to adjourn till the elections are over. Constitutionally, Parliament must meet soon after July 31, as supply has only been obtained up to that date. The Audit Act allows the Government to anticipate supply for July on the basis of the year 1913-14, but that supply must be validated in the following August. Nothing has yet been definitely decided about the matter, and it may be that the demand of a section of the party that the Houses should meet for the despatch of business, irrespective of the progress of the Federal contest, will hold sway at the Labour caucus on Thursday, when the matter will be practically decided.

There is, however, a strong feeling that the business of the State Houses would be unduly distracted if it were attempted to be transacted amid the turmoil of the elections, especially as members of the Assembly want to take a hand in the campaign. If what will be the first real business session of Parliament is postponed beyond July, it seems certain that the session, when it does start, will be a lengthy one, and likely to extend over Christmas, as an important sheaf of public works, including the City Railway and the North Shore Bridge, are to be submitted, together with big irrigation proposals along the River Murray, and also far-reaching amendments of the Arbitration Act.

PIANOS.

MORE ABOUT BOGUS LABELS.

400 PER CENT. PROFIT.

Additional evidence was given before the Interstate Commission yesterday regarding the use of fictitious name-plates upon pianos imported into Australia.

Carl von Heidon, piano manufacturer, of Darlinghurst, Sydney, recalled, handed in a price list to the Chief Commissioner, which was read in private.

Witness: I handed in that price list in confidence.

Mr. Lockyer: But that price list is obtainable by members of the public?

Witness: Yes.

Mr. von Heidon went on to say that, owing to the evidence he had tendered the commission regarding the use of name plates other than those of the actual manufacturers, he had been made the chopping-block in many quarters. "I wish to state publicly," witness added, "that I have never sold a piano to the public under any other name than my own. Further, the pianos I have sold to the trade have had my name upon them."

The Chief Commissioner: Inside on the iron frame, you mean?

Witness: Yes.

The Chief Commissioner: Can you write down the names of actual manufacturers which you have put upon your pianos?

Witness: Well, there is the Hoffmann piano. I have put on a piano made by myself the name Hofman, but never Hoffmann. This is the only case where I have used the name of an actual manufacturer. At the request of retailers, I have put on my pianos common names, such as Schmidt and Meyer. I have always been against this bad practice. Seven years ago, when I was a retailer and not a manufacturer, I opposed the practice.

The Chief Commissioner: There are two manufacturers of pianos in Berlin named Schmidt. Did you put Schmidt, Berlin, on your pianos?

Witness: No; I did not. Schmidt is a common German name, and I put no address on at all. I have never put on an address yet. I favour the abolition of the trade marks placed on pianos. A piano is an article whose value the general public is not competent to judge, and I know cases where the holders of trade marks have altered them for commercial reasons.

Mr. Lockyer: You advocate every piano bearing the name of the real manufacturer?

Witness: Yes, sir.

The Chief Commissioner: How would that educate the public taste, and safeguard them against their absence of taste?

Witness: They would know by whom the pianos were made, and would not be carried away by advertised trade marks. I know of grades of pianos, whose trade marks are well advertised, which fetch more than better grade pianos that bear the real name of the makers.

Some German pianos, witness added, were being sold in Sydney at a profit of 400 per cent. The actual manufacturing cost of these pianos in Germany was £14.

Edward Joseph Powell, a partner of the previous witness, said he had never purchased the name plates of existing manufacturers, and had not bought false name plates for many years past.

A. Sinclair, M.L.C., an employee of Beale and Co., favoured an increase of the tariff.

P. Marich, managing director of W. H. Paling and Co., of Sydney, denied that his firm had registered the name Lipp as a trade mark. It was registered by the actual manufacturer.

LEVIES.

OVERBURDENED UNIONISTS.

WHERE MONEY GOES.

A circular letter has been issued by the State secretary of the Federated Mining Employees' Association, Mr. C. H. Davis, on the necessity for "cutting down the overburdening taxation on members and reducing the payments for the collection of the contributions and levies."

"The present cost in salaries alone," the circular says, "is as follows:—Branch secretaries' salaries and commission approximately amount to £1100 per year; general secretary's salary, £286; organiser's salary, £261; total, £1647 approximately. These figures should be sufficient to reveal to the average member of the association the absolute necessity for some drastic alteration. The association had up to the recent conference branch secretaries at Cobar, Burraga, Wrightville, and Canbelego, together with the general secretary and organiser. The average salary paid the secretary in each branch is £3 10s per week, or £182 per year. After allowing for payments of rent, printing, audit fees, postage, and other sundry branch expenses, which would amount, roughly, to £20 per year—a very low estimate—this would only leave the sum of £68 per year to be sent to the head office to administer the affairs of the association; or, in other words, all that is sent to head office per member per year on the above estimate would be about 4s. That means that it takes 16s of the £1 contributed by members to maintain a paid secretary as the rules now stand. Three organising secretaries could be appointed—say, one for the West, North, and South. This would mean, with the general secretary, four paid officers. Under the suggested system of electing organising secretaries, the office of organiser would, of course, have to be abolished.

"The suggested alteration by the executive is:—That branch secretaries receive as follows:—From 30 to 75 financial members, 5s per week; 75 to 150 financial members, 10s per week; 150 to 250 financial members, 15 per cent.; 250 to 350 financial members, 20 per cent. (commission to be paid on contributions only); over 350 financial members, the branch shall determine his salary, the amount fixed to be from the consolidated fund, subject to the approval of the executive committee.'"

IRONWORKS.

MR. DAVIS'S REPORT.

SUPPLIED TO PREMIER.

The report which the Government has been awaiting from the Director-General of Public Works (Mr. Davis), on the Lithgow ironworks, reached the Premier yesterday.

The document is a lengthy one. It goes into questions of valuations, and estimates are furnished concerning what it would cost to establish new works. Briefly, the report deals with the two alternate schemes that the Government is desirous of considering, namely., the desirability of purchasing the Lithgow ironworks as they stand, or establishing entirely new works. The question of iron ore production and possibilities is especially dealt with.

The report will be discussed at a meeting of the Cabinet to-day, when the matter is expected to be advanced a definite stage. The feeling seems to be a growing one in the Labour party that the time is hardly yet ripe for the Government to launch forth upon a State industrial enterprise on so gigantic a scale, compared with such establishments as the brickworks and bakery, in which the Government is gaining experience of what undertakings of this kind mean.

The report by the Director-General of Public Works will also be discussed at the postponed meeting of the caucus on Thursday.

THE CAUCUS.

A BRIEF AND QUIET SESSION.

CLOSING UP THE RANKS.

ELECTIONS PARAMOUNT.

Contrary to expectations, the special caucus meeting of the New South Wales Labour party, held at Parliament House yesterday, was one of the shortest on record. It lasted only about two hours, and except for a statement by the Premier, there were practically no other speeches.

Mr. Holman made a long statement from the chair. He said he was prepared with an exhaustive outline of the vigorous policy of development that the Government proposed to submit to the next session of Parliament. In addition to most of the measures (mainly industrial), which he had foreshadowed in his recent address to the delegates of the Labour Council, the Government programme would include a large number of public works' proposals. The Cabinet had not yet concluded its consideration of several of the proposed measures, but would probably be able to do so in time to submit the complete programme to an adjourned meeting of the caucus, which would be suggested for to-morrow, Thursday. The Premier then officially announced to the members of the Ministerial party the details of a number of proposed bills, the majority of which has already been published.

The Premier then came to what he considered the vital question of the moment. The suddenness with which a Federal political crisis had been launched, by the granting of the request for a double dissolution of the Commonwealth Parliament by the Governor-General, made it necessary for the State Labour party to reconsider its plans. The proximity of a general Federal election for both Houses would probably affect the decision upon a date for the opening of the new session of the State Parliament. Members of the party would probably wish to take an active part in the campaign, and it was highly desirable that nothing should be done that could be avoided to hinder the influence of State members and of State party organisation being felt in the Federal campaign. Perhaps in a day or two definite information might be available with regard to the probable date of the elections, and then it would be very much easier to decide upon a course of action. Unless members desired to criticise the portion of the programme which he had just outlined, there was really nothing more the party could do at that meeting, and, in view of the Federal crisis, there was an abundance of weighty matter to which individual members could very profitably turn their attention.

Mr. Holman's words are said to have made a favourable impression on the members of the party. "There was no mistaking the Premier's intention," said a member. "Here was the opportunity to sink all personal differences, and for the whole party to avow its intention of uniting to present a solid front to the electors when they were appealed to to return a Federal Labour Government." The Premier not only proffered an olive branch, said another, he had shown the way to bury the hatchet permanently. It is admitted that there were several members of the party who had attended the caucus meeting intent upon having a "washing up." But Mr. Holman's attitude not only disarmed them, it is said, it convinced them that his was the wiser course.

Not one word had the Premier said about any personal or political differences. For aught he said, there might never have been even a rumour of such differences. Yet every one of us, said a member, knew that the Premier had not "knocked down." We knew that if pressed into a corner he was prepared to fight. But we knew also that such a fight would be fatal alike to the prospects of the Federal Labour party at the polls, and to their own party's chances of enjoying a period of progressive legislation in the State Parliament.

Spoken to after the caucus meeting, which concluded with very little more discussion, one of the members said the party's attitude yesterday simply meant that it had turned its back on the extremists and the feather-brained, who would wreck the Federal party with as little compunction as they would wreck the State party.

There is now very little likelihood that what has been known as the Holman-Meagher episode will be revived, at any rate for a considerable time. Yesterday's meeting made it plain that the Premier has strengthened his position very much since the affair began. It was also learned yesterday for the first time that a small section of the party, who had undoubtedly decided to range themselves behind the Speaker in the event of a struggle within the caucus, had had their ardour cooled, because of a report that Mr. Meagher had himself indicated his intention of dropping the matter altogether. The Speaker is reported to have stated that his last thought would be to fight the Premier. Mr. Holman is, says the report, recognised by Mr. Meagher as his best friend in politics, and, whilst the latter declares that he is at all times prepared to defend his public or private character against any aspersions that may be made upon it, he does not feel called upon to take up this particular matter while it remains where it is now. Another very important fact came to light yesterday, and that is that Mr. Meagher has declared that he had absolutely nothing to do with the resolution that was carried at the last caucus meeting with regard to Upper House appointments. It is also stated that Mr. Meagher has declined to explain why he did not make these statements earlier in the controversy, when they might have settled the whole matter before any bitterness was imported into it.

PREMIER SATISFIED.

"TIME FOR REFLECTION."

Mr. Holman last night seemed to be quite satisfied with events at the caucus.

"I think," he said, "that the feeling shown was a very satisfactory one."

"The reception given to the Government's programme," said the Premier, "as outlined by myself, was most gratifying, and the proposals of Ministers for meeting the needs of the new situation which has arisen in consequence of the impending double dissolution were very cordially received. They were, of course, discussed at considerable length, but no final decision was come to, though the fullest harmony prevailed."

Mr. Holman, being asked whether the prevalence of harmony was not rather surprising in view of public expressions of opinion during the last few months by members of the party, replied: "I can only say that the caucus is several months older than it was when it met last, and has had time for reflection on many points. New members who enter Parliament and a party like ours are in a very trying position, and many allowances must be made for genuine excess of zeal."

TROTTING ON SUNDAYS.

WOLLONGONG, Tuesday.

At the meeting of the North Illawarra council a report was received from the police that trotting matches were held on the South Coast road on a recent Sunday. Three matches were run, two being for £10 a side and the other for £20 a side.

The Mayor (Alderman Porter) pointed out that trotting matches were becoming common on Sundays, and were not only a means of desecrating the Sabbath, but were highly dangerous to the travelling public. He moved that the offenders, whose names were supplied by the police, be prosecuted. The motion was seconded by Alderman Hayman, and carried with one dissentient.

THE DOMINION.

ELECTIONS IN NOVEMBER.

LOCAL OPTION POLL.

"I think Sir Joseph Ward has a good chance of getting back to power," said Mr. R. M'Nab, ex-Minister for Lands in New Zealand, who arrived from Wellington by the Moeraki yesterday.

Mr. M'Nab anticipated that the Dominion elections would take place early in November. As far as he could judge, the prospects of the Liberal party had improved, and his own opinion, which might be a biassed one, was that they had every prospect of winning. A desperate attempt had been made by striking out the second ballot to encourage Labour men to split the Liberal vote in centres of population, but he was of opinion that Labour would not respond to the invitation. There was what might be called an extreme section of Labour that would not hesitate to put forward candidates, even though they could not win, but the great mass of Labour voters in the Dominion were, as they had been for the past 20 years, more in sympathy with a progressive Liberal policy than in putting forward their own candidates, and running the risk of returning the Conservatives. It was a confession of weakness on the part of the present Government to abolish a system which provided for majority rule in order to get their own men returned by means of a split vote. There was some talk of having proportional representation in the large centres, but Mr. Massey had so far been unable to bring his party into agreement on the question.

Asked about the licensing position, Mr. M'Nab stated that the Government was bringing in a bill to reduce the majority required to carry no-license from 60 per cent. to 55 per cent.

BURGLARS.

MANY ROBBERIES DURING HOLIDAYS.

Burglars were very active during the holidays, and several thefts were reported yesterday to the police.

The jewellery establishment of Messrs. Brown and Donohoe, 99 Castlereagh-street, was broken into between Saturday night at midnight and 8 o'clock yesterday morning. The partners left the place on Saturday evening, locking up the rooms and the outer doors. When Mr. E. Donohoe entered the premises at 8 o'clock yesterday he quickly discovered that the place had been partly ransacked. The padlock was broken off, apparently with a jemmy, and then a large safe, weighing 5cwt, was drilled open, the bars thrown back, and about £400 worth of jewellery and £15 in cash taken. A key of a second safe was found, and the safe opened, but valuable jewellery was passed over. A third safe on another floor was not touched. After securing their haul, the burglars decamped, leaving behind them only a jemmy. The breaking open of the safe must have taken some time, for there were several holes bored in the door.

The grocery shop of L. Winder, of 22 Glenmore-road, Paddington, was broken open during the holidays, and £20 worth of butter, groceries, and cigarettes taken.

The fancy goods shop of Miss Ratcliff, in the Queen Victoria Markets, was entered, and £5 worth of goods stolen.

A house in Barker-street, Kensington, and another in Falcon-street, North Sydney, were entered on Monday evening, and jewellery was stolen.

The premises of the Commonwealth Typewriter Company, No. 64 Hunter-street, were entered by burglars between Saturday afternoon and yesterday morning, two portable typewriters, valued at £26, together with a cash box containing 25s in cash and stamps, and several documents being stolen. The property was missed as soon as the shop was opened yesterday morning by the manager, Mr. Reid, but the means of entrance could not be ascertained, the supposition being that a skeleton-key was employed.

During the day the empty cash box was found in a laneway in the city, while the firm's bank pass book and an insurance policy were received through the post.

CAIRNHILL SAFE.

PICKED UP AT SEA.

VALUABLE SALVAGE PRIZE.

News was received in Sydney yesterday that the steamer Cairnhill, 4981 tons, which broke her tail shaft on March 31 last, while bound from Nauru, near Ocean Island, to Stettin, via Java, had been picked up and towed to Namatanai, on the east coast of the island of New Mecklenberg, and that her captain is now on board the steamer Prinz Walderman, and will arrive in Sydney to-morrow.

The announcement of the Cairnhill's safety was contained in a telegram received by the Norddeutscher-Lloyd Company yesterday, which read as follows:—"Cairnhill picked up by steamers Mecklong and Siar, and towed to Namatanai, where she is now anchored. Captain Moodie is on board Prinz Waldemar, proceeding to Sydney."

The Cairnhill should prove a valuable salvage prize, as she was loaded with 7100 tons of phosphates. Nine days after she broke her tail shaft in mid-ocean, thirty-four members of her crew left her in open boats, and, after many hardships, succeeded in reaching Rabaul. Fifteen of these were white members of the crew, and nineteen were Chinese firemen. Twelve of the Europeans came on to Sydney by the steamer Prinz Sigismund and reported that they had left the Cairnhill drifting helplessly with Captain John Moodie and four men still on board.

The steamer Mecklong, belonging to the N.D.L. Company, and the steamer Siar, belonging to the New Guinea Trading Company, which eventually succeeded in finding the Cairnhill, had made an unsuccessful search before the crew left Rabaul. The steamer Sumatra had also been despatched, with the Cairnhill's chief officer on board, to make a 23 days' search. Apparently the Mecklong and Siar, after replenishing bunkers, resumed their search for the missing steamer, and executed a valuable piece of salvage work. The boats will no doubt obtain an equal share of the salvage, as either vessel is said to be too small to tow a big steamer of the Cairnhill type single-handed. They accordingly remained in sight of each other while making their search in order that both should make fast to the big vessel when they came up with her.

CARGO PILFERING.

SEAMEN CONVICTED.

ADELAIDE, Tuesday.

At the Port Adelaide Police Court to-day four seamen of the steamer Borda were sent to gaol for 12 weeks, and ordered to forfeit £2 each out of their wages for having, while on the high seas, embezzled from the cargo, ostrich feathers worth £10, and lace valued at £20.

Captain Millington saw defendants enter the hold, and immediately had the hatches closed. Fifteen cases of cargo were found to have been opened, and goods worth altogether £100 were abstracted.

The magistrate remarked that it was satisfactory to know that it was not always at the wharf side that cargo pilfering occurred.

Defendants names are Harry Charles Davies, Ernest Bruce, Albert James Buck, and Charles John Cripps.

COLLIERY BREAKS AWAY.

WILL ABOLISH SECOND SHIFT.

NEWCASTLE, Tuesday.

Abermain No. 2 colliery has broken away from the other afternoon shift collieries, and has made an agreement with the miners that the second shift shall be abolished within a definite time. Consequently the afternoon shift miners, after being idle for several days, returned to work at 3 o'clock to-day, when the first shift of men had come out of the mine. It is understood that they will continue to work the second shift until the date which is specified in the agreement has been reached.

The executive officers of the Colliery Employees' Federation were reticent with regard to the agreement, and would merely say that the shift was being worked under certain conditions, but what the terms were they were not in a position to divulge. The men had taken the step of their own free will. They desired it, and the executive officers said that they had no objection. "It means that the shift has got to be abolished at a certain date," said Mr. Lewis, of the Miners' Federation.

Mr. D. Watson, president of the federation, referred to-day to the position being considerably more hopeful. He said, "It is apparent to us that the men working the afternoon shift would be prepared to come to terms to bring about a settlement whereby the shift shall be abolished at some future date. The men realise the position," he added, "and they only want to be treated fairly. They are thoroughly amenable to reason in this matter."

HETTON TO RESUME.

Arrangements have been made for the Hetton miners and wheelers to return to work to-morrow morning, after being idle through a strike for several days. The wheelers left the pit because their demand for a reinstatement of two boys, who had been paid off at their own request, was refused by the manager. They have now decided to resume to-morrow on the manager's terms.

DELEGATES IN SYDNEY.

APPEAL TO UNIONISTS.

Messrs. E. Peters and A. Teece, the appointed delegates to represent the case of the Maitland miners to unionists throughout New South Wales, Victoria, South Australia, and Queensland, arrived in Sydney yesterday afternoon, and called on the secretary of the Federation of Labour, Mr. W. Rosser, who, as representing the executive of this body, will control their movements. They explained that the number of persons out of work, because of the proprietors' refusal to abolish the afternoon shift, was roughly 3500. Of this number about 1500 represented those prepared to work the day shift, but who were shut out by the closing down of the mines.

The opposition to the afternoon shift began, the delegates said, to take definite shape some time after the abolition of the "dog watch," in 1907, and, since the men had failed to have it abolished by constitutional means, they had decided to refuse to work it any longer. The joint committee which sat in 1912 (Mr. C. Hibble, chairman), decided not to abolish this shift, but suggested that there should be special payment for working it. The terms of payment, he suggested, should be settled between the employers and employees concerned, and, if they failed to agree, he would come in as arbitrator. The employers had, however, inferentially threatened to take months in submitting evidence, the result being that the committee was disbanded, and the question left unsettled. The award of August, 1912, retained this shift, but during that year and the following year, it was abolished at the Caledonian Coal Company's two collieries, at Abermain No. 1, and at Neath. A conference had taken place a couple of days ago, which might result in the shift being done away with at Abermain No. 2. What was wanted now was that it should be abolished at Pelaw-Main, Hebburn, Stanford Merthyr, South Greta, East Greta, Bellbird, Whitburn, and Rothbury.

CONFORMING TO CUSTOM.

In the Newcastle district the second shift was worked only in dealing with extra pillars, or, in development work. With those exceptions the day shift was time-honoured for some 50 years. If the owners of the mines, to whom the recent award gave the right to continue the second shift, would confer and come to terms to have a gradual abolition, the men would agree to that, as they did in connection with the abolition of the "dog watch," but they were not prepared to go on working this second shift without some definite understanding that it would come to an end at a given date. They wanted to bring the Maitland fields into conformity with custom.

The men knew that one immediate effect of the abolition of the second shift would be to leave a number out of work, but they were confident that, with the opening up of new working places in the existing collieries, there would be a gradual absorption. As an indication of this, reference was made by the delegates to the output at the four specified collieries (which abolished the afternoon shift in the years 1912 and '13) being larger to-day, working only the one shift—and these collieries absorbed about one-half of the men on the Maitland fields.

THE DOCK.

PROPOSED LABOUR SCHEME.

TRAINING THE MEN.

The first steps in connection with the more adequate equipment of the naval dockyard at Cockatoo Island have already been taken, and orders have been given for machinery which is urgently required, and specifications are being drawn up with the view of supplying some at least of the remaining defects. It appears that only a small proportion of the £175,000 voted by Parliament for improved plant has already been spent, and the authorities will, it is understood, expedite the purchase and delivery of equipment necessary for the dockyard up to the full amount for which funds are available. The complete needs of the dockyard, before it can be said to be in an efficient condition, are, however, far in excess of this sum.

Amongst the schemes which are under consideration with the view of supplying the deficiencies of labour at the dockyard is a proposal for the training of able-bodied men, now doing general labouring work, for the special work for which labour is required at Cockatoo Island. It is believed that a considerable proportion of the labour needed could be secured in this way, and that this plan would obviate the necessity of importing men, to which the Boilermakers' Society has offered objection, and would remove the fear of throwing large bodies of skilled workmen on the unemployed market whenever work became slack at the dockyard.

It would, no doubt, be more satisfactory to obtain the services of men already accustomed to the work, but the method suggested would, to a considerable extent, meet the necessities of the case. If, at any time, the work at the dockyard should become less, the men thus employed could return to their general labouring work, and, in the meantime, they would have had the advantage of increased wages and training in skilled or semi-skilled work.

It would probably be more difficult to deal with the question of piecework, to which the Boilermakers' Society has also offered determined resistance. But if the men can be shown that they will not merely earn substantially higher wages, but will not be called upon to work longer hours, or be subjected to the evils of the speeding-up process, as experienced in America and elsewhere, it is hoped that much of the prejudice of the men in this direction will be overcome. In England practically the whole of the engineering and cognate trades are conducted on a piecework basis, with satisfactory results to both the men and employers.

ELECTIONS.

PROBABLE DATE IN AUGUST.

BOTH PARTIES ACTIVE.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

So far there are absolutely no further developments in the political situation, and none can be expected until the attitude of the Opposition with regard to the discussion of the supply bills has been divulged.

The position otherwise is simplicity itself, and this is all that the Liberal leaders can be induced to say. All that now remains to be done is to obtain the necessary funds for the ordinary services of the country, until such time as a new Parliament is elected. Had there been no dissolution in the air, it would have been incumbent upon the Government to obtain supply before the end of the month, as the financial year closing on June 30, all the existing votes expire on that date.

The wildest rumours are heard about the probable attitude of the Opposition, but not one of them can be traced to any responsible source. It is, of course, within the right of the Opposition in both Federal Houses to prolong the debate on the Supply Bill, but the question is what could possibly be gained by the pursuance of such a course. There is, on the other hand, every reason to believe that all the influence which the Opposition leaders are able to bring upon their colleagues will be in the direction of curtailing the debate as much as possible. Both Houses are now practically moribund. No further business than the passing of the Supply will be attempted by the Government.

DRAGGED FROM TART SHOP.

When an early Labour Ministry was ousted from office, it will be remembered that the ex-Ministers, and particularly Mr. Hughes, indulged in the loudest protests against the unkindness of those opposed to them. Mr. Deakin's remarks about Mr. Hughes's conduct are legendary. He compared him to an urchin dragged screaming from a tart shop. The Liberals claim that this is being repeated again by several members of the Labour party. Mr. Fisher is far more careful. He realises the position perfectly, and is no doubt thoroughly conversant with the fact that if the debate in either House is unduly prolonged the public generally will resent Opposition members clinging to their emoluments, when they are no longer earning them.

MR. WYNNE'S RETIREMENT.

The regrettable retirement of the Postmaster-General (Mr. Agar Wynne), who does not intend to seek re-election for Balaclava (Vic.), will leave a vacancy in the Cabinet.

There is, very naturally, a feeling that another Victorian should be offered the portfolio in order that the representation of this State in the Ministry may be maintained. The only other Victorians in the Cabinet at present are Mr. W. H. Irvine and Senator M'Coll. One possibility is that Mr. Kelly, who is now an honorary member of the Ministry, in charge of the Home Affairs Department, may be invited to take a portfolio. Among the Victorians regarded as likely to be offered either a portfolio or an honorary position in the Ministry, as a result of Mr. Wynne's retirement, is Mr. Sampson, the member for Wimmera. Mr. Sampson has had a long experience of political life, and has always stood high in Parliament. He is, moreover, a country member, and on that account alone would be a distinct strength to the Ministry.

Sir Robert Best is mentioned also as a possible choice for the vacancy, though it is doubtful whether he would be able to accept the position. It is not at all certain, of course, that any action will be taken to fill the position until after the fate of the party is known at the elections.

THE ROLLS.

RESULT OF LIBERAL CANVASS.

MANY DISCREPANCIES.

Opportunity was taken of the Prime Minister's week-end visit to Sydney to discuss with him many of the details of organisation, and several matters left in abeyance were settled, so now the Liberal campaign is being prosecuted with vigour.

The literature in regard to the Senate campaign is already in course of preparation, and itineraries are being arranged on a comprehensive scale to embrace the whole State. These tours will be finally decided at a meeting of the Senate candidates, which will take place when the Minister for Defence (Senator Millen) can attend. Already many invitations from the various Liberal branches are coming in, and individual candidates are arranging to address meetings in those centres.

At the Liberal rooms yesterday, it was stated that at present the whole of the energies of the organisation are being concentrated on the enrolment of supporters and an endeavour to purify the roll by objections to the names of persons enrolled that are now not entitled to enrolment. Full instructions on this matter have been issued to all the branches, who will be asked to treat the roll work as urgent matter, seeing that there is only a limited time in which enrolments can be made. The reports that are reaching the office from voluntary canvassers in the various electorates are to the effect that there are still a large number of people who are off the roll, and who have not taken the trouble to make the necessary applications for enrolment.

In a small section of the Wentworth electorate at least 100 Liberal supporters were found to have been omitted from the electoral roll. Conversely, in a similar section in the Lang electorate, the organisation has found almost as many names on the roll where the electors in question have left the district for periods running into years. In some instances two or three families have moved in and out of the same house, whilst all their names still remain on the roll. All this shows how imperative it is that all electors should at once make inquiry as to whether their names are on the roll. All the rolls may be seen at the office of the Liberal Association, and inquiries by letter will be promptly attended to.

Mr. Parkhill, secretary of the Liberal Association, said yesterday: "The Labour organisation is endeavouring unfairly to make political capital out of the method of compiling the roll on which the police are at present engaged. In a circular which was widely distributed on Saturday at the football match, under the title of "Cook's Latest," an effort is made to make it appear that the present Liberal Government is responsible for the state of the rolls. As a matter of fact, the present Electoral Act was the creation of the Fisher Government, and was passed by them in 1911. Compulsory enrolment is one of its provisions, and it is for this reason that the Department cannot adopt any other method than that at present being employed in connection with the matter, viz., cautioning all electors whose names are not on the roll, and leaving to them the duty of completing the matter."

With regard to the constituencies in which no Liberal selection has yet been made, the local organisations have been instructed to proceed with the selections at once, and candidates are being notified that if they desire to submit their names for selection they must do so before Saturday, the 20th instant.

"SHEARERS' SENATE."

Speaking at Ballarat the other day, the Premier of Victoria, Mr. Watt, described the Senate as a "shearers' Senate." Mr. E. Grayndler, general secretary of the Australian Workers' Union, stated yesterday that, so far as the shearers were concerned, and the members generally of the A.W.U., the next

Parliament would be more of a "shearers' Senate." "And," he added, "so far as the executive officers are concerned, we will do all we can in the way of propaganda work to make the vote effective."

LABOUR LEADERS AND THE DISSOLUTION.

(BY R. CLIVE TEECE.)

Mr. Hughes has, as we all expected, published a deliverance on the iniquity of the double dissolution. He and his fellow Labour leaders are typical of that class of democrats who are most enthusiastic in lip-service to "their great masters, the people," who always profess their desire to carry the people's wishes into effect, but who never believe in taking the voice of the people by the best and only method—a general election—except when it suits their convenience to do so.

Mr. Hughes, as usual, begins with the false argument of an epithet. The action of the Governor-General is "unprecedented." The word unprecedented in the mouths of the politician is, like Mesopotamia, a blessed word. But it is strange to find it used as a term of obloquy in the mouth of an alleged radical like Mr. Hughes. To call a thing unprecedented is usually the first and last argument of the extreme conservative. Its application as an epithet to the present dissolution is, however, distinctly amusing. For, as no Governor-General has ever yet been asked for a double dissolution, a refusal of the Government's request would have been equally unprecedented. On this occasion the Governor-General had no precedents to follow; he could not but make one.

Then Mr. Hughes proceeds to discuss the grant of the dissolution from the constitutional point of view. No one ever takes Mr. Hughes seriously as a constitutional lawyer; but lately he has been at great pains in his endeavour to pose as such. His latest deliverance proves how well justified is the public opinion of his qualifications in that respect. It is difficult to extract any definite propositions from his rambling and disconnected deliverance; but as far as I can see, there are three main propositions on which he bases his condemnation of the grant of the dissolution. And in every one of those propositions Mr. Hughes is wrong. The first proposition is that any doubts as to the powers of the Governor-General under section 57 must be resolved in favour of the presumption that the Senate has legislative powers equal to those of the House of Representatives, "and so against a dissolution of the Senate." What a truly admirable non sequitur. If the presumption is always against the dissolution of the Senate, it means that in effect its legislative powers are superior to those of the House of Representatives. For it would have the last word, and there would be no appeal from its decision. The Senate has not equal legislative powers with the House of Representatives. It clearly has not in money bills. And that it has not such equality is definitely proved by the terms of section 57 (the deadlock provision), which provides that, after the dissolution, the two Houses are to sit together—when the Senate is in a minority of over two to one.

Mr. Hughes further says "that the contention that the rejection of any measure by the Senate makes a dissolution of both Houses imperative is repugnant to the Constitution." This statement is an admirable example of Mr. Hughes's practice of putting up a sham bogey to knock it down again. The Liberal party have made no such contention. What they have contended is that the rejection by the Senate of the Preference Prohibition Bill under the existing political circumstances made a double dissolution imperative—a very different matter. For, consider the circumstances. Mr. Hughes's allies in the Senate rejected the bill on the first reading, without even deigning to discuss it. They had time after time taken the business of the House out of the Government's hands. They had attempted to interfere with and control an important branch of the administration by the "comic opera" select committee in aid of Mr. Hughes' friend and protege, "Brother" Chinn—a committee whose proceedings were the veriest travesty of the principles of natural justice. How could any Liberal Government, even if returned with a majority in the Representatives, proceed with such a Senate? This also disproves of Mr. Hughes's contention that, if it was right to dissolve the Senate on this occasion, the Senate can be dissolved if it dares to vote against or amend any bill, no matter how trivial. Whether a double dissolution is to be granted or not on any particular occasion must always be determined by the Governor-General in his discretion, taking into consideration all the political circumstances of the day.

Finally, Mr. Hughes pronounces that it has become an axiom of responsible government that the possibilities of Parliament must be exhausted before a dissolution should be given. Where did he get that axiom from? He must have evolved it from his own inner consciousness. If he will consult some authority, such as Todd, on "Parliamentary Government in the Colonies"—which I commend to his attention if he wishes seriously to study constitutional law—he will find that a Governor is perfectly justified in dissolving Parliament if he believes that a strong and an efficient Ministry cannot be formed in the existing state of parties. The same authority also lays it down that a dissolution is the proper way of settling disputes between the two Houses that seem to be irreconcilable by any other means. Both these conditions exist to-day, and their existence fully justifies the Governor-General's action.

Passing from Mr. Hughes to another of the leaders of the Labour party, it is impossible to find words sufficiently strong to characterise the recent public utterances of Mr. Josiah Thomas. Mr. Thomas has deliberately charged the Governor-General with partisanship—the most serious charge that could be brought against him. The charge is so absurd that it needs no refutation. But to make such a charge against a man, who, by virtue of his public position, cannot hit back, is certainly not what we should expect from an ex-Minister of the Crown. To drag the name of the Governor-General into party politics is bad enough. But Mr. Thomas has gone even further. He has used the Governor-General's action as a means of inflaming class hatred. In a speech at Melbourne on Saturday he said that now, when the conflicting interests are vested interests versus the interests of humanity, the Governor-General had openly, flagrantly, and deliberately come down on the side of the class to which he belonged. Tactics such as these are too contemptible for words. The use of them, however, reveals a curious inconsistency in Mr. Thomas. That gentleman is well known as a prominent lay preacher of the Methodist Church. On Sunday he preaches from the pulpit the gospel of "peace on earth, goodwill to men," and extols the virtues of charity and brotherly love, while on the other six days of the week he does his best to inflame class hatred, and stir up all the angry passions that rise when class is set against class. And the man who does this is not one of the irresponsible rank and file of the party, but one of its chosen leaders—"These be your gods, O Israel."

LABOUR PARTY.

A NEW ORGANISATION.

A new organisation has been formed by the Federal Labour party. The Labour members of the Senate and House of Representatives for New South Wales have had several meetings in Melbourne, the result of which is that they have formed themselves into an organising committee. Each member of the party has decided to place himself at the disposal of this committee for a certain definite time during the campaign to do organising work outside his own electorate. Senator Gardiner has been elected chairman of the committee, and Mr. J. H. Catts, M.P., secretary.

The idea of the new organisation is not only to act in conjunction with the P.L.L. executive, but to relieve that body of much of the strenuous organising work that will be necessary during the campaign. The new committee will arrange to send speakers to centres applying for platform assistance, and it will probably take an active part in finding candidates for the five seats for which no Labour representative has yet been selected. These seats are Parramatta (held by the Prime Minister, Mr. Cook), North Sydney (held by Colonel Ryrie), Werriwa (held by Mr. Conroy), Richmond (held by Mr. Massey Greene), and Cowper (held by Mr. John Thompson). The new committee will issue an appeal for funds, apart from the appeal to unions by the P.L.L. executive, to pay the expenses of speakers sent to various places in response to requests for help. It is stated that the members have taken up the idea with considerable enthusiasm.

There was a large attendance of both Federal and State members of Parliament at the P.L.L. organising committee meeting, held at the executive's rooms yesterday, and presided over by Mr. Holman. The Premier is understood to have declared that he and his colleagues in the State Parliament are enthusiastically behind the Federal Labour party in its election campaign. The members mapped out a plan for the systematic organisation and canvass of the whole State. This is to be started right away, and will be continued till polling day.

ABSENTEE VOTERS.

STRICT REGULATIONS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

It is the intention of the Ministry to do all that it can to strengthen the law on the subject of absentee voting, with the object of safeguarding this provision of the electoral law from abuse.

Regulations are now being drafted to meet the case. Ministers hope that they will be able by this means to restrict somewhat the wide scope which was given to the absentee vote at the last elections, so that while all legitimate exercise of the vote may be permitted, proper precautions may be taken against its improper use. One direction in which it is understood that the new regulations will operate will be to require that every person intending to vote as an absentee on polling day shall give due notice of the fact beforehand. It is stated that the Ministry is taking this action largely on account of the evidence regarding the possibility of the vote being put to improper uses.

END OF THE SESSION.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Opinion is divided as to whether the session will come to a close this week or not. A great deal will, of course, depend upon the result of the Opposition party meeting to-morrow.

Great activity is being displayed in the party ranks outside Parliament, and it appears that everything will be ready to put the election campaign in full swing as soon as Parliament prorogues. The selection of candidates is proceeding in both parties, and the list will probably be complete in a few days.

LIBERAL PARTY.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The members of the Liberal party held a meeting at Parliament House to-day.

They assembled at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and with an adjournment of an hour for dinner continued sitting till half-past 10. At the conclusion the Prime Minister announced that he had nothing to report. Members, he said, had simply talked over the coming campaign organisation and other matters relating to the election.

JOINT SITTING.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The provision for a double dissolution is only part of the machinery provided by section 57 of the Constitution.

The requirements of the first portion of the section have been complied with by the Senate having twice rejected the Government Preference Prohibition Bill, and the dissolution follows. According to the latter part of the section, if the deadlock between the two Chambers should continue after the election there must be a joint sitting of the two Houses, and the bill in dispute can be passed by an absolute majority. There are 36 members of the Senate and 75 members of the House of Representatives. At a joint sitting, therefore, there would be 111 if all the members attended. In a House of 111 the number of votes required to make an absolute majority would be 56. The present Ministerial party has 38 votes in the House of Representatives and 7 votes in the Senate, or a total of 45. It therefore only requires to win 11 seats in the House of Representatives and the Senate combined to enable it to carry its measure in a joint sitting in the event of the elections not giving it an absolute majority in both Houses.

MACQUARIE ELECTORATE.

BATHURST, Tuesday.

The trial is expected to last several weeks. Fourteen leading counsel will appear on behalf of the accused.

CORAL REEFS.

DARWIN THEORY CONFIRMED

Professor W. M. Davis, of Harvard University, is not in the least like Professor David, of Sydney University, and he has never cooled his heels on the Antarctic snows; but he has, nevertheless, been twice mistaken for Professor David, and, if he has not achieved Arctic greatness, has twice had it thrust upon him.

"I'll tell you how it was," said Professor Davis, who is investigating coral reefs, and arrived in Sydney by the Moeraki from New Zealand yesterday, being met by Mr. E. C. Andrews, of the geological staff of the Mines Department. "On the island of Taviuni, in Fiji, where the coasting steamer in which I travelled touched on the way out and back from Suva, the manager of the wireless telegraph station, came on board, and was introduced to me by Captain Marr. The manager mistook my name for that of Professor David, and on going ashore reported at a shooting match that took place next day that the famous Antarctic explorer, Professor David, was on the steamer, and would stop there again on the steamer's return trip a week later. Accordingly, when the steamer returned and I went ashore, the manager and the local magistrate were at the landing, and met me with much attention. I had, of course, to undeceive them, and explain that I was by no means an Antarctic explorer; whereupon, although their courtesy was not diminished, it was evident that their interest had suffered a severe shock, and, needless to say, my height diminished by several feet.

"A similar experience befel me this morning on the Moeraki, when a gentleman from the Solomon Islands expressed much pleasure in meeting me, saying that he had read my books with great interest. On my asking what books he was referring to, he said my report on the Antarctic expedition."

Professor Davis has not yet met Professor David (who some years ago made a special investigation of the coral reefs at Funafuti Island), but is looking forward to the meeting. He is one of the world's great geologists, and is to take part in the meetings of the British Association in Australia, beginning in August next, and also the supplementary meetings in New Zealand during the first ten days of September. But this is only part of his programme. The phenomena connected with coral reefs are claiming most of his attention at present.

DARWIN'S THEORY CONFIRMED.

Professor Davis left Harvard at the end of January, and made his first stop at Honolulu. He spent ten days in making a special study of the reefs surrounding the Island of Oahu. Catching the steamer Niagara, of the Canadian-Australasian line, he reached Fiji on March 7. There he spent seven weeks, visiting no fewer than 18 islands of the group. Part of the journey was made in a coasting steamer, and in the course of it he had what he terms "an interesting experience of a moderate hurricane." The rest of it—to the small outlying islands—was done in cutters manned by native crews.

"The chief results of this trip," said Professor Davis, yesterday, "confirm Darwin's theory of coral reefs, which explains them by upward growth during the slow subsidence of the islands round which they are formed."

From Fiji he crossed to New Zealand, where the month of May was spent in traversing various parts of the Dominion, in company with the geologists and geographers of the four university colleges in Auckland, Wellington, Christchurch, and Dunedin.

AN EXTENSIVE INVESTIGATION.

The professor's present stop at Sydney is to be a short one, as he leaves by the French steamer on Friday for New Caledonia and the New Hebrides. He will probably spend several weeks in New Caledonia, and then make the round trip through the New Hebrides, returning to Sydney at the end of July. The month of August will be given up to the meetings of the British Association, and he hopes to be able to attend the sessions at Adelaide, Melbourne, Sydney, and Brisbane, and to take part in a number of geological and geographical discussions.

On August 11, after attending the supplementary meetings in New Zealand, Professor Davis will sail from Wellington for the Society Islands, where he proposes to spend a month between steamers, returning to San Francisco at the end of October.

"This journey," he explained, "is one of several investigations undertaken by different members of the Harvard staff, and supported by grants from the Shaler memorial fund, contributed by former students of the late Professor N. S. Shaler as a tribute to his memory. The first of these expeditions was undertaken by Professor Woodworth to Brazil to study the ancient glacial deposits of that country, which find their parallel in similar deposits in New South Wales, and concerning which Professor David has made interesting reports. The second problem studied was undertaken by Professor D. W. Johnson, lately of Harvard, and now of Columbia University, New York, who took as his subject the stability of the Atlantic coast of the United States. He is about to publish an interesting and novel statement. My own journey is the third of these investigations, and is the most extensive one yet arranged. The report upon it will probably be published in the bulletin of the Harvard Museum on my return."

Officials of the Mines Department have made offers of guidance to Professor Davis in local excursions. To-night he is to meet the geographical section of the Royal Society.

MISSION HOSPITAL.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

The Home Secretary (Mr. J. G. Appel) has returned to Brisbane after about a week's tour of the northern portion of the State.

Referring to Yarrabah Mission, Mr. Appel said he found the hospital in the same unsatisfactory condition as on a former visit. "In fact," he added, "I had to tell the gentleman acting as superintendent that, unless something was done immediately in connection with the remodelling of this very important part of the mission station, I would seriously have to consider the question of reducing or suspending the payment of any subsidy. The conveniences supplied to the hospital were simply disgraceful."

LIFE-JACKETS.

ON THE FERRIES.

FAILING TO PASS THE TEST.

An awkward position has arisen in Sydney recently between the ferry companies and the Navigation Department as a result of certain tests of life-jackets carried out by the department.

It was announced yesterday that the result of these tests has been far from satisfactory, and that the companies, which have in some cases installed as many as 20,000 life-jackets on their steamers, are accordingly placed in an awkward predicament.

Rule 12, regarding life-saving appliances on vessels, reads as follows:—"Life-jackets: An approved life-jacket shall mean a jacket of approved materials and construction, which, if it depends for its buoyancy on air, does not require to be inflated before use, and which is capable of floating in fresh water for 24 hours with 15lb of iron suspended from it. Life-jackets for children shall be of suitable size, and capable of floating in fresh water for 24 hours with 12lb of iron suspended."

IMPORTED FROM SPAIN.

The regulations issued by the Navigation Department are based on those of the Board of Trade, and when the new regulations were issued on July 1 last the ferry companies were required to provide life-jackets for all passengers. Large consignments of these jackets were imported from Spain and installed on the ferry boats. They were each marked "Equal to Board of Trade Standard," and the companies naturally concluded that they were complying with the regulations. This supposition was strengthened by the fact that the Navigation Department did not at first find fault with them, and steamers carrying them were granted the necessary certificates of seaworthiness.

The tests recently carried out have thrown a new light on the whole question. Only about a dozen and a half jackets have been tested, and it is stated that a large percentage of them has been found wanting. In other words, they do not possess the amount of buoyancy required by the regulations. It is stated that in one case a life-jacket sank immediately the weight was attached to it. In another case the jacket possessed much more buoyancy than was actually required.

On the other hand, it has been asserted that, even if the life-jackets tested did not possess the amount of buoyancy stipulated in the regulations, they would be sufficiently buoyant to keep people afloat. One of the ferry officials pointed out that the test, requiring the jacket to float in fresh water for 24 hours was ridiculous, as no one could ever be left floating in Sydney Harbour for that lengthy period.

DEPARTMENT'S VIEWS.

The secretary to the Navigation Department yesterday said the department could only recognise the regulations. They were anxious not to place any unnecessary restrictions on the companies, but they had to consider the travelling public.

It is not known what action the department is likely to take, but it is possible for the department to refuse to renew a steamer's certificate of seaworthiness if her life-saving appliances are not equal to the requirements laid down.

It is understood that some dispute recently arose in Melbourne over the amount of buoyancy required for children's life-jackets, and a test was made of these. As a result the Board of Trade will probably reduce the weight for children's life-jackets to 11lb from 12lb.

SALVATION ARMY.

HELPING THE HELPLESS.

ANNUAL DEMONSTRATION.

"That earnest anxiety to be of help to those of the community most in need of help, which seems to be the moving spirit of the Salvation Army, is the spirit of Christianity itself," said the Premier (Mr. W. A. Holman), speaking at the annual demonstration of the Salvation Army at the Sydney Town Hall last night. The Army, he added, was a living example of a body that was determined to give its Christianity every possible form of practical manifestation, and was recognised as an institution determinedly and indefatigably on the side of the under dog. In this, members of denominations whose doctrines might differ or vary with the Army, Mr. Holman was glad to think that Australia had perhaps been less in need of the definite ministrations to overwhelming masses of destitution which the Army had been able to afford in less happily situated countries. (Applause).

Referring to the progress of the Salvation Army, Mr. Holman said that owing to the cares of the world and the machinations of the wicked, which he regretted to inform his hearers, upset the patriotic politician just as much as they, and the pioneers of the Salvation Army—(laughter)—, he had been so absorbed in other work that he had not had time to go into statistics. The progress of the Army, however, was manifest, and to-day the forces of cynicism and intellectual advancement were compelled by the steady indifference to antagonism shown by the Army, to pay the homage of their respectful admiration of proved devotion to an ideal. (Applause).

The demonstration related to the social operations of the Army in Australia, and attracted a large attendance. Army members formed an imposing spectacular procession, with bands and tableaux, and marched from the railway station to the Town Hall, where the meeting took place. The Lord Mayor of Sydney (Alderman Richards), presided, and said that the Salvation Army was a power for good in the community. He mentioned that it was in 1865 that the late General Booth conceived the idea of starting it. In 1881 the Army was extended to Australia, and since then had developed into the fine institution it was to-day.

The Dean of Sydney (Dr. Talbot) referred to the cloud cast by the death of so many Salvationists in the Empress of Ireland. The cloud, however, had a silver lining in the exhibition that had been afforded of how Salvationists could die. Dr. Talbot added that the world was languishing for a gospel that was clear and definite, and that could be comprehended by learned and unlearned alike. He liked to think that the primary work of the Salvation Army was spiritual. He liked to think of General Booth, not as a sort of non-commissioned policeman, but as a divinely commissioned preacher of the ever-lasting gospel. (Applause). The social work of the Army sprang from the spiritual work, and in its social work the Army was performing a public service, and was deserving of public support.

Professor David referred to the fact that £15,000 was needed for further promoting the work of the Army.

Others present included Mr. Hoyle, M.L.A. (Assistant Treasurer and Minister for Railways), Mr. W. E. Robson, M.L.A., and representatives of various religious bodies.

AERIAL MAIL.

FIRST IN AUSTRALIA.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The first aerial mail carried across country in Australia was brought from Bendigo to Ballarat this morning by M. Guillaux, the French airman.

M. Guillaux left Bendigo racecourse at 25 minutes past 10, and arrived at Ballarat 55 minutes later, having covered about 80 miles in that time. At Castlemaine he rose to a height of 16,000ft, and the thermometer registered 36 degrees below freezing point. It was so cold that he had to descend to a lower level, and rapidly fell to 10,000ft.

HOME RULE.

The Premier (Mr. Holman), the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly (Mr. Meagher), and the Minister for Lands (Mr. Trefle) have consented to address the Home Rule meeting to be held in the Town Hall on Friday evening, at which the Archbishop of Sydney will preside. Miss Maggie Moore (by permission of J. C. Williamson, Ltd.) will sing "The Wearing of the Green," and Dr. Nash, M.L.C., will conduct the overflow meeting.

AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.

A general loss has taken place in the different weather systems since Monday. The high pressure which was centred over the southern and western districts of New South Wales has moved further northward, and has lost in barometric values.

The monsoonal depression which has been off our north coast for the past day or two, and has been responsible for the coastal rains just experienced, is now gradually filling, and, consequently, fine weather may be expected generally.

The Antarctic disturbance over the Bight is a flat and characterless-looking depression, with its centre to the south of Eucla. The "High" over Western Australia has made a slight advance, and is at present centred over the south-eastern districts.

Ocean Forecast.—Moderate north-west to westerly winds over southern ocean, between the Bight and Tasmania, with slight to moderate seas; smooth to slight elsewhere.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

DOG ISLAND LIGHTHOUSE.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Tuesday.

The head keeper (Murray) was on duty when the storm was at its height. Flashes first struck the western wall, extinguishing three out of sixteen lights, and travelled inside the building. Murray was knocked off his chair. The windows were all smashed, and boards and bricks torn from the structure like pieces of paper. The cable, for a distance of 50 yards was fused, and rendered useless. All cable-box fittings were ruined. Communication is now restored.

THE MINERS' PRESIDENT.

A PERSONAL EXPLANATION.

NEWCASTLE, Tuesday.

Mr. D. Watson, president of the Colliery Employees' Federation, to-day said: "I was surprised to see in the leading article of your journal of Friday last a statement in connection with the interview that took place between the northern, southern, and western miners and the Minister for Labour and Industry and Minister for Mines, to the effect that 'the deputation was headed by a gentleman who kept his cap on all the time, was sufficiently noteworthy as showing more of direct masterfulness than earnest communion with equals.' As these words are intended to refer to myself, I beg to ask that you will do me the honour of withdrawing such aspersions, as having contracted a cold which brought on a skin rash, I was compelled to have my hair removed. Not having any other protection than my cap at the time, I approached the Ministers when entering the room, and showed them the disabilities under which I was labouring, and asked to be excused from taking my cap off. Both Ministers readily assented to the request, and I did not give the matter any further consideration. I had no idea that the reporter would have been so painstaking in giving such a graphic description of what was undoubtedly a most interesting and lively interview. Had the reporter been sufficiently watchful he might have noticed at one stage of the interview that I was compelled to remove my cap, notwithstanding the delicate nature of my complaint. I take no objection whatever to being criticised in regard to any opinions that I may give utterance to on any public question, but when my deportment as a gentleman is called in question I have decided objections, and raise an emphatic protest against the treatment meted out to me in the article. It is contrary to my nature to act disrespectfully towards anyone, much less a Minister of the Crown, and I look to see a complete withdrawal of the statements made in the article in question."

LIBERAL ORGANISATION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Mr. Rayment's letter on the subject of "Liberal Organisation" will find many sympathisers amongst those who are connected with political organisations, though they should not be unanimous in laying all the blame at the door of the central executive of the Liberal Association. In most instances we can look nearer home for the root of the evil, and, having found it, cure it very effectually by the application of a little self-help. The central executive can't possibly find the money to keep permanent organisers in every electorate, but the numerous metropolitan and suburban branches of the association (which, to be worth keeping alive, should at least be self-supporting), can, with very little trouble, themselves do all the organising and canvassing work that has to be done, and do it more effectually than paid organisers can. This only necessitates mapping out each electorate into convenient districts, say, twenty, or more or less as may be required—and the allotting of each such district to two or more members of the local branch or branches of the association for canvassing and organising work. In this way the ground will easily be covered, and if the men and women chosen to do the work are reasonably well known in their respective districts the result will be infinitely more lasting, and encourage a more loyal and more hearty support than if entrusted to a paid organiser, who is not only, generally speaking, a complete stranger to the locality, but is handicapped by being a "paid organiser"—a term commonly, though very unfairly in the vast majority of cases, used as a term of reproach. From long personal experience I can say that very little difficulty is encountered in finding men and women able and willing to undertake this work, which, if done systematically, calls for no excessive expenditure of time, and, from a monetary point of view, costs practically nothing.

If the metropolitan and suburban branches of the association can be induced to encourage and strengthen this system they will give a tremendous assistance to the party in the fight that is looming ahead, and enable the central executive to concentrate its forces in the country districts where assistance is absolutely needed because of the large areas to be covered—a task which it would be unreasonable to expect honorary workers to accomplish. I am, etc.,

June 8.

Very innocently an Irish newspaper thus concludes its account of an imposing ceremony: "The procession was very fine, being nearly two miles long, as was also the prayer of the Rev. Mr. M'Fadden."

FINANCIAL.

LIFE OFFICES AND WAR RISKS.

The Equitable Life Assurance Society is making no additional charge to existing policy-holders who take part in the war in Mexico. New policyholders, however, pay 30 dollars per 1000 dollars extra. The Mutual Life will issue policies free of restrictions, except in some cases where officers of the army or navy are concerned, where the right is reserved to rate the risk. In case of future applications, an agreement must be made not to engage in any service connected with actual warfare, either as a civilian, soldier, or a sailor, without obtaining permission from the company, and paying such extra premium as may be imposed. The Metropolitan Life will write war risks at the regular rates, and for full benefits in case of death. There are two limitations to those who may hereafter apply for insurance, one being that the beneficiary named must be a bona-fide dependent, and the maximum amount must be 2000 dollars ordinary. Policies will be issued with free disability provisions, except in States where the law requires a charge.

THE RICKARD-HAYMARKET FUSION.

At a largely-attended meeting of the shareholders of the Haymarket Permanent Land, Building and Investment Company, Limited, held yesterday, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted, viz.:—

1. That this meeting finally approves of the scheme for amalgamation of the Haymarket Permanent Land, Building, and Investment Company, Limited, with Arthur Rickard and Co. Extended, Limited, as set forth in circular dated April 3 last, and approved by a meeting of shareholders on April 21; and that, with a view to the consummation of such amalgamation, all shareholders who have not already signed the form of agreement issued with this company's circular of the 16th inst. are urged to sign the said agreement and lodge the same at the company's office forthwith.

2. That the directors are hereby authorised to transmit to Arthur Rickard and Co. Extended, Limited, all above-mentioned agreements now held and hereafter received.

This absorption of the Haymarket Co. will, we understand, be immediately completed.

TELEPHONE CONNECTIONS.

From time to time we have heard of would-be telephone subscribers having to wait an unconscionable time before they could get connected with the exchange. This trouble is not a local one only. In reply to a question in the House of Commons recently, it was disclosed that the average time it takes at present to connect a new subscriber with the telephone system in the cities referred to is as follows:—

	Days.
London	18½
Birmingham	51
Liverpool	26
Manchester	40
Edinburgh	18
Belfast	40
Dublin	21½

These delays, it was explained, are due partly to the want of spare plant, which is being met as quickly as possible by new underground schemes, and partly to the abnormal amount of work on hand for the general development of the telephone service. They also include exceptional delays due to wayleave difficulties, or to circumstances arising out of the subscribers' private arrangements.

INCOME TAX PROBLEMS.

A LIVE STOCK QUESTION.

Mr. G. M. Reed writes:—

Sir,—Will you be good enough to express your opinion on the following questions concerning State income tax return:—

1. A grazier buys sheep, say, in July, 1913, at 9/ per head. On December 31, 1913, they are worth 12/ per head. At what figure should they be estimated for the purposes of arriving at the value of his stock on hand on December 31, 1913?

2. Should the value of natural increases in stock be taken into account in the total value of stock on hand at December 31, 1913? By this I mean, have lambs which have a marketable value to be included in return? If they have no value in the year they are dropped, must their value be included in the stock on hand for the succeeding year, provided, of course, that they have not been disposed of in the meantime?

(1) The best course will be to keep at the original value of 9/—that is to say, the price at which they were purchased.

(2) No. The natural increases need not be included. Of course, when the stock is sold the price it realises will have to be brought into account.

TAXING THE DEAD.

Mr. H. B. Smith writes:—

Sir,—I am obliged for your reply in Saturday's issue of your paper, and note that the Commissioners have power to assess a deceased person for income tax, and should now be glad if you could tell me how an application for probate can be dealt with under these circumstances. It is obvious that the income tax will now be a debt at death, but the applicant for probate will be unable to insert the amount due for income tax until the Commissioners have made their assessment, which may be 12 months afterwards. Is the applicant to delay his application for this, as, if he does not include the liability, he will be paying probate duty and income tax on the same amount?

Under existing conditions it would appear as though legally all deceased estates owning land must wait two years for the Federal Land Tax Department, and at least 12 months for the income tax. Is this fair, or conducive to the public welfare?

We have not the slightest doubt that the Taxation Commissioners would hurry up the assessment in such a case as that suggested.

SCOTTISH-AUSTRALIAN MINING COMPANY.

The report of the above company for the six months ended December 31, 1913, showed that the sales of coal from the company's collieries during the period amounted to 143,254 tons. The strike at one of the Lambton pits, which commenced in March, 1913, continued until October 20. The pit was therefore idle for nearly four months out of the six under review. Work was resumed by the men under the old conditions, subject to the consideration of their complaints by a wages' board. Generally, the attitude of labour was embarrassing, and its cost continued to increase. The colliery manager reported that the workings and machinery of the collieries were in good order, and that coal maintained a steady quality. The opportunity was taken during the strike at the Lambton pit to improve the underground workings. The weighing arrangements at Burwood were being reconstructed, in order to comply more fully with the Coal Mines' Regulations Act. These alterations will, it was hoped, tend towards economy in future workings. The furnace at the Cadia had been working regularly, with slight exception, during the half-year, and its product of copper matte had considerably improved the financial position of the lessees—the Cadia Copper Mining and Smelting Company, Ltd. With regard to the development of the iron industry in New South Wales, there was no definite progress to report. A considerable amount of iron manufacturing was gong on at Lithgow, and the manager advised that the lessee of the Cadia Iron Ores and owner of the Lithgow works had offered to dispose of his interests to the State Government. The revenue account showed a balance amounting to £8990. Out of this, the directors proposed to pay a dividend at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, less income tax, absorbing £6250, thus leaving a balance of £2740 to be carried forward.

THE INVENTOR'S SHARE.

"Sophocles" writes:—

Sir,—Would you tell in the Monetary and Commercial column: (1) What is the share usually allotted to, say, an inventor when a limited company is formed to work the invention? (2) In case of an increase of the capital of the company—say, the original capital was £12,500, and it is increased to £25,000, in £1 shares in both cases? Some tell me one half the shares in the first or smaller company; part cash and part shares. If so, does the same proportion hold in the larger company? Or (3), what is the usual practice?

There is no rule. Every case must stand on its own merits. If the invention is one that is quite beyond the experimental stage, then the inventor gets more; if the money is to be used for further experiment, or is risked as far as public demand is concerned, then the inventor gets less.

AMORPHOUS WHITE LEAD CO., LTD.

Mr. F. T. Ward writes:—

Sir,—I perused with interest the letter of Mr. T. Butement, and the reply of Mr. A. D. Pedley, the chairman of directors, thereto, and likewise the prospectus published in your columns. During the past 25 years various unsuccessful attempts have been made to start the manufacture of commercial white lead (carbonate of lead) from scrap metal by chemical processes. This company, however, claims to be able to produce a superior sublimed white lead (sulphate) direct from the crude ore, galena, or concentrates of same, by volatilising both sulphur and lead in a specially constructed furnace, consuming the sulphur gases, and precipitating the sulphate. Difficulty will be experienced in preventing the formation of oxides, which would detract from the whiteness of the finished product. The addition of a little sulphate of zinc should be more of an improvement than otherwise, and should tend to harden the paint, giving it greater resistance to the carbonic acid of rain water, sulphuretted hydrogen, and the chlorine in sea air. I would advise the company to erect a small plant at cost of few hundreds pounds thoroughly to demonstrate what they claim in the prospectus. When this has been done, and all difficulties overcome, then float a large company to manufacture their lead, and other products, on a very large scale. The possibilities of such an industry are so enormous that the various Governments, State and Commonwealth, should give every assistance to the inventor and the enterprising promoters. In New South Wales alone there are hundreds of rich and low-grade silver-lead mines lying idle, which would probably pay good wages or dividends to small companies if a permanent local market was assured for their dressed crude ore and concentrates.

CITIES GOVERNED BY COMMISSION.

In the United States the aldermanic system of city governance is giving way to control by commission. The Kansas City "Star" has issued a new edition of its booklet showing the progress of municipal government by commission. The compilation shows that more than 300 cities, located in thirty-eight States, have adopted commission government, either in complete or modified form. Kansas has 38 such cities; Pennsylvania has 28; Illinois has 23; Texas and Oklahoma, 19 each; New Jersey, 17; Michigan and South Dakota, 13 each; California, 12; Wisconsin and Louisiana 10 each; Iowa and Alabama, 9 each; Washington, 8; Massachusetts, Colorado, Mississippi and Tennessee, 7 each; North Carolina, North Dakota and Minnesota, 6 each; West Virginia, Utah and South Carolina, 5 each; Kentucky and Nebraska, 4 each; Florida, Missouri, Ohio and Oregon, 3 each; Idaho, New Mexico, and Wyoming, 2 each; Arizona, Arkansas, Georgia, Maine, Maryland, Montana, and New York, 1 each. New Orleans, with a population of 339,000, is the largest city in the list. Others of the larger cities are: Jersey City, 267,000; St. Paul, 214,000; Denver, 213,000; Portland, Ore., 207,000; Oakland, 150,000; Birmingham, 132,000; Memphis, 131,000; Omaha, 124,000; Lowell, 106,000; Spokane, 104,000; San Antonio, 96,000; Dallas, 92,000; Des Moines, 86,000; Kansas City, Kans., 82,000.

GOLDSBROUGH, MORT.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The report of Goldsbrough, Mort, and Co., Ltd., for the year ended March 31 shows a balance at credit of profit and loss of £221,996. The directors recommend a dividend of 10 per cent., including the interim dividend, and a bonus of 10 per cent., making 20 per cent. for the year, absorbing £140,547, leaving a balance of £81,449 to carry forward.

EMU BAY RAILWAY.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Emu Bay Railway Company's receipts for the last month amounted to £4701, as compared with £5902 for May, 1913, making total receipts for five months £24,309, as against £29,475 within same period last year.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The Castle Salt Co-operative Company, Ltd., has declared for the year ended May 8 a dividend (inclusive of interim dividend) at the rate of 7½ per cent. per annum.

The Commercial Banking Company of Sydney has opened a branch at Morven, Queensland.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

All the markets were quiet yesterday. Merchant business, except as regards tea, was at a standstill, and until stocktaking is accomplished no buying, except for immediate requirements, will be done.

Grocery lines were without change in prices. Dried fruits were going out well. Dates had a large distributing trade, and, considering stocks, they need it. Present season's dates may be purchased at 2¼d per lb by retailers, but for old dates a half-penny less would be accepted. Salmon was going out steadily at full rates.

Teas by Monday's mails were of moderate quantity, and as prices on the whole were attractive, the incoming teas furnished a satisfactory market, more especially as they had a little more colour than usual at this time of the year. About 400 chests of Javas sold up to 9½d, and 300 packages of Ceylons up to 1/0½. It was mentioned on Saturday that for some fine Darjeeling tea 1/6 had been refused under the hammer. This tea has since been sold privately at 1/8 per lb. Colombo letters received by Monday's mails show that, contrary to expectations, which were for record supplies, operators now anticipate smaller supplies, accompanied by firming prices all round. Newara Eliya teas were showing at the time of writing rather poorer quality as compared with shipments landed during the last month. These teas were all more or less burned and dried, and lacked the true Ceylon flavour. Notwithstanding these facts, they continued to sell at firm rates.

The chemical market had not recovered from the holiday, and business generally was slack. A revival was not expected till about August.

In metal lines, manufactures of lead advanced 10/ per ton. Sheet lead in full rolls selling at £25/5/ per ton, and at 26/ per cwt. in cut rolls. Pipes were advanced in the same amount. Since the last alteration, which was on April 30, the price of lead in the English market has advanced 25/ per ton. That market has been very irregular, but all the while the tendency has been towards higher prices. Other metal manufactures were without quotable change. Griffith rabbit traps had a brisk business at 11/, in distributing lots.

Although on the last day of the last week a small line of branbags was picked up at 5/5¼ net, the quotation yesterday was 5/6 net. Brokers were convinced that there are many bottled up here, but yesterday the holders of any quantity would not make confession. All declared themselves to be almost on their last bale. Woolpacks were stronger, 3/1, less discount, being asked for all positions. A better feeling also was noticeable in cornsacks. There were none under 6/7 net for November delivery, and in some cases 6/7½ net was asked. Calcutta had shown higher rates.

GERMAN ADVERTISING.

A cable message in yesterday's issue stated that, according to the "Revue Export," German firms have subscribed £12,500, equalling a similar grant by the Government, to enable a news agency to send abroad full and accurate reports relating to the progress of German industry and trade. Presumably the amount stated is a yearly subsidy, but the scheme is not so ambitious as its initiators proposed. The original scheme would have cost £50,000 a year. In Germany a great deal of attention is being paid at the moment to foreign trade. According to the Berlin correspondent of the "Economist," the school of Professor Harms, the editor of the "Weltwirtschaftliches Archiv," which has already done much good work in the study of all questions connected with international commercial relations, has now, on the opening of its new buildings in Kiel, received official recognition as an independent organisation under the title of the "Institute for Sea Traffic and World Trade." Almost at the same time in Berlin was founded the "Weltwirtschaftliche Gesellschaft," a society of authoritative experts for the study of the history and conditions of international trade and for the best means of advancing Germany's economic interests in the struggle of world commerce. Its work is to remain theoretical; practical interests, however, are to be represented in still another organisation, "The Association for World Trade." This last foundation promises to be the most important of the three. The history of its origin is too complicated to be given in detail, but it would appear to have developed from the desire to combine existing and future associations for the protection of German commercial interest in various foreign countries. In it the Zentralverband Deutscher Industrieller and the Bund der Industriellen, whose interests are so often opposed, have joined forces, and are making common cause with the large shipping companies.

PROMOTION OF GERMAN INTERESTS.

So far, at least, the Berlin correspondent continues, the large banks are holding back. The organisation, which is said largely to be the work of Herr Ballin, is to defend and promote the whole of Germany's commercial interests abroad. It is in particular to send out agents of its own to found branches abroad, and to watch over the activities of the German Consuls. Further, it has the significant object of influencing the treatment of Germany in the world's press, by the sending out of journalists to counteract the anti-German tendency of many foreign newspapers and cable services. It will, lastly, act in close connection with German educational institutions abroad, and make a special point of spreading a knowledge of Germany through the foundation of schools. The yearly expenses of this ambitious scheme are expected to reach about £50,000, so that it will be no small tax on the exporting firms, who will presumably become members. In any case, the success of this typical German plan of systematic advance will be watched with interest. With people in Berlin, the simultaneous advance of English "Kultur" and English trade has been going on for several generations, but, it must be admitted, it has never been promoted with the same organised and somewhat artificial determination. Apparently large banks have now come in, as the cable concludes by stating that the board of management consists of the directors of the leading Berlin banks and great German industrial enterprises.

STANDARDISATION OF SCREW THREADS.

An item of news of interest to engineering firms is contained in an Admiralty announcement that it will abandon its own fine-screw thread system in favour of the British Standard Table of fine threads. The innovation will not apply to electric conduit screwing or to electrical bulkhead glands or box glands. For these the Admiralty will retain the British Engineering Standards Committee's fine threads as now used and specified—conduit thread for conduits and gas thread for the other fittings mentioned. Work now in hand may be completed as ordered—i.e., with the Admiralty thread; but for all orders received in future the British Standard threads, as specified in British Standard Reports No. 20 (as revised February, 1913), will be required. This is, on the whole, good news for contractors on the Admiralty list. Two systems of threads for similar work is one system too many in one works, and there is no doubt that the Admiralty has had to pay for the extra cost and inconvenience which its special thread has put upon manufacturers.

SHORT SHIPMENTS, AND SHUT OUTS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Short shipments and shut outs have been growing at such a rate in the jute goods business that importers are feeling the position keenly. It is the custom of the importers to sell here for delivery during specified months, but when the goods do not come to hand from Calcutta, the sellers have no alternative but to procure their commitments on this market frequently at a sharp loss. Last season cornsacks were repeatedly shut out or short-shipped for various reasons, but it has been found difficult to obtain redress from Calcutta, and several claims are still outstanding.

But the matter has been brought to a head by the recent large short shipments of woolpacks to Sydney. The May steamer left a considerable portion of the woolpacks for the New South Wales wool clip behind, and even short shipments from April contracts were not despatched in May. The Sydney importers have therefore sent three of their members (Messrs. G. W. Henty, G. B. Brown, and N. Smith) to Melbourne for the purpose of persuading Victorian importers to confine their purchases to such Calcutta shippers as would eliminate certain clauses at present in their contracts, and insert others favourable to buyers.

A meeting was held at the offices of Messrs. Virgoe, Son, and Chapman, to-day, but no finality was arrived at. The Sydney committee were asked to put their suggestions into concrete form, which they did subsequently, and it is hoped by the Sydney houses that seven-eighths of the importers will come into line.

BREADSTUFFS.

VALUES SLIGHTLY HIGHER.

The small advance which has taken place in the English wheat market made prices higher on the local market yesterday, but only a fraction. Shippers would give up to 3/10¾ ex trucks Darling Island for a large parcel, and a little business was done on this basis. For growers' lots, 3/5¼ to 3/5½ in the stacks, equal to 3/10 ex trucks Darling Island.

Flour was quiet, at £9. Bran and pollard had moderate sales, at £5.

ANOTHER ADVANCE IN BUTTER.

The wholesale quotation for butter was again advanced 4/ per cwt. yesterday. Prime New South Wales brands were not to be had under 114/ per cwt delivered in boxes. The price for export was 112/. The Brisbane market also advanced to 112/. There now appears to be a genuine falling off in the arrivals, and the supplies received yesterday were only just sufficient to fill requirements. The following is a comparison of the prices ruling here and in London at this period during the past five years:—

The tone of the bacon market continues to improve, and it was impossible to buy under the quoted levels. Hams were dull and unchanged.

Case eggs were dearer. Rivers were worth from 1/6 to 1/9, and railways from 1/7 to 1/9. Stocks of new-laid suburban varieties were fairly heavy, and some holders were inclined to give concessions on the quoted price of 2/ to 2/3. Duck eggs were dull and unaltered.

SYDNEY CITY MISSION.

CHIPPENDALE BRANCH.

The thirty-fourth annual tea and concert of the Sydney City Mission took place last night. The tea, which was largely attended, was held in the Wesley Hall, Regent-street. Later, at the Meagher-street Mission Hall, Mr. A. A. Cocks, M.L.A., presided over a crowded audience, the public meeting being a most enthusiastic one.

The reports from Mrs. Seddon and Sister Milne showed that the work done by Mr. Seddon (the missionary) and the sister had been most successful. The Sunday School was in a very healthy condition, but owing to Mr. Seddon's illness a good deal of dislocation had taken place. The resumption scheme had affected the school attendance, but it was still large enough to fill twice over the hall and class-rooms. The women's work, under a band of helpers, was a strong feature of the mission, and the assistance given to the poor had eclipsed all previous records.

Dr. E. Caro said when men awoke to their duty and, by the ballot-box, wiped out the licenses for drink, a great deal of poverty would be wiped out.

Mr. Cocks said that it was a crime to bring out poverty-striken immigrants. A man should be given a fair start, should be provided with proper housing, so that he could look around, and have a chance to get work. He had seen in Sydney four families living in a four-roomed house: those were the people the mission did most good to. The chairman closed with a strong appeal for financial assistance.

THE HIGH COURT.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The High Court delivered judgment in the case of the King versus the Court of Conciliation and Arbitration, calling upon the President of the Court to show cause why a writ of prohibition should not be issued to prohibit the Court from further proceeding with the award in the plaint of the Merchant Service Guild against William Holyman and Sons, and other Tasmanian respondents. The award was delivered on October 23, 1913. The formal order of the Court was that an order nisi be made absolute for prohibition from enforcing the award as against the applicants, Huon and Peninsular Steamship Co., Rowe and Sons, Huon Steamship Co., Henry J. Condon, James Sheppherd and Co.; but as to other applicants, except Rinby Bros., the order nisi be discharged. The case of Rinby Bros. was reserved for further consideration.

An application was made for a certificate for special leave to appeal to the Privy Council by master builders in the builders' labourers' case. The High Court made no order, and also made no order as to costs.

BORDER RAILWAYS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I notice in your columns of issue of May 30 a letter from one signed "Sydney Agent," with regard to border railways. The principal portion of his complaint is that the present Government has wisely adopted a broad ideal with regard to that portion of the State that adjoins Victoria, and justly considers that Southern Riverina people should be given facilities to their nearest markets, and such are Melbourne and its adjoining town, Geelong.

This present Government has looked at the question in a broad national way, not the narrow parochial one that permeates the brain of "Sydney Agent" and those of his ilk. He overlooks the broad part of the question, that the more facilities given to the producer of land wealth by railway communication to the nearest seaports, the more wealth is produced by increased culture of land now not utilised to its best advantages. Also, there will be a large increase of population to the State, which is another added source of wealth. There will be closer settlement of people on land that is now vacant of population.

By the wise policy of the present Government agreeing with Victoria re construction of border lines of railways, large areas of land in Southern Riverina will be utilised that are now non-productive up to their true value. He also overlooks the fact that the peoples of Southern Riverina object to be chained to a port and its city nearly 400 miles away, whilst another port and city are only 200 miles away which they desire to have access to, but which men of "Agent's" calibre would deny them if they had the power. Let Sydney merchants and wheat agents give better prices and terms than the Victorian ones, and they will be able to do business, and overcome the wily Victorian agent he alludes to. Take, for instance, this portion of Southern Riverina between Albury and Corowa, viz., the Howlong district, which at present has a live agitation for a railway connection from the north-eastern Victorian line, from about Barnawatha to Howlong, a distance of 10 miles, and which the Victorian Government would no doubt construct under the present agreement. This would give this district Melbourne and its ports as an outlet for its products, and the distance is only 182 miles, whilst Sydney, its port, is a distance of 396 miles. Consequently increased expense is entailed upon the producer of this district by having to send his produce to Sydney, whilst the line now being asked for to Melbourne would be a great benefit to this wheat-producing district, and a large amount of land that is now idle would be utilised for its best interests and the State's. Also, a connection from Burrumbuttock or Brocklesby could be made to Howlong, making it a loop line to Victoria to carry heavy traffic, and save a duplication of the main line, Culcairn to Albury. The people of Southern Riverina are only asking for their just rights when they ask for these border lines and access to their nearest markets, which has always been denied them by the former Sydney Governments. The Government has in a broad spirit considered that the people of Southern Riverina had a just right to have access to their nearest and best market, hence the agreement made by the Premiers of the States, New South Wales, Victoria, and South Australia, and the commission appointed by the Governments to deal with the question on a broad business principle, not of the ideal of "Sydney Agent." His wail about taxation is feeble, as he passes same on to the producer. My humble advice to "Sydney Agent" is for him to purchase a property in Southern Riverina, and if he does he will be as ardent a supporter for border railways as now he is an opposite factor. I am, etc.,

DAVID REID, Hon. Secretary
Howlong Border Railway League.

CAUSES OF FIRES.

CITY COUNCIL'S INQUIRY.

AMENDING THE BUILDING ACT.

At the instance of Ald. Lindsay Thompson, the city building surveyor (Mr. R. H. Broderick) was recently instructed to inquire into the causes of fires in the city.

At yesterday's meeting of the works committee of the City Council, Mr. Broderick reported that, considering the rapid growth of the city, and its practical rebuilding during the last 20 years, he did not think that the increase in the number of fires had been considerable. Of the principal dangers leading to risk of fire one of the greatest was the storage of combustible materials within buildings. Unfortunately, the present building Act did not give power of suppression, but dealt only with the manufacture of such materials. His impressions had been for many years past that the frequency of fires seldom varied much, taken annually. They come in cycles, and it almost invariably happened that, when one large fire occurred, two others generally followed within a short space of time.

Another cause was the enormous danger always in evidence by reason of timber yards and timber drying sheds not being confined to one outside district, as in most modern cities. They were permitted in any portion of the city, this particularly referring to the smaller holdings, principally operated by Chinese furniture-makers.

Power to regulate this stacking of inflammable materials was sought in the proposed amending bill. Another cause leading to the disastrous termination to fires was the fact that frequently the steelwork girders used internally to carry the floors of buildings were totally unprotected, consequently their use after exposure to fire was far more defective than hardwood beams, as the walls were dragged down by the heated and twisted girders. The modern rage for light everywhere was also a factor. Not only would some owners obtain an almost total frontage of glass if feasible, but light was very frequently obtained from their neighbour's ground, thereby exposing both premises to new dangers.

Power was sought in the amending bill to frame a bylaw for the compulsory closing with automatic steel shutters of all openings looking upon joint areas and narrow streets. This would materially lessen the risk of the spread of fire. One of the principal dangers of fire extension and also a hindrance to fire-fighters was the insufficiency of through laneways in the main blocks of the city. This had always been a standing danger, and it behoved the council, whenever resumptions were contemplated, to study well the advisability of making these resumptions of such magnitude as to permit of perfect access from all main thoroughfares to the centre of these evils; better a few well-digested improvements than many small areas, with little deviation from the original plan. Great improvements had been made of late years in the providing of escapes, and a vast number of them had been provided where none whatever formerly existed. The greatest risk in Sydney was the congested mass of buildings huddled together in the various central blocks, unapproachable save from the front facades. It was the passage into law of the Building Act Amending Bill, together with such improvements as the suggested extension of Kent-street to Goulburn-street, and the forming of an intermediate street between George-street and Pitt-street which would strike at the heart of the matter, the latter giving the fire-fighter a fair chance.

Ald. Lindsay Thompson believed that one of the causes of fires was faulty electric light installations. He moved that the council confer with the underwriters and the fire brigade authorities with the object of trying to find out what was wrong.

Ald. A. M'Elhone said that the most dangerous block in the city was that bounded by King, George, Pitt, and Market streets.

After discussion, Ald. Thompson's motion was negatived.

HUSBAND BEFORE THE COURT.

DEATH SENTENCE RECORDED.

At the Central Criminal Court yesterday, before Mr. Justice Pring and a jury, Alfred Thomas Luby, a butcher, was charged with having feloniously wounded his wife, Deborah Luby, at Annandale, on April 22. Mr. R. J. Browning was Crown Prosecutor, and Mr. A. W. Ralston, instructed by Mr. J. Howarth, appeared for Luby, who pleaded not guilty.

In opening the case to the jury, the Crown Prosecutor said that Luby and his wife, who had a family, were living apart, and on April 22 the accused went to the house where his wife, son, and daughter lived at Annandale. He was under the influence of drink at the time, and had a conversation with his wife, but there was evidently some bickering and shots were fired, the son and daughter afterwards finding their mother seriously wounded. The father then turned the revolver on himself, with almost fatal results.

Mrs. Luby said that when the accused went to the house at which she was living he seemed to speak in a rambling manner, and was heard to say, "We will both go together." Luby then jumped to his feet, and witness saw a flash of light pass by her face, heard a loud report, and felt a stinging blow on the cheek. Witness stumbled to the scullery door, and her daughter dragged her into the yard. When she was in the garden she heard several more shots, but none of them struck her. The bullet which hit her was still in her cheek. Luby had been drinking very heavily.

To Mr. Ralston witness said that Luby had often carried a revolver, and on two occasions she had had him brought back from the country for maintenance. Violence in drink was the accused's worst fault. The shooting occurred at the time of the butchers' strike, when accused was out of work. When sober there was no better man living.

Luby, in his defence, said that he had been drinking heavily at the time, and had decided to go away. A separation order had been drawn up, but afterwards they became friendly. Witness went to the country, drinking on the journey, but not being able to get work he returned to Sydney. On April 22 he had been drinking all day. He intended to go to Newcastle, and had bought a revolver. He went to his wife's house to say good-bye, and he remembered sitting down in the kitchen, but nothing of what occurred afterwards.

Sentence of death was formally recorded.

A REPRESENTATIVE GATHERING.

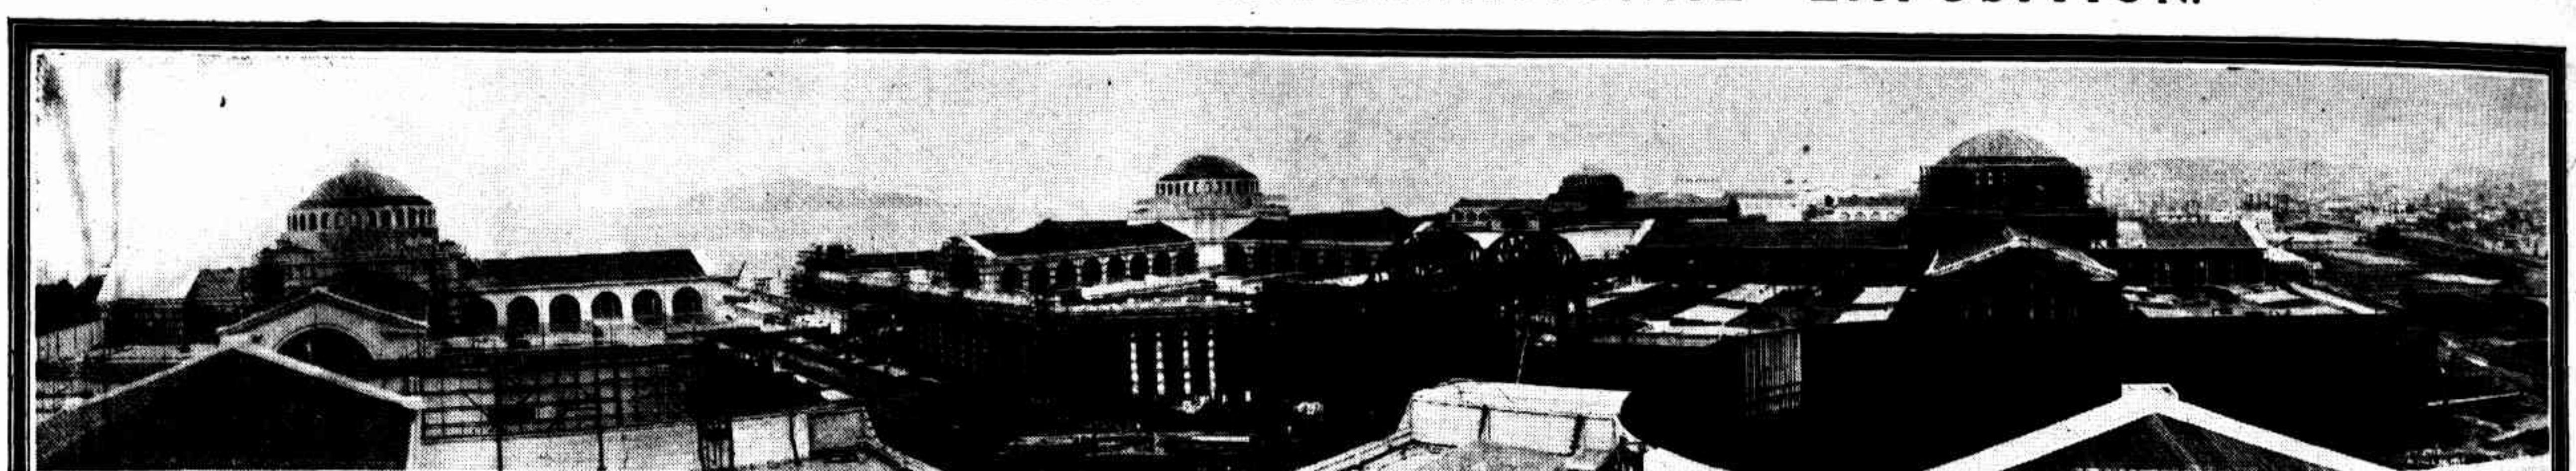

At the quarterly luncheon of the Lord Mayor (Alderman R. W. Richards), which took place yesterday, no speeches were made, with the exception of a brief one by Mr. J. L. Trefle (Minister for Agriculture), in proposing the health of the Lord Mayor, and the latter's response. Among those present at the luncheon were: Admiral Sir George Patey, the Speaker (Ald. R. D. Meagher), Messrs. D. R. Hall (Minister for Justice), J. L. Trefle (Minister for Agriculture), H. Hoyle (Minister for Railways), J. Estell (Minister for Labour), T. Hughes, M.L.C., C. G. Wade (Leader of the Opposition), Sir William Manning, Colonel Wallack, Colonel Luscombe, Captain Lewin, R.N., Flag-Captain Ratcliffe, Messrs. C. J. Roberts, S. E. Lees, C. J. Parr (Mayor of Auckland), W. J. Millner, Colonel Holmes, Dr. Magnus, Messrs. T. W. Heney, S. Hordern, D. Braham, T. H. Nesbitt, W. G. Layton, C. C. Lance, H. F. Norrie, H. D. Walsh, T. W. Keele, G. J. Cohen, R. J. Lukey, J. P. Doyle, R. Teece, J. Felix Booth, W. R. Kerr, F. Walton, J. B. Nash, John Garlick, G. B. Harkness, D. Storey, Dr. Gwynne Hughes, Dr. Ward, Lieutenant-Commanders Bessant and Stoker, and a number of aldermen of the City Council and the principal officials.

In responding to the toast of his health, the Lord Mayor spoke in high terms of the work of his predecessors, specially mentioning Mr. Thomas Hughes, M.L.C., Mr. S. E. Lees, and Sir William Manning. There were no parties in the City Council. There were several aldermen who were designated Labour members, and who were generally on the right side in matters concerning the public interests. Indeed, he usually found himself in agreement with their views, except when it came to playing football in the parks on Sundays. (Laughter.) That was a matter that he had had occasion to rule out of order a little while ago.

THE PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION.

By S. Crocker Company, Official Photographers.

In the background lies San Francisco harbour, and beyond are the hills on the opposite shore. From left to right the exhibit palaces nearest the harbour are:—The Palaces of Agriculture, Food Products, Transportation, and Mines and Metallurgy. Beyond the Palaces of Mines and Metallurgy is seen a portion of the Palace of Machinery. The large dome on the right is that of the Palace of Liberal Arts.

In the foreground to the left is seen a part of the great west court, the Court of the Four Seasons, and to the right the outlines of the Court of Palms are discerned. The Court of Palms is much larger than it appears, occupying about ten acres. Still further to the right are seen the South Gardens, lying between the Exposition fence and the central group of exhibit palaces.

This photograph shows the Exposition as it appeared in the middle of April. Construction is progressing so rapidly that almost daily advances are to be noted. Lofty triumphal arches, great towers, and towering gateways will add to the beauty and impressiveness of the completed architectural plan.

The transit service includes special trams from Circular Quay and the Railway-square loop; while the ordinary service to Zetland will also be available. The first race is timed to start at 1.30 p.m., and the results may be anticipated as under:—Flying Handicap: Miss Luna, Lord Hautboy, Warman. Hurdle Race: Kiaki, Paynos, Lord Lunn. Our Bathurst correspondent telegraphs that the racehorse, My Best, the owner (J. Gough), and the jockey (Hook) have been disqualified for two years for inconsistent running at the Bathurst Turf Club's winter meeting. It will be remembered that My Best was disqualified at the previous meeting of the club on account of its showing on the course, but the embargo was lifted only last week. Yesterday My Best opened the programme with a surprise by winning the Flying Handicap cleverly, though losing in all its races on Saturday.

The nominations received yesterday for the Gosford Racing Club's fixture of the 18th instant total 118, of which the Maiden Handicap was responsible for 21, Nursery Handicap 15, Jumpers' Flat Race 15, Novice Handicap 25, Gosford Handicap 19, and Narara Welter 22.

Very few horses were sent out of more than a canter at Randwick yesterday morning. The cinders was the only track in use, and the work done was only cantering. Most of the regular workers were out at different times of the morning, but little of note was done.

The entrants for the June meeting of the Kembla Grange Racing Club on the 16th instant total 82, of which the Maiden Handicap attracted 14, Juvenile Handicap 17, Newton Handicap 11, Grange Stakes 15, Jumpers' Flat Race 9, and Lake Welter 16.

Morongla Race Club (August 19) race meeting has been granted registration by the A.J.C.

GOOD PRICES REALISED.

DANUM BRINGS 960 GUINEAS.

Messrs. H. Chisholm and Co. held a dispersal sale yesterday afternoon of the racehorses, brood mares, and untried stock in the estate of the late Mr. I. Earnshaw. The sale was conducted at the Bruntwood stables, High-street, Randwick, Mr. K. T. Austin wielding the hammer, and around the ring were assembled prominent studmasters, racing men, and others engaged in turf pursuits. Patrons of the stable and personal friends of the deceased trainer were there in force, and they were among the best buyers and bidders. There were 21 lots catalogued, and all found new owners, the proceeds totalling 5440 gns. The highest price, 960 gns, was given for the imported horse Danum, by Santry (son of Gallinule) from Vain Chick, by Pride, the purchaser being Mr. H. R. Denison, the Eumeralla studmaster, to whom he was knocked down after a battle royal with Mr. A. Hooke, one of Earnshaw's earliest patrons, and for whom he trained Jeweller about 20 years ago. Mr. Denison also purchased a couple of brood mares. Messrs. Britten Brothers, the Woodhouse studmasters, near Tamworth, purchased liberally. They have always been associated with Earnshaw in their racing ventures, and when the imported mare Tiffany, by that great sire Star Ruby, was paraded they secured her for 600 gns, and also got the imported horse Warren Hill, by St. Frusquin (son of St. Simon) from Temple Hill (sister to Galtee More and Ard Patrick), by Kendal, for 420 gns. Messrs. Moses Bros., the Arrowfield studmasters, also secured several lots, as also did Mr. P. Reynolds, of Hobartville. The 13 mares sold brought 2350 gns, an average of nearly 181 gns. The details of the sale are subjoined:—

COURSING.

CHALLENGE STAKES MEETING.

The big event of the coursing season—the Grand Challenge Stakes—opened yesterday at the Woodstock enclosure, Rooty Hill. The special train which left Sydney at 9.50 a.m. was not so well patronised as usual, owing to the likelihood of rain. The weather at Rooty Hill was, however, delightfully fine and bracing, no rain having fallen there for several weeks. The arrangements were satisfactorily managed by Mr. A. Dudley Webb, secretary, and the committee of the N.C.A. During the day 28 courses were decided. In nearly every one the favourite was successful.

For the Challenge Stakes 47 nominations at four guineas each were received. The winner will receive £150, the runner-up £30, one dog £18 18s, three dogs £8 18s each, six dogs £4 14s each.

Don't Forget Me (6 to 1 on) beat Bullfinch, leading by three lengths, and doing the best work.

Rathqueen (even money) got quickest out of the slips, and led by two lengths from Fleeting Folly. The latter came on with determination, and interesting exchanges ensued, the balance of these being in Rathqueen's favour.

In Haste (5 to 4 against) led by two lengths after a fast hare, and beat Red Mick easily.

Burley Bob (5 to 1 on), who beat Larille, got the best of the start and a two lengths' lead. The winner was not on his game at the end of the course.

Jessop McDougall (3 to 1 on) beat Halley's Mine, leading by six lengths, and showing good pace. The loser put up a good contest on the hill.

King o' the Bush (8 to 1 on) led Cool Lad by three lengths, and though inclined to stand off, won easily. When this brace first went to the slips King o' th' Bush got held, and Cool Lad had a gallop for nothing.

Foggety Jones (7 to 1 on) beat The Bride. The loser was six lengths slower to the hare, and when on the hill she, as usual, stopped working.

Tooralie's Last (5 to 4 on) beat Loud Report. The latter was quickly away from the slips, but the winner came on rapidly, and won the lead by four lengths. Midway the hare favoured Tooralie's Last, who nevertheless scored handily.

Bonus (2 to 1 on) led Abercorn by five lengths, and won all the way.

London Swell beat Happy Australia (20 to 1 against), leading by 15 lengths. The winner showed great pace, but he was inclined to loaf when working near the escapes.

FOOTBALL ETHICS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—At the dinner to the visiting English team of footballers—that esteemed sportsman, Dr. Thacker, of New Zealand, dealt in emphatic terms with the question raised by you in connection with the rules of the game which enforce abstention from replacing injured players, and the consequent unequal contests on the field.

The doctor said that the rule was unfair to the public, to the opposing team, and to the team losing a player. To the public, because they pay for and desire to see a fair and equal-sided game—at least, in respect to numbers of players. To the opposing team, because it robbed them of credit in victory, and subjected them to humiliation in defeat. To the side playing shorthanded, because it robbed them of a fair chance of winning against a fairly equal side, all of which is so true and obvious, that, as the doctor said, there must be some occult reason for so mischievous a rule—and he hoped a disclosure of that reason would be forthcoming at an early date.

It will, of course, be interesting to know what that reason is, as meantime, for lack of the appearance of a good reason, it is very generally supposed that a reason reflecting most ungenerously upon players is behind the rule, viz., that it is a question of "gate" money, based upon a desire to limit the number sharing in the spoils; or, worse still, that players will feign injury to take advantage of their opponents through bringing fresh players on to the field, instead of tired or "off-colour" players.

But it is not that aspect of the question which your comment has made to "burn" so freely just now—that I wish to draw special attention to. It is that, although we do not carry our obstinate "conservatism," as it is called, quite so far as the English folk do—nevertheless, we do persist in the same course in respect to the "second-half" of the game. All the arguments we use so freely against the Englishmen, therefore, apply with equal force to us, and our simulated virtue and indignation is manifestly perilously akin to hypocrisy, and it behoves us to set our own house in order before saying anything further about the homelanders.

Nor is that the only direction in which our superiority rests upon doubtful foundations. There is the question of penalties to which you have so pointedly drawn attention—showing how unworthy of first-class football are the excessive awards necessitated by the peccadilloes of the players. In this you have rendered a real service to the game, which must have beneficial results—but even your influence will hardly avail to secure reform of the rules governing, or, rather, failing to govern the question; for it has become a sort of convention of "the game," to use the rules cunningly and meanly to disadvantage opponents—so much so that deliberately to incur a penalty is commonly done for that purpose, and is looked upon as quite a legitimate and praiseworthy feat. Moreover, the greatest exponents of this "point in the game" are so highly valued that great difficulty will be found in making the rules suffice to put an end to the performance.

Ever since I have been connected closely with the game I have advocated amendment of the rules to cover these serious defects in a game which so early appeals to the young, and so readily and intimately involves questions of honour, probity, and fair play, and leads to valour and heroism if properly safeguarded and controlled.

Nothing could be easier than to make rules to cover effectually the points mentioned—in the first by a system providing reserves in sufficient number to cover all contingencies and available for exchange at will, or under definite restrictions to both sides. And in the latter by making a penalty score in competition points against the offending side.

Thanking you for taking the stand you have taken in respect to the matter, I am, etc.,

CECIL TURNER,
June 9. President Balmain District Club.

A PRESSING PROBLEM.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Further schemes of resumption for partly practical and partly sentimental considerations are mooted; all the while the City Council fails to make the best use of the resources at hand for improvement. Take the case of the block of traffic always existent in Sussex-street. It is one of the vital arteries of trade in the metropolis, and some few years back a very commonsense proposition, supported by detailed plans, was placed before aldermen, but they did not adopt it. The idea was to continue Day-street further south, a level practical road. The city fathers went to sleep for a long while, and all at once have roused themselves. To what? To the consideration of an idea to run Kent-street through to the bottom of Goulburn-street. A moment's thought will show the futility of this. Apart from the great cost, there are heavy inclines on every hand between Sussex and Kent streets, which would prove a serious hindrance to the heavy team traffic which has to be provided for. Residents laugh at this latest fad, and it requires no skilled engineer to arrive at the conclusion that the Day-street scheme is one which will adequately meet the needs of the situation, prove vastly more economical to accomplish, and save the heavy waste of horse flesh and toil of drivers which would be necessitated by accepting this latest fantastic scheme, which would afford no real relief, but would create another stream of traffic confusion.

I am, etc., J. KENNEDY.

AMATEUR GOLF.

STATE CHAMPIONSHIP.

FIRST ROUND.

Competitors in the first round of the N.S.W. Amateur Championship were lucky in getting a good day, for the morning broke with rain and cloud. Before the time for the commencement of play, however, the rain had passed away, and almost ideal conditions prevailed. The two matches played were J. D. Howden v H. W. McLelland, and C. H. Reading v N. F. Christoe. The first-named player won in each case; Howden by 5 and 4, and Reading, after a more strenuous match, by 2 and 1. Starting out against McLelland, Howden holed a good 4 at the first, and scored the first win. At the second McLelland half stymied Howden, but the latter lofted over with a mashie, and halved the hole, but lost the third, where McLelland laid him another stymie and won in 3. Howden won the next two holes in 3 and 4, all the others in the turn being halved; Howden then being 2 up. The ninth was divided in threes, a particularly good hole. Howden was out in approximately 37, and McLelland, who was not playing well at first, in 40. Coming home, Howden became 4 up by winning the eleventh and twelfth in two fine threes, but after halving the next hole in a good four, McLelland reduced his opponent's lead by winning the fourteenth and fifteenth in 4 to 6 and 4 to 5 respectively. He also won the sixteenth in 3 to 4, and the next two holes being divided Howden finished the morning round 1 up. The cards were:—

Howden.—Out ... 4, 5, 5, 3, 4, 6, 3, 4, 3—37
In ... 5, 3, 3, 4, 6, 5, 4, 4, 5—39
76

McLelland—Out ... 6, 5, 3, 4, 6, 6, 3, 4, 3—40
In ... 5, 4, 4, 4, 4, 4, 5, 4, 3—37

In the afternoon McLelland played the first hole very badly, taking 5 to reach the green, and Howden won comfortably in 5 to 7, but McLelland won the second in 5 to 6, Howden being bunkered with his second. Howden became 2 up by winning the third in 4 to 5, and after halving the fourth in orthodox threes, Howden increased his lead by taking the fifth in 5 to 6, a poor hole. At the sixth Howden was in the cross bunker with his third, but made a wonderful recovery, placing his ball dead; McLelland, who was on the green in 3, taking 3 putts and losing the hole. The seventh was halved in threes, Howden won the eighth in 4 to 5, and McLelland took the ninth in 5 to a bad 6, Howden foozling his drive. Howden thus turned 4 up.

Coming home, the tenth was won by Howden in 4 to 5, and the eleventh in 3 to 5, but the twelfth was taken by McLelland in 4 to 5. Howden was then dormy 5, and by halving the next hole he won by 5 to 4. The scores were:—

Howden ..Out, 5, 6, 4, 3, 5, 5, 3, 4, 6,—41
In, 4, 3, 5, 5, 5 ... 22 for 5 holes.

McLelland ..Out, 7, 5, 5, 3, 6, 6, 3, 5, 5—45
In, 5, 5, 4, 5, 5 ... 24 for 5 holes.
69 for 14 holes.

Neither player was at his best, Howden being often in trouble, but he recovered well, and McLelland, being faulty in his approaches, failed to do himself justice.

The Reading-Christoe match was well contested, Christoe having a lead of one hole at the end of the morning round, but the play was not particularly brilliant. In the afternoon Reading won the first hole in 5, Christoe playing badly, and, the second being halved, Reading became 1 up by winning the third in 4 to 5, and he also won the fourth, where he stymied Christoe, in 3 to 4. The fifth also went to Reading in 4 to 5, and he was then 3 up; the next three holes being divided, in bogey figures, he turned 3 up. Coming home, the first three holes were halved, Christoe winning the thirteenth in 4 to 5, but he lost the fifteenth, where he was in trouble, and picked up. A good 2 at the sixteenth reduced Christoe's deficit to 2 holes, but he missed a short putt for a win at the seventeenth, and halving the hole, lost the match, 2 and 1. The cards were:—

Reading ..Out, 5, 5, 4, 3, 4, 5, 3, 4, 5—38
In, 5, 4, 4, 5, 5, 4, 3, 5, —35 for 8 holes.
73 for 17 holes.

Christoe ..Out, 6, 5, 5, 4, 5, 5, 3, 4, 5—42
In, 5, 4, 4, 4, 5, -, 2, 5, —29 for 7 holes.

Sturrock will now meet Howden in the semi-final, and Reading will play Howard. The games will be played on Thursday, and as both pairs are evenly matched, a good deal of interest will be taken in the result. Both games should be well contested.

NORTHERN SUBURBS LIGHTING.

A NEW PHASE.

At last night's meeting of the North Sydney Council the Mayor (Alderman W. Anderson) submitted a minute to the effect that "at the conference of municipalities of North Sydney, Willoughby, Mosman, and Lane Cove, and Kuring-gai Shire, on May 11 last, it was decided that the interests of the ratepayers of the northern suburbs would be best served by the northern suburban municipalities and shires entering into a contract with the City Council for the supply of electricity, and the matter was referred to a committee for consideration of the proposed form of contract. The resolution embodying the proposal was forwarded to the various councils interested. The Kuring-gai Shire Council and the Mosman Council communicated with the Mayor, but the Willoughby Council merely advised that the letter had been received, and Lane Cove Council did not reply at all. Under these circumstances it seemed to the Mayor that the proper course to pursue was for the council to proceed to a consideration of the matter, and to facilitate such consideration I have had prepared the heads of an agreement, considered with a view of entering into an arrangement with the City Council. A special meeting of the general purposes committee should be held at an early date, to consider the matter, and the council's solicitor be asked to attend."

The minute was adopted, and it was intimated that the meeting would take place on Friday next.

MINING.

QUIET MARKET.

BARRIER SHARES EASY.

The fact of cabled information to hand yesterday morning stating that the price of lead had fallen, and that there was an easier tone in all Broken Hill interests on the London Stock Exchange on Monday, caused Barrier interests to be quoted lower on the Sydney Stock Exchange.

The business transacted was only of small dimensions, and speculators showed little inclination to take up shares at the prevailing quotations. British Broken Hill, old, receded from 39/7½ to 38/9; Junction North from 11/9 to 11/6, and North Broken Hill from 55/2 to 54/9. Broken Hill Proprietary, Block 10, and Broken Hill South, also had attention at lower figures. The copper section was also dull, recorded business being confined to Mount Morgan, which were taken at 50/6, a reduction of 1/ on previous sales. Tin ventures claimed little support, and quotations on the whole were easier.

There are always speculators who look far afield for investments, and in this connection Siam tin ventures have had considerable inquiry of late. They are yet in the experimental stage, but many supporters of these far-away fields hold the opinion that they will turn out extremely profitable. However, that opinion can only be proved by time. Still, there are always buyers for this class of stock, and a fair number of shares have recently changed hands. A parcel of Kampong Kamunting was taken up at 14/6; while Ratrut had business at 16/, with terms.

Among local stocks, Wild Cherry was a fraction better, the paid shares bringing 4/6, and the contributing 2/6, 2/7. The gold division was again listless, inquiry being confined to Mount David, which recovered to 1/.

There was even less business in the afternoon than in the morning. The silver section did not show any improvement, and only a couple of transactions were recorded. British, old, again sold at 38/9, while Junction Norths eased a trifle, being taken at 11/6. Tin was responsible for the largest turnover. Wild Cherry strengthened to 4/7; while contributing shares again sold at 2/7. Tongkah Compound were easier at 58/, while Tongkah Harbour had buyers at 36/6. Copper and gold were again lifeless.

MINING NOTES.

The Broken Hill Junction North last week treated 2266 tons crude ore, 813 tons purchased ore, 942 tons of slimes, and 284 tons sandy tailings, which produced 588 tons lead concentrates, assaying 58.2 per cent. lead, 31.4oz silver, and 10.8 per cent. zinc; and 206 tons zinc concentrates, assaying 7.2 per cent. lead, 12.7oz silver, and 43 per cent. zinc.

During the week ended June 6 the Cope's Creek plant cleaned in the paddock and despatched 3 tons 6cwt of tin. The plant is now closed down, and the high and low pressure cylinders are being bored out and generally overhauled.

A report from the manager of the Carpathia Tin-Mining Company, states that last week the battery ran 86 hours treating 150 tons of ore, for a return of 10 tons of concentrates, assaying over 65 per cent.

The Broken Hill Proprietary Company's cable, dated London, June 8, states that the official quotation for silver was 2/2. The buying price of lead was £19; Company's shares, £1/16/3; spelter, £21/10/; and copper, £61/11/3.

Being desirous of conserving funds as much as possible, the directors of the Mount Bischoff Company have decided not to pay a dividend this month.

The manager of Stanthorpe Tin, Limited, advises that the clean up, No. 28 (No. 1 dredge), was completed on the 5th instant, and 46cwt of tin oxide was secured as a result of 170 hours' sluicing.

The transfer books of the Sulphide Corporation will be closed from June 15 to June 28 inclusive.

The Kalgurlie G.M. Company has declared a dividend of 4/ per share, payable on July 7 to shareholders registered on June 13.

Last week the Broken Hill Block 14 Company despatched 220 tons of carbonates, assaying 24 per cent. lead and 13.3oz silver per ton; also 800 tons sulphides.

The North Broken Hill, Ltd., weekly return is as follows:—Treated 6340 tons crude ore, assaying 16.5 per cent. lead, 7.6oz silver, and 14 per cent. zinc, producing 1140 tons concentrates, assaying 70 per cent. lead, 28oz silver, 6.8 per cent. zinc.

The Chillagoe, Ltd., reports that the railway receipts for May amounted to £4766, and for the corresponding month of the previous year £8409. For the week ended June 6, Einasleigh main shaft was sunk 5ft; total, 125ft. No. 6 level, main north drive advanced 10ft; total, 25ft; average, from nil to 20ft, 7.1 per cent. copper. East crosscut driven a further 12ft; total, 16ft. No. 4 level: Winze No. 2 sunk 3ft; total 6ft; average 12 per cent. copper. HILL END MINES.

SUSPENSION OF LABOUR CONDITIONS.

BATHURST, Tuesday.

At the Warden's Court at Hill End to-day an application was made for the suspension of labour conditions on the two leases known as Foster's leases by the Amalgamated Hill End, on the grounds that the approach to the mine was inaccessible and that the ore could not be handled or treated till an aerial tramway was built or until the road access now proposed was completed. It was stated that the expenditure in the purchase of the leases and on mining for the past 15 months was about £1700, and that the leases required only seven men.

The warden said he considered the application under the circumstances reasonable, and granted three months' suspension.

The Amalgamated Hill End, Ltd., again applied for suspension on their numerous leases, upon which application was refused by the warden at the last court. To-day the company proceeded under another section for exemption, but not suspension. The warden said there was an appreciable difference between the applications for suspension and exemption. To entitle the company to exemption it must be shown that for a period of six months the excess of labour employed equalled the labour on the attached leases for six months. Mr. J. E. Scantlebury, managing director, was present. Claude Scantlebury gave evidence, and produced the company's pay-sheet from November, 1911, to December, 1912. When asked whether the company could show the excess labour required for six months or longer, witness admitted that it could not meet the requirements of the section.

After consultation with the manging director, he said he had decided to withdraw the application for exemption.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The net profit of Briseis Company for the year ended December 31 last was £37,728, which is £24,366 less than the previous year, a smaller output and lower metal market being responsible for the change. The dividends, £30,000, were £15,000 less than the previous year, the last distribution being in August. Though the company has been unable to make a further payment to shareholders, the remainder of the trading profit of £7728 had to be augmented by £4347 to meet depreciation, income tax, dividend tax, etc.

The general manager reports that the rainfall and water supply were shorter than for some years, and more water was required for the deeper workings and river diversion. Much of the Ringarooma overburden removed was hard columnar basalt, requiring to be trucked. A quantity of 91,900 cubic yards was dealt with, at a cost of 17.39d per yard. A considerable increase is shown in this item, as 243,000 cubic yards were removed the previous year at a cost of 7.6d per yard. Of the tin drifts only 27,000 cubic yards were sluiced from the Briseis northern faces, the yield being 42½ tons, at the satisfactory rate of 3.53lb per yard. From Krushka flat 248,000 cubic yards were treated for 421½ tons of black tin, the average being 3.81 per yard, indicating the richness of the lower drifts being worked. Poor upper drifts were treated in the Ringarooma mine, 286,000 cubic yards yielding 38 tons 18cwt, or 0.301b per yard. Work under the agreement with the new Mutual Hill Company yielded 11 tons 13cwt, from 47,000 cubic yards. The net dry weight of black tin (514 tons 13cwt), yielded 373 tons 16cwt metallic. The amount of gold (5763oz) from 1,268,800 cubic yards, the cost per yard being 3.21d. The returns for the quarter ended March 31, were:—Briseis and Ringarooma, overburden and drift treated 99,000 cubic yards; black tin recovered 100 tons; Mutual Hill, black tin recovered, 1 ton 9cwts from 9000 cubic yards, turnover. Total recovery (tfn), 101 tons 9cwt of black tin, equivalent to approximately 74 tons metallic tin, of which 25 tons have already been received in England, and sold, realising net £3963, or an average of £158/10/ per ton. Wallace properties (including Argo leases), ground dredged 367,700 cubic yards; Gold recovered, 1614oz, value £6234. Estimated gross profits for quarter, £4900.

The general manager advises that he will be unable to maintain with safety an output of more than 20 tons per month (possibly less), while he is diverting the course of the Ringarooma River, an operation which may occupy some four months.

WESTERN AUSTRALIAN MINES.

KALGOORLIE, Tuesday.

One machine is now borng, and expect to have another during the coming fortnight. Treatment works—Battery: Some time was lost to the winding plant through a mishap to the rock-breaker. This has been remedied, but the bins were depleted in consequence. The other units of the plant ran almost continuously. About 15 tons of concentrates were produced, containing approximately 113oz. Cyanide works: Treated during the fortnight approximately 1178 tons of slimes, containing 487.5 ounces of gold; the recovery being 382 ounces of fine gold. Mine average, 12dwt 15gr gold per ton; battery average, 13dwt gold per ton; concentrates produced, 14.2 tons, averaging 10.8oz gold per ton.

NEW SOUTH WALES GOLD YIELD.

BIG DECREASE.

The return furnished by the Under-Secretary for Mines shows that the gold yield recorded in this State for the month of May was 7977 ounces crude, equal to 5964 ounces fine, valued at £25,450, as compared with 13,395 ounces crude, equal to 10,304 ounces fine, valued at £43,769 for the same month in 1913.

The yield for the first five months of this year amounts to 61,299 ounces crude, equal to 50,244 ounces fine, valued at £213,423, as compared with 72,640 ounces crude, equal to 57,850 ounces fine, valued at £245,727 for the same period in 1913, thus showing a decrease of 7606 ounces fine and £32,304 in value.

CARPATHIA T. M. COMPANY.

The mine manager reports for last week as follows:—No. 1 shaft: Intermediate level, north stope. Since last report this stope has been mullocked up, and am now relaying sollars. Bottom level, north stope: This stope has been producing ore of previous quality. Have the sothern portion mullocked up ready to bring along the second stope. South end: No. 1 rise, rising 6ft, making 28ft, on ore of low grade over the whole rise, and remaining on the four sides. No. 2 rise: Rising 12ft, making 20ft, in porphyry country, showing an occasional splash of iron ore and tourmaline. No. 2 shaft: Have been stoping ore since last report, values of which are not yet complete. No. 3 shaft: The stope of this shaft has been very consistent in high values all the week. No. 4 shaft: After driving 4ft, making 41ft, I stopped this drive for the present, and have commenced driving higher up the shaft (184ft), which is producing milling ore of high grade. K shaft: Sinking 7ft, making 100ft. At this point I intend driving west on kaolin showing 23in wide of low grade. No. 5 shaft: Have resumed operations here, which is looking encouraging. Ore in transit: Since last report I have despatched 72.76 tons of milling ore to Ardlethan, and have also placed 120 tons into reserves.

NEW BURRAGORANG S. M. COMPANY.

The mine manager reports for the fortnight ended June 6 as follows:—No. 4 level east: Extended 13ft, total 140ft; 4in of good ore now showing in the face. No. 5 level east: Carried rise up 19ft, with no change to report. No. 6 level east: Driven 13ft, total 133ft; face shows a decided improvement. No. 6 west rise: 8in of good ore in the face. No. 3 shaft: Laying road in underlay shaft and breaking ore as usual. Bulk samples: Forwarded average bulk samples of crude ore to the company's office for the inspection of shareholders.

The secretary reports receipt of account sales of a consignment of 27 tons of ore, showing net proceeds £632/0/5. A further parcel dispatched from the mine last week gave the following assay:—Gold, 4dwt 10gr per ton; silver, 277oz 4dwt per ton; lead, 3.45 per cent.

MOUNT DAVID.

The mine manager's report for week ended the 6th inst states:—Mining operations were resumed on Tuesday. As we intend bagging the quartz as it is broken in the face of A.S. east drive, we are not doing anything here until we receive the bags. We expect them to be delivered to-morrow. In the meantime we have had the labour from the face of the drive crosscutting into the hanging wall of the drive about 15ft from the face. The crosscut has been driven a distance of 15ft through lode country, carrying a quantity of small quartz veins, slate, and porphyry. A north-west drive: Extended for week 8ft, making the total distance from crosscut 17ft. There is about 4ft of quartz in the face carrying gold; some samples of stone show very fair value, but at the present time we have not proved the width of this stone.

HAWKINS HILL REWARD G.M. COMPANY.

The mine manager reports for the month of May:—Early in the month continued the main unwatering level 20ft. Being now in close proximity to the Robert Emmett crosscourse, the intersection of which would cause a heavy inflow of water, have discontinued driving for a time until the operations under the level are completed; this work would be interfered with by a heavy stream being allowed to come along the level at present. Have continued the work on No. 1 winze. During the month crushed 47 tons from it, for a return of 71oz. The main reef here is about 9in, but recently a make of leaders has come in about 2ft wide, carrying payable gold. Have continued crosscut east from Exhibition shaft, 30ft, and cut the calcite reef. We have now 20ft to drive to reach the stock works which occur on Frenchman's hanging wall, and have in places further south made bodies of crushing material up to 40ft in width.

ROWLEY'S REEF HAWKINS HILL G.M. COMPANY.

The mine manager reports for the month of May:—During the month have continued the main unwatering level on mica reef northwards at Patriarch shaft. Completed carrying the level along through the stoped ground, and have driven 16ft into the solid. Reef on face 6in wide, and carrying gold. We are now in virgin country, the reef northwards never having been touched at this depth by previous mining operations.

BOY SHOT.

FEUD AMONG YOUTHS.

WOLLONGONG, Tuesday.

At the police court to-day, Ernest Strong, 16, was charged with shooting at Frederick Walker, 15, and occasioning him grievous bodily harm. All the witnesses in the case were under 15 years of age.

It appears that accused was in company with a girl, who accused a boy named Hickey of calling her "Ginger." Hickey denied this, and said he could get his "mob" to prove it was a lie. Accused reproved Hickey for having called the girl "Ginger," and Hickey then went to where a number of his companions were standing further up the street, and urged them to assault accused, who offered to fight them one by one, but cautioned them that if they attacked him in a body he would fire on them. He then put the revolver in his coat pocket, but kept his finger on the trigger. One of the boys, named Walker, sprang on the accused from the back, and in the struggle which ensued, whilst accused was trying to withdraw his finger from the trigger, the revolver went off in his pocket, the bullet lodging in Walker's breast.

Walker was taken to the hospital, where it was found that the bullet had lodged near the spinal column. The injured boy made a rapid recovery.

The accused said he had purchased the revolver for self-protection, because he had been attacked on his way home by some boys on a previous Saturday, and they had threatened to wait for him.

Accused was discharged, the magistrate remarking he was convinced the shooting was accidental.

CASUALTIES.

A FATAL FALL.

Norman Joseph Williamson, 2 years and 8 months, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Williamson, of 52 Forbes-street, Woolloomooloo, died in the Sydney Hospital yesterday as the result of a fall. On the 5th inst. the child was sitting on a chair, the back of which was partly broken. The child fell to the floor on to its head. Mrs. Williamson picked the child up, and he appeared to get all right again. In the night he became ill, and on the 6th inst. he was admitted to Sydney Hospital.

FELL FROM A TRAM.

The Acting City Coroner, Mr. J. W. Fletcher, yesterdy held an inquest into the death of Henry Webber Bailey, 38, who fell from a tram on the Addison-road line after the tram had left Wardell-road, on May 29. The tram was going round a curve, and the deceased lurched and fell out, sustaining concussion of the brain. A verdict of accidental death was returned.

YOUNG WOMAN TAKES POISON.

An inquest was held by the Acting City Coroner, Mr. J. W. Fletcher, yesterday into the death of Lillian Blanche Flew, 23 years of age. The deceased took poison after a difference with the young man she was engaged to be married to. A verdict of suicide was returned.

FELL DOWN STAIRS.

Mary Marshall, 60 years of age, was found dead at the foot of the stairs at the residence of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Jackson, of 24 Albert-street, Erskineville, on the night of May 30. The Acting City Coroner yesterday found that death was due to a fracture of the skull, caused by accidentally falling down stairs.

DIED IN STREET.

WELLINGTON, Tuesday.

On Tuesday P. Murphy, who had been working at Spicer's Creek, was found dead in Maughan-street.

LIGHT HORSE.

TAMWORTH, Tuesday.

At the 12th annual tournament under the auspices of the Tamworth B Squadron, 6th Light Horse, there was an exceptionally good attendance of light horsemen from surrounding districts, and the horsemanship was the best ever witnessed in Tamworth. Each event brought forth good entries, and much rivalry was displayed between the different units. This was most noticeable in the tent-pegging contest for a valuable cup, which is annually competed for.

We have received from "J.F.C.," a cheque for 10s 6d towards the fund established by Mr. C. Arthur Pearson, hon. treasurer of the National Institute for the Blind, London, for the purpose of completing and equipping new premises for the production of books in Braille.

MINERS AND STATE MINISTERS.

SEVERE CRITICISM.

NEWCASTLE, Tuesday.

Mr. D. Watson, on behalf of the executive officers of the Colliery Employees' Federation, to-day said, "There is a revulsion of feeling being expressed throughout the entire field at the remarks made by Mr. Cann, Minister for Mines, and Mr. Estell, Minister for Labour and Industry, to the deputation that waited upon them with respect to certain amendments to be included in the Coal Mines Bill and the Industrial Disputes Act.

"The statement of Mr. Cann that the establishment of a State mine under the one-shift system would be an unprofitable undertaking, is resented by the men, inasmuch as all the collieries, with the exception of seven or eight, are worked on the one shift. Only one shift has been worked in the Borehole seam for the last 40 years. The platform of the Labour party clearly states that all night work shall be abolished in coal mines. Mr. Cann knows that the establishment of a State mine is part of the Labour policy, and yet he states that he would refuse to open up a State mine if confined to the working of one shift, the whole thing is so totally inconsistent, and we are more than amazed that Mr. Cann should give utterance to such statements.

"With regard to the remarks made by Mr. Estell, the executive are simply astounded, knowing that Mr. Estell has had personal experience in the work of the federation as its president, and that he had had to go out to lodges and advise a course of action that was totally opposed to his own personal views. The stand that we take in respect to our position as leaders of the federation is simply one in which we act as attorneys to the members of our organisation. Any statement made by us is made on behalf of our clients, for which they ought to accept the full responsibility. It was in that sense that we sought the elimination of clause 48 of the Industrial Disputes Act in relation to penalties or imprisonment.

"To be told bluntly that he might as well give power to a burglar to steal, was an answer that we did not expect from Mr. Estell. Upon reflection we think that he must now feel that his statement on that matter is most unworthy of his past record, and should not be fastened to men engaged in the industrial movement. To classify a union in the same category as a burglar is most reprehensible. If a leader has to have no liberty to express the opinions of his members, then they had better be without leaders altogether, as their position is a most invidious one, and certainly does not develop the best qualities of men called upon to take a leading part in their affairs to bring about peaceful relations."

AUSTRAL STRING QUARTET.

The programme of last night's concert by the Austral String Quartet was planned with judgment, inasmuch as it became lighter as it went on, and achieved this without diverging far from the classical atmosphere. There was also the keen interest which properly attaches to an ambitious effort by a young composer. Mr. Rex de Cairos Rego fortunately revealed the talent needed to write a Fantasie-Sonata for 'cello and piano that firmly held the attention. It was altogether a clever piece of work, and won him several recalls of enthusiasm.

Brahms' "Quartet for Piano and Strings" (Op. 26 in A) was rendered by Messrs. Cyril Monk, S. Vost Janssen, and Carl Gotsch, with Mr. Frank Hutchens as pianist. This work, which occupied the whole of the first part of the programme, lasting about 45 minutes, considerably strains the attention at a first hearing, and might possibly prove heavy even on closer intimacy. Brahms, as all are aware, can be exceedingly melodious and inspired, but in this quartet his movements seem long drawn out. In the opening allegro the piano states the curious brief theme which is afterwards presented by the strings—a strange, uncouth piece of melody thrown out in jerks! Sometimes this shortest of themes is harshly allotted to the strings, so that it suggests the sawing of wood, sometimes the players are allowed to produce an ensemble of sweetness with it—but in any case the subject-phrase is interminably made use of. There is an adagio in which the piano enunciates the attractive opening theme against the muted strings, which, so treated, do not readily blend with the pianoforte tones. This beautiful movement affords, however, many poignant moments. The artists, not always reaching up to the academic heights of technical achievement demanded by the composer, always responded to him in his more sympathetic moods. In this way they all united in a fine interpretation of the effect due to arpeggi for the piano exciting ideas of mystery and expectation above deep murmurs from the strings; and they joined also in the passionate utterances of an energetic termination that ended in a sigh. The scherzo had not the vivacious charm which other composers have taught us to expect; but the splendidly brilliant close of the "finale" moved the audience, and showed the artists effectively united in the rhythmic animation of Brahms at his brightest.

Later, the String Quartet (in which the pianist was replaced by Mr. L. D'Hage as second violin) rendered, with the utmost sympathy, the Andante from Schubert's "D Minor Quartet," an enchanting and familiar movement founded on the song, "Death and the Maiden." This, too, led to hearty recalls. At the end of the evening a delightful interpretation, sympathetic and well-balanced, of Dvorak's "String Quartet in F" (Op. 96) sent all away happy-hearted. The negro melodies in every movement peeped out amidst harmonies and tone-colouring full of charm, rhythmic piquancy, and musical refinement of idea, forming as a whole a genuine masterpiece on a small scale.

The new "Fantasie Sonata" was admirably played by Mr. Carl Gotsch and Mr. Frank Hutchens. The principal 'cello theme, broad and stately, with the support of dignified chords for the piano, was worked out with animation and well-sustained interest, whilst the martial change of mood with which the piano part was passingly invested contrasted well with much that was of a gracious character. Mr. Rex de Cairos Rego was recalled several times with the executants amidst enthusiasm. Miss Phyllis Seed made her first appearance with this society, singing "The Linden Tree" and "Gretchen at the Spinning Wheel" (Schumann), with Mallinson's clever "Four by the Clock" as encore. Though this singer's agreeable voice does not naturally posses much color, she renders her music with sympathy and intelligence, and thus wins the approbation of her listeners. Miss Seed was especially well accompanied by Mr. Walter Thorman.

"JULIUS CAESAR."

INTERESTING SHAKESPEARE EVENING.

The membership of the Shakespeare Society at the present time is larger than at any previous time in its history, extending over the past 14 years. Many new members have joined this year. The Shakespeare memorial movement and the visit of Miss Ellen Terry have probably helped to bring this about; and by 1916, when the tercentenary of the death of Shakespeare will be commemorated throughout the English-speaking world, the New South Wales Society promises to be very strong in numbers.

Probably the introduction of new methods in regard to the society's meetings, adding to their attractiveness, has also had something to do with the increasing attendances. Last night, when the play of "Julius Caesar" was discussed, the Royal Society's room was well filled. Instead of the evening being devoted to the reading of one long paper, three short ones were read, and an interesting discussion followed. Miss Le Plastrier read an introductory paper, dealing briefly with the play as a whole; Miss Daphne Armstrong followed with one on "Brutus and Cassius," and Mr. Everard Digby read one on "Antony." They were all of exceptional merit, and in the case of Mr. Digby the interest was heightened by the originality of treatment—what he termed "a scientific dissection of the character, with the microscope full upon him."

The recitation of Antony's famous speech over the body of Caesar, given by Mr. Norman Zions, also added considerably to the enjoyment of the evening.

It was announced that Miss Ellen Terry had written, expressing pleasure at her election as an honorary member of the society, and also stating that she hoped, on returning to Sydney from New Zealand at the end of July, to play the part of Portia in the trial scene from the "Merchant of Venice" in one of the theatres, prominent members of the Actors' Association having intimated their willingness to assist by taking the other characters.

At next month's meeting of the society Mr. George S. Titheradge is to give an address, his subject being "An Actor's Reminiscences."

AMUSEMENTS.

THE THEATRES.

The final matinee of "The Forty Thieves" will take place to-day (1.45) at Her Majesty's Theatre, where a large audience took advantage last evening of Souvenir Night to acquire elaborate reproductions of scenes and portraits of favourite artists. This privilege will be extended to patrons to-night and to-morrow night, Friday will be the farewell.

"Gipsy Love," one of Lehar's latest Viennese operas, will be produced on Saturday (7.45 punctually). J. C. Williamson, Ltd., has reorganised the Royal Comic Opera Company for this interesting season, Mr. Andrew McCunn and Mr. Wybert Stamford still directing the music and the stage. Misses Elvie Spain, and Gertrude Glyn, Messrs. Derek Hudson and Field Fisher, are the new importations. The plan is at Paling's.

"The Argyle Case" now enters upon its last nine nights at the Criterion Theatre, where the dictograph is worked in sight of the audience, and ultimately reproduces the frank and jovial laughter of the most open-hearted conspirator who ever smiled as villain. The search for the murderer keeps the house on tenter-hooks all the evening.

"Ready Money," a new play of a diverting character by James Mortimer, will be produced for the first time in Australia at the Criterion Theatre on Saturday, June 20. Mr. Charles Milward, Mr. Harrigan, Mr. Styan, Miss Boswell, and other artists of the present combination will appear. First night applications as usual until Saturday next.

Harry Lauder is drawing great audiences at the Theatre Royal, and the J. and N. Tait direction accordingly notifies matinees for to-day and Saturday. The Scottish comedian, in addition to other favourite numbers, is now singing "When I Get Back to Bonnie Scotland" and "We Parted on the Shore," the latter causing uproarious laughter.

"The School for Scandal," brilliantly revived after the unusual interval of 14 years by the Hugh Buckler management, is delighting playgoers with its barbed wit, its mischievous insinuation. Miss Violet Paget and Mr. G. Kay Souper form the ill-matched pair of this entertaining comedy of intrigue. There will be a matinee to-morrow.

"Lured to London" now enters upon its last three nights at the Palace Theatre, where Messrs. Dix and Baker will close their dramatic season on Friday with a farewell performance of this melodrama, in which Miss Ethel Buckley appears as Natty, the boy-hero. Mr. C. R. Stanford and other artists are in the cast.

"The Silence of Dean Maitland" will be produced as a picture play at the Palace Theatre on Saturday night under the Dix-Baker direction. The Fraser Film Company has organised an elaborate series of moving pictures, which will cover all the thrilling situations of Maxwell Gray's story.

"The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning," instead of following the direction "keep to the right and go straight on," will pursue her devious course amidst the excitement and applause of Adelphi audiences until Friday evening next.

The George Willoughby management will produce "The Queen of the Redskins" next Saturday evening, when Mr. George Cross, Miss Vera Remee, and other members of the combination will appear in the picturesque scenes of this romantic American-Indian drama. The plan is at Nicholson's.

"Niobe, All Smiles" will be performed by the Laythes Dramatic Club at the Repertory Theatre next Saturday at 8 p.m. The proceeds will be in aid of the purchase fund of the Sydney Kindergarten Training College. The comedy will be under the direction of Mr. Harry Thomas. The plan is at Paling's.

NEW PRODUCER.

Mr. Harry B. Burcher, for nine years principal stage manager of the Gaiety Theatre, London, has arrived in Sydney under contract to the J. C. Williamson management. He was engaged in London by Mr. Hugh J. Ward, having just returned from New York, where he staged "The Girl on the Film." At the time he was induced to come to Australia he had a contract in his pocket to produce "Potash and Perlmutter" in London. However, he got a release from the latter undertaking. Under instructions from Mr. Ward, Mr. Burcher visited New York, and saw all the plays that the Williamson management have secured for Australia. Of these "High Jinks," running at the Casino, particularly appealed to him. "It is chock full of good numbers," he says, "and has movement and comedy from the curtain rise to curtain fall." "High Jinks" had then been running seven months. Of course he saw "Potash and Perlmutter." He had seen it when previously in New York. "But it is one of those productions you can see again and again. Some of the lines have comedy and pathos so intermingled that you smile and gulp at the same time." "The Yellow Ticket" was also to him an arresting play. "It is powerful to a degree," he says, "owing to the way in which it keeps close to life." Mr. Burcher was the original Gibson man in "The Pelle of Mayfair" in New York. In addition to stage managing the Gaiety, he understudied George Grossmith, jun., at the theatre, and Joseph Coyne at Daly's. He has on many occasions appeared for one or other of the two popular comedians.

THE DOLORES' CONCERTS.

Mlle. Antonia Dolores will continue her brief season of song-recitals at the Town Hall to-morrow, Saturday and Tuesday evenings next. The famous French soprano's programme to-morrow night will include the beautiful aria "Angels Ever Bright and Fair" from Handel's "Theodora;" two poetic and melodious songs by Schumann; the brilliant operatic air "Com' e Bello" (Donizetti); and "Wind in the Trees" and "A Song of Sunshine," by Goring Thomas. The programme in other directions also is full of tuneful interest, Mr. Boyd Wells assisting as solo pianist. The plans are at Paling's.

MISS DAGMAR THOMSON'S RECITAL.

There was a large audience at the Repertory Theatre last night, when Miss Dagmar Thomson, from the studio of Mr. W. J. Coad, gave a violin recital, in which she was assisted by Mr. Philip Wilson (baritone) and Mr. J. Charlton Pay (accompanist). Miss Thomson proved herself a finished violinist, her playing being of a very high order. Among her best numbers were Handel's Sonata in D and Paganini's Concerto in D Major. Both are difficult for a young player, but Miss Thomson acquitted herself well, and received a warm outburst of applause. Other numbers also well played were "Playera" (Sarasate), "Perpetuum" (Ries), "Chanson et Pavane" (Martin), "Andantino" (Couperin), and "Tempo di Menuetto" (Pugnani), the last three being arranged by Kreisler. Miss Thomson also received a large number of floral tributes. Mr. Wilson's songs included "Stilles Leid" (Von Fielitz), "Am Strande," Op. 9, "The White Dawn is Stealing" (Wakefield Cadman), and "Oh, that We Two were Maying" (Ethelbert Nevin).

"THE SILENCE OF DEAN MAITLAND."

The Criterion Theatre was crowded yesterday afternoon, when the Fraser Film Release and Photographic Company, Ltd., gave a private view of the picture of the drama "The Silence of Dean Maitland," adapted and produced by Mr. Raymond Longford. It is 18 years since the last dramatic representation took place in Sydney at the Theatre Royal, but the keen interest taken in the picture demonstrated that the drama still lived in the memory of many people. The picture is well taken, and the various roles are cleverly pourtrayed. Two other pictures were shown—"An Ostrich Farm at Coonamble" and "A Keystone Comedy." The orchestra, under the conductorship of Herr Slapoffski, rendered a number of musical items during the evening. "The Silence of Dean Maitland" will be shown at the Palace Theatre on Saturday for a six-night season.

THE BORWICK RECITALS.

Mr. Leonard Borwick's recital at the Concordia Hall last night was conspicuous for its absence of any Schumann numbers, for the rendering of which the pianist is justly famed. However, there was no need for regret on the part of any students present. The principal attraction of the evening was Beethoven's Sonata in C major, Op. 53, better known as the Waldstein, named on account of its dedication to the Count Waldstein, or Wallenstein, an illustrious nobleman, who befriended the composer at Bonn, and to whose influence Beethoven's appointment as Court pianist is generally attributed. The composition, which belongs to the composer's second period, when his creative power was at its zenith, is less generally known to musicians as the "Aurora Sonata," on account of its suggestive likeness to the marvellous fireworks of the heavens—the Northern Lights. Count Waldstein was a firm believer in the mystic auguries and omens of the skies, which he always consulted in times of doubt. He had particular faith in Aurora Borealis, and it was on this account that Beethoven made the dedication. The first movement, which was finely played by Mr. Borwick, is brilliant with its ever-changing keys and variety of light and shade, the embellishments calling up visions of the magnificently-flashing colours of the Aurora. The second movement—the adagio molto—showed Mr. Borwick at his best, all his fine tonal qualities being brought out to perfection in the almost funereally solemn and impressive passages symbolising the hushed magnificence of a glorious winter night. The perfect last movement, a rondo, was also finely rendered, the brilliant crisp ornamentation rising and falling in sublime grandeur. As promised on arrival here, Mr. Borwick introduced Debussy, giving his own arrangement for pianoforte solo, of the prelude for orchestra—"L'apres-midi d'un faune." The item proved exceptionally popular, and revealed a fascinating and finished use of the sustaining pedal. The Brahms' group drew forth immense applause, resulting in several recalls; but the pianist declined an encore. The group included the fanciful and startling intermezzo (Op. 10, No. 3) with its weird staccato passages in the bass; the lullaby "Intermezzo in E Flat" (Op. 117, No. 1); and the second rhapsody (in E Minor, Op. 79), in which the sonorous bass passages and the rugged grandeur of the whole composition were brought out with a fine effect. The evening closed with a Chopin group.

CONCERTS AND RECITALS.

A concert will be given at the Town Hall on Monday evening next, in aid of the Royal Hospital for Women and the Renwick Hospital for Infants, when the Governor and Lady Edeline Strickland, and other patrons will be present. Mr. Joseph Bradley will conduct an orchestra of 50 players in the preludes to the third acts of "Lohengrin" and "Die Meistersinger," and in "The Entrance of the Gods" ("Rheingold"). Miss Dorothea Spinney will recite an Irish play, and Miss Emilie Lambert, Mrs. George Earp, and Messrs. Henri Staell, Arthur Appleby, Philip Wilson, and W. H. Fletcher will also assist. The plan is now available at Paling's.

The Royal Sydney Liedertafel's next concert at the Town Hall is fixed for next Wednesday evening, when Miss Rosa Langenegger, the new Swiss soprano, will sing "Softly Sighs" and the aria from "La Reine de Saba," and Mr. J. Wellby, the new basso, "She Alone Charmeth My Sadness." Mr. Frank Hutchens will play pieces by Chopin and Glasounow. Mr. W. Arundel Orchard will conduct new choral numbers, including Gernsheim's "Salamis," Sir Edward Elgar's "Reveille," and Dudley Buck's setting of Tennyson's "Bugle Song." The plans open to-day at Paling's.

A living chess tournament, with the rival "pieces" in picturesquely antique costumes, and a series of fine tableaux vivants, illustrating Tennyson's "Dream of Fair Women," which will be recited by Mr. Lawrence Campbell, will form features in an entertainment organised by Mme. Boult for Friday, June 19, at the Town Hall. Captain Bentley, A.R.A.M., will conduct the State Military Band, and other artists assisting will be Messrs. Du Boulay, Sid. Macdonald, and Charles Philip, and Mrs. Du Boulay. This show is complimentary to Mr. W. S. Viner, Australian chess champion, now leaving for England.

Mischa Elman, one of the greatest violinists of the day, will open his season of four concerts at the Town Hall on Monday, June 22, followed by appearances during the same week on Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday. Not only will there be an entire change of programme each evening, but the great violinist will play a different concerto with orchestra under Mr. Joseph Bradley's baton on each occasion. Mlle. Eva Gauthier, the brilliant Franco-Canadian mezzo-soprano, will sing. The plans for all four concerts will open at Paling's on Monday.

Harold Bauer, another star of the musical world in Europe and America, will form J. and N. Tait's central musical attraction for 1914. This great artist will give his first piano recital at the Town Hall on Saturday, June 27. Further appearances are announced for Monday, June 29, and the Wednesday and Thursday of the same week. Bauer not only possesses an established position in England as a great player, but is even more admired on the Continent, where he draws crowds, and in Paris, which is his home. The plans open at Nicholson's on Monday, June 22.

Miss Lilian Frost will give the midday organ recital in the Pitt-street Congregational Church to-day, at 1.15. The programme will include the "Toccata in F" (Widor), "Nocturne in E Flat" (Chopin), intermezzo from "Cavalleria Rusticana," and the overture to "William Tell." The vocal quartette, "Thuringian Volkslied" will be sung by Messrs. Mansfield, Young, Heaton, and Janson.

At St. James's Hall a recital will be given next Saturday evening (7.45) by the advanced pupils of Mr. J. W. E. Pople (piano) and Mr. Edward J. L. Pople, when leading artists will assist in an attractive programme. The plan is as advertised.

Miss Elizabeth Smith and Miss Gladys Toyer (from the studio of Miss Ada Gee) will join in a song-recital at St. James's Hall on Saturday, June 20. Miss Vera Cree, Messrs. Frank Hutchens, Carl Gotsch, and Malcolm M'Eachern will assist. The plan will open at Paling's to-morrow.

At the Town Hall, Sunday afternoon next, Mr. Gehde will direct his usual concert. Miss Elsie Peerless will sing the Mignon "Polacca," and Mr. Fred Smith will sing Valentine's song from "Faust." Other artists will assist.

THE VINER ENTERTAINMENT.

The complimentary entertainment to be tendered Mr. W. S. Viner, the Australian chess champion, on the eve of his departure for England to represent Australia at the British Chess Tourney, promises to be something unique. The entertainment is to take place in the Town Hall on Friday night, the 19th inst., and will be under the auspices of the New South Wales Chess Association and the citizens' committee, of which the Lord Mayor is president. Apart from concert items of an interesting kind, two great spectacles will be produced. A game of living chess is to be played, calling for a display of dramatic talent. Tragedy and comedy will both be seen, and Mr. Viner himself will take part. Then there will be a representation of Tennyson's famous "Dream of Fair Women." Mr. Lawrence Campbell will recite the lines, and some of Sydney's beautiful women will pass in review. It is understood that there is also to be another special feature, which for certain reasons cannot be announced at the present juncture. The Premier (Mr. W. A. Holman), who has shown a special interest in the movement, is to be asked to make a presentation to Mr. Viner during the evening. The plan will open at Paling's on Saturday.

OTHER ENTERTAINMENTS.

Large audiences continue to attend West's ever-popular Olympic Theatre in Oxford-street, Paddington. The principal feature of the moment is the striking film, "A Soldier and a Man," whose title suggests affinities with a recent feature at this theatre entitled "A Clergyman and a Man." Evidently the cleric alluded to was a member of the Church Militant.

The first production by Australasian Films, Ltd, "The Shepherd of the Southern Cross" will be screened at Spencer's Lyceum next Saturday. It portrays a story of the Never-Never Land, and features in its cast the young Australian actresses, Miss Vera Pearce and Miss Shirley Huxley.

Australian Gazette, "Duty," "Sonny Jim in Search of a Mother," "Transcontinental Railway (Australia)," "Root of Evil," views illustrating a trip to Java, and "Profit and Loss" will be shown on Thursday at the Crystal Palace.

The new Lyric programme for Thursday next will include "The Certainty of Man," "In High Life," "Studies in Bird Life," "A Hateful Bondage," and "Cinessine's Motto."

Among Thursday's new features at the Colonial Theatre will be "Redwing's Protector," "Love's Young Dream," "Fishing with a Seine Net," "The Navajo Blanket," and "Strenuous Ride."

"When the Blood Calls," "Some Steamer Scooping," "Rardanger Fjorden, Norway," "Two Generations," and "Dippy's Dream" will be presented by the new programme at the Empress Theatre on Thursday.

Society, with a large S, has evidently hailed the Imperial Salon de Luxe as the long-desired object of its being, and the popular salon de danse is perpetually thronged with a rustling swarm, bright eyed and daintily clad. The institution of tango teas and dance suppers has had, as it deserved, a succes fou.

Through the wet weather, thousands of patrons of the Royal Roller Rink at Moore Park have found enjoyment in skating, and the big floor has presented an animated scene. Many learners have also been induced to take up the sport, and the two separate enclosures for lady and gentlemen beginners have become very popular. This rink is more than double the size of any other in Australia.

The ring and hiss of skates on the ice is still the music that draws enthusiasts to the Glaciarium, where at each of the three daily sessions there is a big attendance of skaters. Professor Witte gave a graceful exhibition of fancy skating last night, and is billed for another on Thursday afternoon. Professor and Miss Mull will be seen on the ice this afternoon and on Saturday night. There will be hockey on Friday night.

At the Coronation Theatre, Bondi Junction, Sydney, the Dandies continue to do excellent business. An excellent performance is given, the work and singing being very finished. Among the artists appearing are Dorothy Gardner (comedienne), Kate Checkett, and May Geary. The male members of the company, seven in all possess good voices, and the concerted numbers are a special attraction.

Monday being the King's Birthday, the Centennial Skating Palace, Bondi Junction, was open all day. A special beginners' rink, quite apart from the main floor, is a special feature of this place of amusement. A staff of expert instructors is always in attendance. The next big attraction at this rink will be the Harlequinade Carnival on June 22.

At the Alhambra Theatre in George-street, Haymarket, the presentation of fight pictures, showing the contest between Bombardier Wells and Bandsman Blake for the English heavy-weight championship, has aroused widespread interest.

HAROLD BAUER'S RECITALS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Harold Bauer, the famous pianist, gave his first recital in the Auditorium to-night. There was a large audience, and all of his numbers were enthusiastically received.

MERCHANT SERVICE GUILD.

PROHIBITION MATTER.

HIGH COURT JUDGMENT.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

In the High Court to-day judgment was given in the case of the King versus the Court of Conciliation and Arbitration and the Merchant Service Guild of Australasia, ex parte Wm. Holyman and Sons, Limited and other Tasmanian respondents.

In this suit, which was heard in Sydney, the Merchant Service Guild of Australasia and the President of the Court were called upon to show cause why a writ of prohibition should not issue prohibiting the Arbitration Court and the Guild from proceeding further upon a judgment and award of the Court on October 23, 1913, upon the grounds that at the time of filing the plaints mentioned in the award and at the date of the award no industrial dispute existed between the claimant association or any of its members; (2) that no industrial dispute extending beyond the limits of a State and extending to the State of Tasmania existed between the guild or any of its members and applicants herein; (3) that the award made by the Court was beyond the jurisdiction of the Court.

Mr. Justice Isaacs, in delivering the judgment of the Court, said that the three applicants, Henry J. Condon, James Sheppard and Co., and the North Huon Steamship Co., Ltd., having ceased to have any employees members of the claimant organisation before the compulsory conference there was no jurisdiction to make an award as against those employers. On the whole, not only had the applicants failed in his Honor's opinion to establish clearly absence of a dispute as far as Tasmania was concerned, but the facts satisfactorily led him to the contrary conclusion. In regard to the port trade, his Honor shared the opinion of the rest of the Court that this should, both as to the law and the facts involved, be reserved for further consideration. His Honor thought that the rule for prohibition should except as to certain respondents specified be discharged. As to them, it should be made absolute.

Mr. Justice Duffy, Mr. Justice Powers, and Mr. Justice Rich concurred on the main issues with Mr. Justice Isaacs.

The Chief Justice held that there was not any dispute extending beyond the limits of any one State to which any of the applicants were parties, and therefore, in his opinion, the order nisi should be made absolute in favour of the applicants. Assuming, however, that there was such a dispute to which the owners of vessels trading wholly within the port of Hobart were parties, he held that the order nisi should be made absolute as to all except Risby Brothers, as to whom he expressed no opinion. It should also be made absolute in regard to the three applicants who had ceased to be engaged in shipping.

Mr. Justice Barton said that a dispute in the purely coasting industry of Tasmania was not a dispute in the purely coasting industry of South Australia or New South Wales, and to say so was as reasonable as to say that two poodles amounted to a foxhound because each was a dog. He held that the dispute was not capable of extension into South Australia or New South Wales. Failure to agree at a compulsory conference could not turn into an interstate dispute that which was not previously one. He held that the prohibition ought to go, but in view of the memorandum of September 20, 1913, the case of Risby Bros. appeared one for separate treatment, and he would concur in its being reserved for further consideration.

The order of the Court was that the order nisi be made absolute for a prohibition against enforcing the award as against the applicants, Huon Channel and Peninsula Steamship Company, Ltd., James Rowe and Sons, Ltd., James Sheppard and Co., North Huon Steamship Co., Ltd., and Henry J. Condon. As to the other applicants, except Risby Bros., the order nisi be discharged. As to Risby Bros., further consideration was reserved.

ST. PATRICK'S JUBILEE.

In connection with the semi-jubilee celebrations of St. Patrick's College, Manly, an enjoyable reunion and harbour excursion was held yesterday afternoon. The steamer Lady Carrington conveyed a large number of excursionists round the harbour.

TRADES AND LABOUR.

ARBITRATION DEPARTMENT.

The newly-created arbitration department of the Labour Council (under Mr. M. Henwood) is working out to the satisfaction of the promoter—Mr. E. J. Kavanagh, M.L.C. Three sets of claims are in preparation—Ironmoulders, Sheet Metal Workers, and women (white) workers. A board has yet to be constituted for the women workers. The claims in this case will be advocated by Mr. M. J. Connington. Dressmaking and millinery will be included later on. Sheet metal workers are asking for a week of 44 hours, and for 2s an hour, with payment for all holidays. At present the pay is anything from 1s 3d per hour to 12s and 13s per day. The award expires in October. Evidence for the union in the Stove-makers' case has been closed, the chairman—Mr. W. Newbery—being now engaged in hearing the case in reply by the employers.

Mr. Kavanagh explains that Mr. Henwood has in hand, in addition to these matters, many penalty summonses and summonses for arrears of contributions to various unions. He has also given advice to unions on different matters. The council is hopeful that this new department will become self-supporting very shortly.

MUCH TRAVELLED BOARD.

The Country Gas Board (Mr. N. G. McWilliam, barrister, chairman), which has given an award unsatisfactory to the secretary of the Gas Employees' Union, is reported to have travelled 20,000 miles in the collection of evidence, extending over 16 or 17 months. Mr. Rawlin states that the terms and conditions laid down will be reviewed at the next meeting of the council of the Gas Employees' Union.

DAIRY EMPLOYEES.

The dairy section of the Milk and Ice Carters and Dairymen's Employees' Union is to meet on the 17th inst. to consider claims for a new award, the present award expiring in November.

FOODSTUFFS COUNCIL.

Mr. Alfred Carter, secretary of the Factory Employees' Union, has been appointed secretary of the Food Supply and Distributing Council, vice Mr. G. Saunders, resigned. The executive will meet this week to make certain recommendations bearing upon the council's relationship to any future industrial troubles among its affiliated unions.

WOMEN GATEKEEPERS.

The women gatekeepers in the railway service are dissatisfied with their conditions. Some of them receive no salary at all, only free house to live in. Others receive a very small salary, amounting to in some cases 2/ or 3/ per week. The Amalgamated Railway and Tramway Service Association is endeavouring to obtain higher pay and better conditions for these women. An application is to be made to No. 2 (Traffic) Board with the object of securing an award, and the general secretary, Mr. C. Thompson, is now collecting witnesses' names for working up the case.

RAILWAY MEN IN NEWCASTLE.

The general secretary of the New South Wales Amalgamated Railway and Tramway Service Association, Mr. Claude Thompson, yesterday returned from a short tour of the Newcastle and Maitland districts. He reports that marked progress has been made in enrolling members of his organisation. There are, he says, now 1500 members in the Newcastle branch. The railway employees in the East Greta Railway Mining Company, whose agreement expires in August next, are now preparing claims for presentation to the company. He is assisting them in drafting the claims. It is thought that an application to the Court will not be necessary, as the company in the past has shown a disposition to arrange matters amicably.

BOYS' BRIGADE BALL.

Once every year that section of the public which delights in dancing, is asked to spare a thought and a few shillings for the Boys' Brigade.

The annual ball in aid of the institution will be held at the Concordia Hall on Thursday, June 25. The funds will be devoted to lifting the debt on the new building. The function will be under the patronage of his Excellency the Governor and Lady Edeline Strickland, and in the presence of Lady Patey, Sir William and Lady Cullen, and the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress. The Lady Mayoress is president of the ball committee, Mrs. Malcolm Stephen is hon. secretary, and Mrs. Dabbs hon. treasurer. Tickets may be obtained at Paling's and Searle's.

THE CEILINGS YOU SHOULD BUY.
Beauty of design, permanence, proof against fire, and white ants and ease of erection, commend these ceilings to discriminating purchasers.
Visit our Showrooms and inspect the various designs, or write for a copy of our illustrated Catalogue.

ONLY THREE MORE WEEKS.
Then the price of every Rosebery Home Site now available at £3 per foot will INCREASE BY 10s PER FOOT TO £3 10s.
Such is the demand for ROSEBERY HOME SITES. It supplies in the fewest possible words the true trend of the investment market. It shows perfectly clearly that the man or woman who desires a sound, money-making investment MUST consider fully and at once the claims ROSEBERY insistently makes.
THIS IS THE SECOND INCREASE IN PRICE WITHIN THE PAST EIGHTEEN MONTHS, AND ITS NOWHERE NEAR THE LAST.
If you get in now, you will only have to wait THREE WEEKS to see your property worth 10s a foot more than you paid for it. Think of that. We know of an actual instance where a man sold a Section on a Road Frontage for £4 10s a Foot—almost DOUBLING what he gave for it. YOU will be able to do likewise.
Do not think you require much cash to benefit by this splendid opportunity. For those who desire them we offer the easiest of Terms.
£5 WILL BE ACCEPTED AS SUFFICIENT DEPOSIT, WHILE THE BALANCE MAY BE PAID AT THE RATE OF ONLY £1 PER MONTH. Could a bigger inducement be offered than that? Wisely make your choice at once, for there is bound to be a last minute rush, when, maybe, the section you desired will pass off to someone fully alive to the position.

HOUSES AND LAND FOR SALE.

HABERFIELD HOMES
FAMILIES.

Take it for granted that your position enables you to settle permanently in one locality. What do you GAIN by investing in a HOME at HABERFIELD?

FIRSTLY, there is the question of profit. EVERY SHILLING spent in acquiring your Home and in beautifying it with beautiful flowers, lawns, plants, etc. is of DIRECT benefit to you financially. This is in sharp contrast to the plan of paying Rent, where you have nothing whatever to show for it—except, maybe, a bundle of receipts.

SECONDLY, there is the question of HEALTH. HABERFIELD is a "Garden" Suburb, and, as you know, is built on the most approved Town-planning principles. This means wide, shady streets, open parks, airy rooms, and everything conducive to the well-being of the residents. Thus, there is no necessity for the annual trip to the Mountains or Seaside to seek renewed health. Health comes into your daily life, without the necessity to seek for it.

THIRDLY, there is the question of SOCIAL STANDING. It is well known that HABERFIELD enjoys the presence of many notable folk. Friendships can be easily made, as residents are constantly brought together through the medium of the many clubs and other attractions exclusive to a "Garden" Suburb.

THUS YOU HAVE COMBINED IN A HABERFIELD HOME THE THREE PRINCIPLES THAT MAKE LIFE WORTH THE LIVING—MONETARY GAIN, HEALTH, AND HAPPY SOCIAL INTERCOURSE.

On what Terms are these Homes acquired? Unquestionably the easiest ever offered in this or any other State in the Commonwealth.

£50 will suffice as Deposit, and this will throw open to you a Home at £695 or £825. A slightly higher Deposit for the more palatial Homes. The balance is payable at from 30/ in the smaller Homes to 35/ in the larger—usually lower than they are worth on a Rental basis. Thus you arrive at ABSOLUTE ownership by a gradual process without the slightest strain.

"Independent Cottage," CABRAMATTA PARK.

TO WILL LINGERLONGER,
STANMORE.

Dear Friend,—

I am now settled in my new home on Cabramatta Park Estate, which I purchased from H. Pritchard, "The Landsalesman," Auburn. Please come up next week, and you will meet the caretaker, Mr. Kervin, on the Estate, who will show you over, and you will have a good opportunity to select a suitable site for your new home. Come as soon as you can. The sooner you come, the sooner you will avoid the necessity of paying rent.

No deposit is required, and no interest is charged. The half-acre will cost you £25, and 2s 6d per week pays it off. There is enough timber on the lot for your fence, and also to provide all the Hardwood for your cottage.

Kindly ask Mr. Drawback, the landlord, to send me the bundle of unpaid accounts which I left behind on a shelf in his cottage. I am now able to pay them all.

Your friend,
I. B. A. WISEMAN.

MOTOR TUITION.—Men, better your position by learning to drive a motor car; it's a well-paid profession; it's the coming thing. I can give you a guarantee that you will hold the license and be thoroughly competent in 10 to 20 days or refund your money if I fail. This is a straight-out offer. It's to my advantage as well as to yours to teach quickly. I teach on five different cars. You drive miles morning and afternoon every day. No pottering about cleaning cars, etc., but driving from the minute you commence. My Garage is the best in the State as a Motor School. The price is reasonable; it's been my success; it pays me handsomely. Call round and look; you'll be like the other fellow—you'll start. Day and Night Classes.
81 CAMPBELL-STREET, near Elizabeth-street.

MOTOR DRIVING.—TUITION, 30s.—We guarantee Proficiency and License from 6 to 12 days. Our Pupils are taught on modern Epicycle and Gate-change Cars. We don't charge extra for the use of Car for License. We have Expert Mechanics overhauling Cars, and all parts of same are open for inspection of pupils. We specialise in Teaching the Working and Repairs of Engines, Magnetos, Carburetters, Tyres, Tubes, etc. Don't miss this chance to learn a trade and become proficient in a fortnight. In a few years' time horses will be a thing of the past, and motors will predominate; so seize this opportunity, and get in early. Day, Evening, and Saturday Afternoon Classes. Our Fee is reasonable, our Tuition the best. Special Ladies' Class. 161 Quay-street, off George-street.

MOTOR DRIVING MEANS MORE MONEY
DOHERTY and ADAMS' MOTOR SCHOOL.
Judge us by Results.
Since January 1, out of 100 pupils, 94 passed city test first try. Of these some had 10 days' training, others 15 to 20 days. Our tuition does not cease with license. Our pupils are welcome to extend their Mechanical and Electrical knowledge in spare time, without any time limit, until perfectly satisfied.
Our Pupils are TRAINED TO BE EXPERT TRAFFIC DRIVERS.
If you are content with only a suburban or country license, then you are courting disaster, as the majority of accidents have been due to the improper training of holders of suburban licenses.
Our city-trained men have not only entire confidence in themselves, but also that supreme control over the car, which alone can secure and hold the cream of the positions.
EMPLOYERS DEMAND THE CITY LICENSE ONLY.
Remember, our certificate is always a passport to a good position. Don't be rushed. If you rush into this business you will soon find yourself rushed out of it again. Call and let us show you the glowing letters from satisfied pupils; also others from the principal Motor Car Firms in Sydney. Country pupils find their lodging expenses light who attend our school.

MENTAL EFFICIENCY.
Mental efficiency is superior to and governs physical strength and brute force. In social life, in the mart, in the office, in the class-room, in the world's work everywhere throughout the wide world, it commands respect, enforces admiration—and succeeds.
The Pelman System of Mind and Memory Training develops the memory, increases the power of concentration, strengthens the will, gives clarity of thought and self-possession in difficult situations, cultivates organising and directive capacity—in brief, it gives all-round mental efficiency.
The Pelman System is taught by post in 12 interesting lessons. It takes from eight to ten weeks to complete the course. Benefits begin with the first lesson, and the interest and attention are maintained throughout.

INCUBATORS! INCUBATORS! HATCH EARLY AND HAVE HENS THAT LAY WHEN EGGS ARE DEAR.

Rattling good advice, equalled only by the wholesome caution to do the hatching in those famous American Incubators, the "KEYSTONE" and "PRAIRIE STATE"—egg hatchers that will free you from many watchful worries, and crown you with many brilliant successes in the way of HEALTHY CHICKS HATCHED to eggs incubated—

Read about these wonderful American "Chicken Makers"—better still, come and inspect them—and burn it in your buying brain that here the best cost the least at

NOCK AND KIRBY'S NOTED LOW PRICES.

NOW FOR THE FAMOUS "KEYSTONE."

It's a Hot-air Incubator, the type which science and experience have proved the BEST —because the system gives a more uniformly equable distribution of hatching heat, with BETTER VENTILATION, a higher degree of Humidity, and the most exact and dependable REGULATION of TEMPERATURE humanly attainable.

THE LAMP! You know the importance of it! Well, this one is PERFECT—a heater that's practically solderless, absolutely air-tight—that never "leaks" smoke into the egg chamber—outside packed with best fire-proof insulation known. Lamp support is quite "fool-proof," and a marvel of efficiency and satisfaction.

AND THE REGULATOR—! Well, look here, it works as if it had a brain! It's a toggle joint zinc and steel thermostat—an extremely sensitive—perfectly reliable—heat controller that won't ever "let you up" in the middle of the hatch.

IMITATES NATURE AND THE HEN—because close to the eggs there's a Damp Sand Tray that acts the part of Mother Earth in natural hatching.

"KEYSTONE" INCUBATOR OUTSIDE CASES are of CYPRESS PINE—easily first among durable timber. Inside cases are well-seasoned soft timber, tongued and grooved at the joints, with liberal insulation space between, fitted with Cotton Batting.

Now for the Prices—!

60-EGG "KEYSTONE" INCUBATOR, complete with Galvanised Moisture Tray, Egg Tester, Egg Tray, and Thermometer—£3/10/ each.

100-EGG "KEYSTONE" INCUBATOR, complete with the furnishings described above—£4/15/ each.

"PRAIRIE STATE" INCUBATORS ARE BIG BROTHERS TO THE SPLENDID "KEYSTONES."

They're hatching machines of irreproachable efficiency, embodying more science, practical knowledge, research, and experience in the art of artificial hatching than any other incubator in the world. We don't ask you to blindly swallow "Prairie State's" claim to be the "best ever"—see it, walk round it, view it from every poultry purview—and YOU'LL SAY THE SAME.—Prices—!

100-EGG PRAIRIE STATE" INCUBATORS, complete with Nursery Tray, Galvanised Moisture Tray, Egg Tester, Egg Tray, and Thermometer—£7 each.

240-EGG "PRAIRIE STATE" INCUBATOR, furnished complete with 2 Nursery Trays, 2 Galvanised Moisture Trays, 2 Egg Trays, 1 Egg Tester, 1 Thermometer—£11/10/ each.

BARGAINS

AT DAVID JONES'.

OF SPECIAL INTEREST TO ALL LADIES is the splendid offer we are making this week.
There can be no doubt that the charm of woman is greatly enhanced by good and tasteful dressing and this week's bargains afford an opportunity of obtaining a lovely model gown or costume at a very special price.
A number of our beautiful imported costumes and frocks; every one different, has been wonderfully reduced, in many cases 33⅓ per cent.
There is an individual note about every one of these gowns. There is the charm that draping gives to a model of soft silk, a lovely chiffon taffeta gown is made lovelier by its opal shadings, a glowing note of colour on a dull blue makes the feature of another, the quaint style of an old-time period has a charm all its own, or a naive simplicity confers distinction.
The costumes are all splendidly tailored, the latest and most up-to-date in style and cut.
We invite your inspection. Come and see them in our windows and showroom.
The prices range from .... 98/6 to 21 gns.

NEW WINTER FABRICS

NEW WINTER COSTUME

MARK FOY'S, LIMITED.

A lady's usual consolation when she has a Costume made which does not retain its shapeliness and smart appearance is, "Oh, well, what could I expect for the money?" That is unfair to herself. Nobody should pay for a thing that they think will hardly give service for the money. No firm has the right to sell things

THAT DO NOT SERVE.

No matter how little it asks for them, "The Piazza" does not buy and does not sell such fabrics. Nor do MARK FOY'S TAILORS make them up. Bear that in mind, Ladies, when you glance over this list of our WINTER CLOTHS. Bear it in mind, also, when you visit the
"FOY" LADIES' TAILORING DEPARTMENT.
